

LAKE TOXAWAY

The many friends and relatives here of Tom Fisher, of Little River, were shocked to learn of his death last week. He was born in this section and lived here for many years, moving from here to Glenville, and then to Little River.

He was always kind and friendly to all who knew him and his loss will not only be felt in the community in which he lived but by hosts of friends in this and Jackson counties.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Owen of Quebec, visited Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Owen, here Tuesday.

Misses Dorothy Wilde, Mae Johnson, Geneva Jones and Helen McKinna, were Brevard visitors Tuesday.

Lewis Thomas of Quebec was the dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. Tolvin Miller, Friday.

Mrs. Amanda Pence was called to the home of her mother, Mrs. Jesse Johnson, at Newport, Tenn., Saturday on account of the death of her little sister, Mary Lee Johnson.

Miss Blanche Owen spent Saturday night with Miss Sue McCall at Quebec.

Near Serious Accident

Billie, two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Thomas had a near serious accident Friday, when he fell from the bridge near the site of the Moltz plant, into Indian Creek.

His mother and Mrs. W. H. Arrowood, who were several feet away saw the accident. By the time they reached him his seven year old brother, Dean, who was with him, had jumped into the creek, which was up to his shoulders, and was holding the baby's head above the water.

His lungs were full of water and he seemed lifeless, for a short time but soon recovered.

Both children would certainly have been drowned, had not help arrived, as the water is very swift and deep at that place.

Catawba County Stays In "No Store" Ranks

NEWTON—Durham remains today the westernmost North Carolina county to have liquor control. Like other western counties which have voted, Catawba county defeated liquor stores in a referendum Saturday.

The vote was 7,053 to 4,177. The rural districts voted dry by heavy majorities, but most of the larger towns voted wet. To date, 36 counties have held referenda, 25 voting wet, 11 dry.

The liquor control counties all are in the eastern part of the state.

Belk Team Ahead In City Softball Loop

The College team was knocked off their perch in the softball league last Thursday when a slugging WOW team finally found their batting eyes and won a 12-8 verdict.

The victory failed to help the Woodmen's place in the standing however as they were two games behind the Belk outfit.

The Belk team favorites to win the last half were downed twice by the College while they have won twice from the WOW.

A playoff is now unlikely unless either the College or WOW wins all their remaining games.

Use of Electrical Equipment Eases the Burden of Farming

By IRA MILLER
Rural Electrification Bureau

CONTINUED extension of high lines in all parts of the country — and the resultant use of numerous large and small electrical appliances — has brought undreamt-of comfort and convenience to some 1,300,000 farm homes, and relief from many tiresome and unpleasant chores to at least that number of farm women.

Perhaps even more important savings in labor, time and money result from the use of electrical equipment in the business of farming. In fact, the difference between a real cash income and an actual financial loss from the operation of countless farms is determined by the extent to which electricity is put to work on farm jobs. Electrical "hired hands" have proved that they can and do produce greater profits.

As in the farm home, adequate wiring of all farm buildings is essential to the profitable and enjoyable use of electricity. Also, like the rooms in the home, each building should be amply lighted and provided with a sufficient number of convenience outlets and suitable switches.

Among the electrical "servants" for the dairy barn are milking machines, drinking cups, ventilating fans, animal groomers, fly traps and hay hoists. An ensilage cutter, operated by a portable motor, will fill the silo in short order.

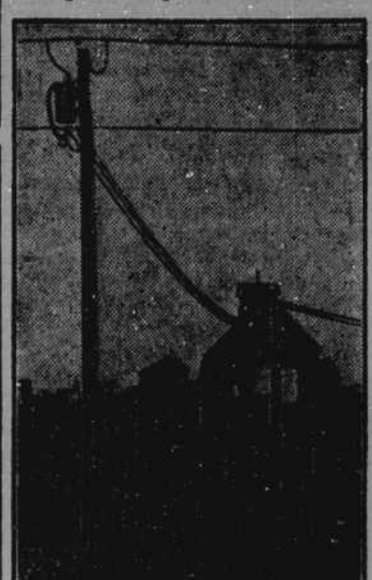

In the milk house, an electric cream separator and churn eliminate much drudgery. The combination of an electric milk cooler, water heater, utensil sterilizer and fly screens will help keep the bacterial count of the milk so low that it will command a premium in many localities.

Poultry houses not only require ordinary lights to increase winter egg profits by lengthening the working day for the hens but also ultra-violet lights to keep them healthy and strong. An electric brooder, incubator, water warmer and burglar alarm add to the profit and surety of poultry raising.

Many granaries and barns are equipped with a feed grinder and mixer, grain elevator, hay chopper, corn sheller and other machinery, all operated by a portable motor. Some farmers also thresh their own grain, using a portable motor to drive the separator.

A well-equipped machine shop will save money on any farm. An electric drill press or portable drill, lathe, grindstone, forge, air compressor, battery charger, soldering iron and glue pot are among the items that should be included.

The high line is the life line of some 1,300,000 American farms.

Every farm should have an automatic electric water system to provide an ample supply of fresh water for the livestock and for sanitary purposes in the various buildings. Also, each should have an adequate system of yard lighting to prevent thievery as well as for ease and safety in going from one building to another after dark.

The foregoing are only a few of the numerous uses of electrical equipment in general farming. There are many specialized applications—fruit washing and grading, soil sterilization, soil heating, cold storage, and wood sawing, to name but a few. On every farm, the electric "hired hands" can be made to more than pay their way in increased profits and lessened manual labor.
