IN MEMORY OF MY MOTHER

Sad were the hours of that unhappy day
When God called my mother away.
You don't know the sorrow to be left Alone.
"Till God sends a message to your home;
'Tis sad when He calls for one or the other.
But the saddest of all is when He calls your mother.

THE CLUB CALENDAR

STEWARDSHIP

We are God's stewards. How can we fix that idea deep in the minds of those who have never thought of it? We are God's stewards. How can we who know the fact be made to realize it and act upon it? We are stewards, trustees. We are not owners or landlords or of time or life or money or property. We are God's stewards. How can we have the right to irresponsible for what passes through our hands. We are not mere beneficiaries or pensioners or even borrowers, passively receiving and expending gifts. We are responsible agents, most solemnly trusted. We are investments bound to yield an income. We are something planted and watered and tended and expected to grow and bear fruit for the Lord of the harvest. No one can mention a more deep-rooted and at the same time more wholly erroneous belief in the minds of most people than that they are essentially their own masters, however hindered or driven by circumstances they may be; if they earn any money it is their own; if they have any leisure it is their own; if they achieve any work it is their own; if they build a house or buy a farm or invest money, it is their own and the dividends are their own. This simply is not true. It is even farther from the truth than the belief of thoughtful heathen—"We are no other than a moving row of magic shadow-shapes that come and go Round with the sun-illumined lantern held In midnight by the Master of the show." Now to realize that we are not our own and to feel all we value and all we hold dear slipping out of our grasp and out of our control would be a desperately puzzling dreary thing if the Lord of the harvest were any other than that glorious One whom for all our blind selfishness we do worship as our Father, that One through whom we have been brought out of darkness and error into clear light and true knowledge, that One who even died for us and rose again and ascended into heaven, to prepare a place for us.

"All that I took from thee I did but take
Not for thy harms
But just that thou might'st find it in
My arms.
All that thy child's fancies as lost
I have stored for thee at Home."

GOOD THIEFT LESSON

The recent sale of the Woolworth building, New York city, for $11,000,000 contains an excellent theft lesson. It is the direct result of constant saving and wise investing of pennies. The great Woolworth building was built by the owner of the famous chain of 5 and 10 cent stores.

ELINOR'S CURK

Little Elinor pricked her thumb and mother, unable to find a clean rag handy, ripped a piece from father's old R. V. D.'s. That night, when father came home, Elinor rushed to him and told him of her mishap. "And father," she said, "Mother couldn't find a rag so she cut up one of your Y. M. C. A. rags."

PARIS PROMISES BOBBED HAIR

If it's true that as Paris goes temporarily so goes the world, then the bobbed-head has come to stay with us for eons and eons. So said Maude Martin Ellis, artist, who will do the covers for a new magazine which begins publication next month in New York, when she stepped from the Olympic recently. Mrs. Ellis returned after a long sojourn in the Latin Quarter of Paris where she studied art in the studios of the most distinguished masters. She found that the bobbed-head, far from being passé, has taken over Paris entirely. "Some day the bob will be the accepted mode and any one with long hair may be considered radical in coiffure," Mrs. Ellis predicted. "Picture a stern father refusing to give his daughter permission to permit her hair to grow long." A Frenchwoman never lets her enthusiasm upset her sense of proportion. She may love frocks, luxury and the pleasures of life, but her mental alertness does not allow her to become a slave to them. And in reverse, she may be brilliantly intellectual without losing one whit of her feminine charm and personal attraction. She is wise in her generation.

A baby should never be put down to sleep in all his cloths. His shoes, especially, should be removed, and, unless the weather is very cold, it is better to remove the stockings also. But his feet must always be kept warm.

O'er daily cares why anxious grow
And load the heart with sorrow?
The winds today that rufely blow
May softly sigh tomorrow.

THE WOMAN'S CLUB MEETS

The regular meeting of the Women's Club was held at the Masonic hall Wednesday afternoon. Reports from the following committees were heard. Civics department, told of the work done in beautifying the railroad plot. The expenses for this amounted to $78.77. The committee on amusements reported that it is impossible to secure the minstrel any time soon, and suggested that with the Laurinburg talent, a home-talent play be gotten up. No action was taken. The question of having a landscape gardener come to Laurinburg was discussed and a committee appointed to look into the matter. The secretary was asked to write notes of appreciation of the work done at the court house, to the county commissioners, Miss Swain, and Mr. Evans. The club decided to confer with the chamber of commerce as to planting trees and securing a place to hold banquets. Attention was called to the cause that the club contributed to last year and decided to contribute this year to "The endowment fund," the McBrayer memorial fund, and "The South South Cotton Loan Fund." Miss Marian Swain made a very interesting talk on better homes and told of plans of one that is soon to be built in Laurinburg.

"I Can't Praise Self-Rising Flour Too Highly"

AFTER I used my first sack of self-rising flour (20 years ago) I ordered more for I knew right then I was never going to do without it. . . . I have never had a failure with anything I ever tried to cook with it. . . . I can't praise self-rising flour too highly."

It's hard to realize how much satisfaction there is in using self-rising flour until you try it. One thing is certain when you learn what delicious biscuits and quick bread it makes, when you see how the ready mixing reduces your housework and when you realize what a saving it affords, like the South Carolina housewife quoted above, you "can't praise self-rising flour too highly."

Self-rising flour is made from choice sun-ripened soft wheat. Pure phosphate baking powder has been added in the proportion to make the dough rise properly. As in plain flour it comes in various grades. Ask your grocer for the same grade of self-rising you have been using in plain flour. Be sure it carries the Blue Shield, which is a guarantee of satisfaction.

FOLLOW THESE FIVE RULES For Making Perfect Biscuits with Self-Rising Flour. (1) See that your oven is hot. (2) Always use cold milk or cold water. (3) Never add baking powder, soda or salt. (4) Use good shortening—lard, vegetable fat or butter. (5) Make soft dough—knead quickly.
