BACKACHE
Mississippi Lady Benefited by Taking Cardui.
 "I took Cardui for backache and a weakened, run-down condition, and it strengthened and helped me," says Mrs. Mattie Hurt, of Coldwater, Miss.
 "Before the birth of my children, when weak and nauseated, I took Cardui. After the birth of my children, when just getting up to do my work, I took a couple of bottles of Cardui and it never failed to strengthen and help me when taking it."
 "I seemed to enjoy my food and my back would feel stronger. I don't believe I could have kept going had it not been for Cardui and the strength it gave me."
 "When change of life came on I got down in bed. Life seemed to be just a terrible drag. I did not have strength for anything. My back hurt. My limbs hurt. I was so nervous I couldn't rest."
 "I knew what Cardui had done, so sent straight for it, and it did just as it had done before—strengthened and built me up."

ARCAL MOUNTAIN SHEEP

They had been quiet all day. People had come to watch them and to look at them.
 People had made remarks about them, but they had not said a word. They had made hardly any sounds at all.
 They had felt, at times, as though they would like to make faces at some of the people who said rude things, but they didn't.

They just let the people say what they wanted to say and paid little attention to them.
 After the people had gone they talked a little of how absurd some of them had been, how they had stared and looked, and how foolish and unattractive some of the people in the world were.

"I come from Persia, I come from Persia, yes indeed I come from Persia," said the Arcal Mountain Sheep, another one of the wild sheep family.
 "Well, I come from India, I come from India, I come from India, yes indeed I do," said another Arcal Mountain Sheep.

"We both come from different places," said the first Arcal Mountain Sheep, whose name was Ray.
 "But we both belong to the same family," said the second Arcal Mountain Sheep, whose name was Bobby.

"Shows how smart we are," said Ray.
 "We have different homes throughout the countries," he continued. "Ah, we're fine, smart, Arcal Mountain Sheep, we are."

"We are, we are," agreed Bobby.
 "Well, I was going to say," commenced Ray, "that though I come from Persia, from the south of Persia, which is the opposite of the north, I believe, most Arcal Mountain Sheep come from India."

"What is south and what is north?" asked Bobby.
 "South is down and north is up," said Ray.

"Like the earth and sky, I suppose," said Bobby.
 "Not at all," said Ray.
 "When folks talk of the southern or northern part of a country they are not speaking of the sky at all."

"Poor sky," said Bobby. "It's left out of it entirely. But I suppose it's too big to feel hurt about it."
 "It has enough," said Ray.
 "It is so high up no one can scold it."
 "It can rain or snow or sleet, or the sun may shine and we can't call up to the sky and say:

 "Please don't do that, up there."

"The sky couldn't hear us in the first place, and besides people have learnt that they mustn't talk to a lofty object like the sky in any too familiar a manner."

"They may say they wish it wouldn't rain or they wished it had turned out to be a fair day, but they don't directly ask anything of the sky."

"That's true, the sky certainly has its own way," agreed Bobby.

"The southern part of a country," said Ray, "is the lower part of the country, south of the upper, or northern, part of the country."

"When we say up north we mean up at one end of the land, and when we say down south we mean down toward the other end."

"You'd make a fine school teacher," said Bobby grinning.

"No matter," said Ray, "if I am not a professor, for I know you mean I'd make a mighty poor one."

"They never have made an Arcal Mountain Sheep a professor that I have ever heard of and I don't suppose they will begin now."

"But ah, we have something for which to be thankful."

"We have lovely shaggy hair, we are small and dainty, and best of all we have wonderful circling horns!"
 And that was quite true.

For the Arcal Mountain Sheep are famous for their beautiful, big horns. And they are quite pleased that they have them. Oh yes, indeed.

They are quite, quite pleased about their horns.

A Riddle-Rhyme

My first is in parrot, but not in wren;
 My second in moorland, but not in fen;
 My third you will find is in table, not chair;
 My fourth is in headache and also in hair;
 My fifth, without doubt, is in rabbit, not doe;
 My sixth in embroider, but never in sew.
 Answer—Potato.
