

SENDS SARGON TO FAR OFF ROUMANIA

President of Big Canadian Film Says He Never Saw Anything to Equal New Treatment

"After taking five bottles of Sargon and two bottles of the Soft Mass Pills I want to say that in all my 70 years I've never seen anything to equal this remarkable treatment," of the Western Hardware Co., Ltd. of Winnipeg, Canada, who moved from Roumania 30 years ago, and who has acquired extensive real estate holding in that city.

"In fact, Sargon has been of such great help to me that I am sending a full treatment to two friends of mine back on my old home country. I wrote them what a wonderful medicine it is and how it restored my health after all other medicines and treatments failed.

"I suffered torture with indigestion after meals and only those who have had this terrible affliction know what a blessed relief it means to get rid of it. I also suffered from chronic constipation almost as far back as I can remember.

"After the first few doses of Sargon my stomach seemed to right itself, my nerves grew stronger and I began to sleep well and now I am in better health generally than I've been in 35 years.

"I use to take a physic almost every day of my life, but since taking Sargon Pills my bowels are as regular as clockwork. Their easy natural action makes them especially suited to elderly people like myself. I only hope my statement will help other sufferers."

This is only one of the thousands of cases where grateful men and women have received such wonderful benefits from Sargon that they have sent it to their relatives and friends in distant lands.

Newport Students Organize Farmers Club

By C. S. LONG

Newport, Nov. 3.—The Newport Chapter of Young Tar Heel Farmers which is an organization of Vocational Agricultural Students, met today for the purpose of electing officers. This organization is a part of the Future Farmers of America, a state and nationwide organization of similar groups of Vocational Agricultural students which have been established in all or a great majority of the departments of vocational agriculture throughout the United States.

The purposes of this organization are:

1. To promote vocational agriculture in the high schools of America by developing the pride of Future Farmers in vocational agriculture.
2. To create more interest in the intelligent choice of farming occupations.
3. To create and nurture a love of country life.
4. To provide recreational and educational entertainment for Young Tar Heel Farmers.
5. To promote thrift by membership through the establishment of saving accounts and investments in agricultural enterprises.
6. To afford a medium of cooperative buying and selling.
7. To establish the confidence of the farm boy in himself and his work.
8. To promote scholarship.
9. To develop local leadership.

The Young Tar Heel Farmers Club gives each member ample opportunity to exercise whatsoever powers of leadership he possesses. They are to assume all responsibility in order that they may be able to carry the burden of leadership that fall upon the shoulders of local leaders in every community.

The following members were elected as officers for the ensuing year:

- Everett Gould—President.
- Harold Wilton—Vice-president.
- Roland Simmons—Secretary.
- Richard Garner—Treasurer.
- Robert Howard—Reporter.
- Leroy Hill—Doorkeeper.

PLANT BULBS NOW FOR SPRING FLOWERS

(F. H. Jeter)

Raleigh, Nov. 4.—The spring flower garden is made glorious by the use of bulbs planted in the fall, in good soil, and allowed to develop a good root system before freezing weather.

"To have the most pleasing display of bulbs next season, they should be planted in October in most parts of the State but it is not too late to plant them now," suggests Glenn O. Randall, floriculturist at State College. "The first requirement is a good soil. Every one knows what constitutes a good garden soil. This is the kind needed for the successful growth of bulbs. Before planting this soil should be put into the best possible condition. If it is too heavy, use a little sand, ashes or agricultural limestone. If it is too light and sandy, bring in some leaf mold, heavy pasture soil or again use agricultural limestone. The physical condition of the soil is important in growing beautiful flowers from bulbs."

Mr. Randall cautions against using fresh manure for fertilizer. This will be injurious. Rotted manure is fine but should never be used until it is thoroughly decayed. Bone meal is also fine for bulbs, especially when a little tankage has been added at the rate of one part of tankage to six of the meal.

Set the bulbs five to six inches deep in the well prepared soil. The bulbs should be placed so that the base of each one is in solid contact with the soil. Do not leave an air space below the bulb as is commonly done when using the "dibber." This checks development of the root system.

To have spring flowering bulbs which make the garden a place of beauty, these few simple precautions will be found of value, says Mr. Randall.

MAY CONTROL ROACHES BY POISON POWDER

(F. H. Jeter)

Raleigh, Nov. 3.—The common roach is probably the most repulsive and destructive of the common household insects yet may be controlled effectively by the use of sodium fluoride powder.

"In addition to the actual damage done by the roaches, they leave an extremely disagreeable odor which persists over a long period," says C. H. Brannon, extension entomologist at State College. "These insects feed upon dead animal matter, cereals and food material of all kinds. They will know woollens, leather of shoes and furniture and often damage leather book bindings in getting at the paste. The pests breed rapidly and are repulsive and loathsome."

Mr. Brannon recommends sodium fluoride as a control poison. Sift it along the base board of the kitchen or pantry, under the sink, and on shelves and tables. It is best to sift the poison on the bare shelves and then cover with paper or other covering. Here the poison may be left indefinitely and while it will help to control the roaches will also act as

VOCATIONS AND AVOCATIONS

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

Soleucus, who lived in Syria three hundred years or so before the beginning of the Christian era, had a really first-class job of being king which ought to have kept him busy and contented his soul, but it did not. He was perfectly daft on the subject of building. I am sure he studied building plans during all his leisure hours when as king he was not signing things. He built innumerable cities, we are told, not because there was need for them but because building was for him recreation, a sport which stirred his imagination and took his mind off his regular business. Having built one magnificent city, he moved on to another. It took money, of course, and work, but labor was cheap and gold was plentiful in Syria and kings must be amused.

Chapman was a farmer who sixty years ago or so was raising corn and hogs and cattle out by Burr Oak grove in Vermillion county. His agricultural interests should have held him for there was much labor needed on a farm in those days, but not so. He was all right as a farmer, but what he enjoyed most was fixing things, making things go after they had ceased to function. Anything that had wheels in it fascinated Chapman. Crippled mowers and sewing machines, clocks and watches which refused to go were to Chapman a source of the keenest delight. He used to come around once a year and ask to stay all night. He wasn't out for the money, for if anything needed fixing whether it were the sewing machine or father's old watch, he was glad to put everything in perfect order simply for our lodging and feeding him and his horse. The next morning he was on his way. It was for him romance, adventure, the joy of life, an avocation which gave him the keenest pleasure. He enjoyed it for itself as Bronson Alcott used to enjoy lecturing, and you will recall that he came back to Concord once after a month's pilgrimage, having made a dollar, and in the meantime having lost his overcoat.

A little priest came to the country town a dozen miles or so distant from the neighborhood in which I lived. There was no church in the town worthy of the name, but within two years he had one built, and then he moved on to another and larger town. He was a faithful shepherd of his flock, but his avocation like that of Soleucus was building. So as long as he lived he moved from one town to another always leaving a beautiful church behind him. It gave him enthusiasm; it kept him young and interested in life.

The man without an avocation is sure to grow stale, to dry up, to lose interest in life, and to become ineffective in his vocation. Maybe Soleucus was a better and a happier king because of the cities which he built.

an effective control for ants.

Sodium fluoride is a white powder and is a poison. It must be kept away from children. As fast as the roaches are killed they should be swept up and destroyed.

It is a good idea, suggests Mr. Brannon, that the sodium fluoride be left where it has been dusted for at least two weeks. If more roaches should appear make fresh applications from time to time.

More definite information about controlling roaches or other household insects may be obtained by writing to Mr. Brannon.

CORDIAL FRIENDLY BANKING SERVICE

Strict Business Policy

Those within a bank have to remember that they are handling the funds of their depositors and this trust necessitates strict adherence to banking principles.

Sometimes a customer forgets the necessity of adherence to a strict business policy in a bank and becomes offended when a check is returned for "Insufficient Funds," a discount is not made, or a minimum charge of a dollar, to cover the necessary expense of records, is made on the discount of small notes. But the banker has a sacred trust and must conform to a strict business policy in the face of such thoughtless criticism, for he knows it is right and his duty.

This bank is your friend and is anxious to extend every reasonable service; but the business you commit to it will be handled on a strict business policy.
