Washington Snapshots

Formal overtures by railroad managements to leaders of organized railway labor for a conference on wage reductions have been repeated. Asserting the plight of the railroad workers is now "distressing enough" the labor leaders said they had no intention of cooperating at this time in negotiations which might make their condition more serious.

It is commonly said that the radio has changed the whole character of campaigning. But to judge by Governor Roosevelt's decision to visit on a speaking trip nearly half the States in the Union, it hasn't. A man may sit at home and talk to the entire country on a nation-wide hook-up. But nation-wide hook-ups are very expensive. And it is a question whether anything will take the place of the personal appearance of the candidate before the voters.

Prohibition politics has split one of the country's prominent families wide open. Mrs. Charles H. Sabin of New York, Joan of Arc of the wet women, is a sister of Mrs. Harry F. Guggenheim, wife of the American Ambassador to Cuba and intimate of Col. Charles Lindbergh. The two women are daughters of the late Paul Morton, Secretary of the Navy in the first Roosevelt administration. Mrs. Sabin is supporting Gov. Roosevelt. Mrs. Guggenheim is for President Hoover.

The tortoise of the White House lawn has disappeared, after nearly thirty years of lounging about the Executive Mansion. Gardeners haven't seen him for months. They fear that some souvenir hunter has made off with him, or that the recent drought has caused the terrapin to seek moister soil.

The rout of the La Follette forces was the most disastrous blow sustained by the insurgent element in the Republican Party in more than a decade. It leaves the Progressive bloc in Congress badly shattered in morale as well as numbers. It was an upset of the first magnitude and caused almost as much surprise in Washington as the Maine upheaval.

Wisconsin's primary election, in which the conservative Republican wing in this long-time progressive State was the victor, was hailed by Republican leaders here as a harbinger of the party's success in November. Democrats were equally optimistic that the upheaval would induce the La Follette Republicans to join the Democrats and swing the State to that party in the national election.

BUSINESS HOLDING ITS OWN
ATD OUTLOOK IS IMPROVING
NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Business and trade throughout the country, the trade reviews reported today more than held their own during September and hopes for further gradual improvement are held out for the balance of the year.

The general movement now has extended to both the industrial and distributive divisions, although the gain in the former is less conspicuous than in the latter, said Dun's.

Bradstreet's found seasonal factors still showing a stimulating influence.

SOME TESTED GOOD THINGS

There is an old saying that "an apple a day keeps the doctor away," and an onion a day keeps everybody away. A good time to indulge in the odoriferous bulb is at a time when you will not annoy others. Onions are such wholesome vegetables that they should be served at least twice a week in some form during the entire winter.

An onion sirup cannot be excelled for a cough, and a poultice of chopped raw onion, mixed with rye flour with a bit of vinegar to moisten, makes a remedy for any lung trouble. This is not pleasant, but it is very effective.

Baked Stuffed Onions.—This makes a most satisfying main dish. Peel and cook the onions in boiling salted water for ten minutes. Take out the centers, drain well. Parboil a small green pepper and remove the seeds, peel 12 large mushroom caps, cook in three tablespoonsful of butter with the onion scooped from the centers, finely chopped. Add one-half cupful of bread crumbs, salt, pepper and a tablespoonful of butter; mix well. Fill six medium-sized onions and top each with a mushroom cap. Put into a baking dish with a little water, cover and bake in a moderate oven about one hour. Remove the cover the last 15 minutes and brown. They are delicious without mushrooms, or with a bit of sausage.

Lemon Pudding.—Mix one cupful of flour, two egg yolks well beaten, one teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of melted butter, and one cupful of milk. When well blended fold in the well-beaten whites of the eggs and bake in a shallow baking dish set into hot water. Bake three minutes. Serve hot or cold.

Walnut and Salmon Salad.—Separate into flakes one-fourth of a cupful of canned salmon. Take one-half cupful of walnut meats coarsely chopped. Shred three-fourths of a cupful of cabbage, let stand in cold water to crisp. Drain, mix with the salmon and nuts add one cupful of cooked salad dressing and serve on lettuce and you have something good.

Nellie Maxwell

The seasonal developments are undoubtedly encouraging, this analysis said. "Although many lines of business are still below last year, the upward trend is something to cause hope, especially when it is remembered that the trend was downward in both the last two years at this time."

TIMELY FARM QUESTIONS ANSWERED AT STATE COLLEGE

By F. H. Jeter
RALEIGH, Oct. 3—

Q. How can I keep bugs out of dried peas during the winter?

Ans. One of the most successful methods for keeping bugs out of peas, if the peas are to be used for seed, is to store them in air slacked lime using one pound of lime to two pounds of peas. For larger quantities one bushel of lime to each four bushels of peas should be used. For eating purposes the peas may be heated to 135 degrees for three or four hours.

Q. When can I mate birds for best results in the coming breeding season?

Ans. Males should be placed in the breeding pen at once. This will give them plenty of time to accustom themselves to new surroundings and will also allow about sixty days for the birds to be mated and in production before eggs are saved for hatching purposes. Too much time cannot be spent in selecting these breeding males. Before turning them in to the breeding pen be sure that they are vigorous birds with proven performance, and conform to the standard of the breed.

Q. My dahlias produce a lot of blooms but they are small. How can I produce larger blooms?

Ans. First you must practice disbudding. When the main or primary bud appears at the end of the branch, pinch out all side buds and shoots for a foot or more below this bud, being careful, however, to leave at least one pair of buds or shoots at the base of the stem for future growth. This disbudding causes all the plant food materials to go to the one remaining bud and will thus increase the size. Certain varieties also produce much larger blossoms than others and the grower should select those varieties and then practice disbudding for the extra large blooms.

Business Men

Need Banking Facilities. Paying bills with currency is rather an inconvenient method. Small bills can be paid in this way but even those had better be paid by check. Merchants, farmers, manufacturers and professional men can best settle their accounts with checks. By this means they can keep a record of what they are doing. A cancelled check is a good receipt.

THE PEOPLE OF CARTERET COUNTY

who are in need of the conveniences of a bank are invited to open accounts with us. Your business will be appreciated of course and we will do every thing in our power to make our relations pleasant and profitable to you.
