A Noted Woman Is Retired

Of all North Carolin women, past and present, we think that Dr. Jane S. McKimmon has been the greatest. A few days ago she retired after being closely associated with home demonstration work in North Carolina for a quarter of a century.

Maurice R. Beaman Is Dead

Maurice R. Beaman is dead but his name should linger long in the minds of Morehead City port officials. The port terminal at Morehead City may have become a reality with out the aid of Maurice R. Beaman, but we doubt it seriously.

Red Cross Chapters Doing Fine Job

Red Cross chapters in Beaufort and Morehead City are doing and have done a fine job in connection with the drive for funds to aid the flood stricken residents of the middle west.

Another Blunder Made By County Board Chairman

The Carteret county board of commissioners were in session on Monday and Wednesday of last week. During those two meetings quite a number of items were discussed or taken care of by the board.

ments there is sometimes called "Jim Morris' Port Terminal." Of course it is said in only the friendliest sort of way, but the truth of the matter is, that had it not been for Capt. Jim Morris, prominent Atlantic resident and his influence, the chances are that the splendid little fishing town on Core sound would still be without an adequate harbor.

STATECRAFT IN HYDE.

"Teachers in my county are making an average of $96 a month," says Representative George E. Davis, of Hyde. "Their fathers are making 85 cents a day on the farm--yet they are the ones who will be called on to pay for the increase."

But Mr. Davis does not stop at protecting his 85 cents a day constituency from the avarice of the affluent instructors of the youth of his section; he has introduced into the house a bill to put an end to the inroads of wild life from the government reservation at Mattamuskeet.

If Mr. Davis can show anything beyond a few dollars in sales tax which the farmers of Hyde contribute to the support of state employes, we'll throw in with him and support his bill to keep the varmints and vermin out of the few acres of plowed land which surround Lake Mattamuskeet.

There's so little tobacco to compact in Hyde, not much more soil to conserve and such a slight prospect for WPA outlay that farmers making 85 cents a day ought not to be asked to arise anybody's wages. Indeed, we think that Mr. Davis should be permitted, if he sees fit, to take nine of the ten dollars he is paid for each day's legislative work at Raleigh and divide it among his less-fortunate neighbors.

The dollar a day left him would then be more than any of his farmer friends would have, and we are certain Hon. George would not care to fare better than the humblest of those voted for him.—(Greensboro Daily News.)

LETTERS FROM FLOOD ZONE

Editor of The News: If you have room in your paper this week or next, will you please put these two enclosed letters in. They are copies of letters to Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Clawson from their son Charles Clawson.

I thought they might be interesting to your readers and also to Charles' friends there.

Yours truly, Marie Clawson Frank, Fayetteville, N. C. P. O. Box 978

Louisville, Ky.

Dear Mother and Father: I am down in Louisville, Ky. They called the Seaman's Y.M.C.A. and asked for one hundred men and two hundred of us came down here. We left New York Monday 2 P. M. on a special through train, we got in Jeffersonville, Ind., Tuesday 8 A. M., only stopped about twice for only a few minutes.

When we got there there was 10 big life boats waiting for us. We brought them across the Ohio River yesterday into Louisville, Ky. Things are pretty bad here, most of the city is under water, but don't worry about me, there is no danger in these big life boats. We are sleeping and eating at the Armory which is high up and no danger of the water reaching it. It is the only place in the city where there are electric lights. Thouands of the homeless are taying here also. Many of the people are sticking to their homes, the ones that are higher than one story. A number of times our boats got stuck on the tops of automobiles and street cars and on top of houses. We take families out when they have to leave and we carry milk and food to different parts of the city. The water rose a little more last night, but they expect it to start going down today.

The city is under Martial Law now, the Coast Guard and Army are here also. There is no danger, so please don't worry. Water is very short, no wash water and only a small amount of drinking water. I do not know whether it is possible to mail a letter or not. There are plenty of airplanes, newspaper men and camera men here. We had a camera and newspaper man in my boat yesterday, got lots of pictures of rescues.

Love to you both, Charles.

Dear Mother and Father:

We got back in New York yesterday, surely had some experience down in Kentucky. The people down there sure were in bad shape and still are. But there is no more use for the boats. The water has gone down too low, it seems to be flooding the towns on the Miss. river as it goes south.

Guess you will see some of the pictures in the papers that they took of us and movies also. Lots of the boys came back sick with colds and a few with fever and pneumonia. I came back O. K. not even a cold.

Did you get my letter from Louisville and the broadcast they sent out for us. One of the Radio men who went down with us sent out a message over the radio for the ones of us who gave the names of the ones we wanted it sent to. I sent one to you, wonder if you heard it. I thought maybe someone would pick it up in Beaufort and tell you, if you didn't hear it yourselves. We had plenty of excitement one night. We were rescuing four hundred people stranded in a big building, when next door a fire started in a paint and varnish factory, and it was a plenty big fire when the big cans of paint and varnish started exploding, it lit up the whole town and a girl and a man were drowned, it was luck no more were lost. You can't smoke anywhere in the city, especially in a boat, because the water is covered with oil and gasoline. They have orders to shoot any one caught smoking.

We struck snow coming back thru Indiana.

Love, Charles.

Coastguardsmen To Be Guests Of Lang

All coastguardsmen in stations along the central coast or members of the patrol boat fleet of Advance Base A in Morehead City have been extended invitations by Robert Lang to attend the feature picture at The Beaufort Theatre on Saturday. The production, "The Sea Spoilers" is a picture which features coastguardsmen and their activities with rum runners off the northern coast.

At last 25,000 acres of lespedeza in Randolph County has germinated and is growing due to recent warm weather.

ceive them declare they do not encourage them to come among them, and no not want such nuisances.

AN INFAMOUS law of the Federal Congress prohibiting the surrender of fugitive slaves, enables these fanatics to make their quarters perfect harbors of runaway Negroes. These officers employ them in various capacities and pay them for their services; ignoring the rights of the owners and violating the law of the State. They get information from them as to political opinions and conduct of the owners, and in some instances arrests of citizens have been made and property seized upon Negro testimony.

THE SOLDIERS go, without hesitation into kitchens and among the Negroes, and encourage them to leave their owners. Some of them have been promanaging the streets with Negro wench.

THE INHABITANTS are filled with loathing disgust by the presence of this pestilent army. The disastrous effects of their conduct toward the slave population have been represented to Governor Parke, who has taken up his quarters here for the present. He has promised to correct the evil; but does not do it.

upon our slave population. He is clothed with power to restore fugitive slaves to their owners, but deems it prudent to avoid the exercise of such power to any great extent at present, on account of the presence of an abolitionized army; and will direct his efforts mainly to the establishment of such regulations at the different ports as will prevent the escape of slaves from the State, until peace is restored, when he thinks they will be returned to their owners. He will establish a custom house post office.

MOST OF the vacant dwelling houses in town have been taken by the Federal officers for barracks for their soldiers or quarters for themselves. Among others, the house of Mr. E. H. Norcom, who is absent with his family has been occupied by 10 or 12 officers, the Provost Marshal among them who has an office there.

NEARLY ALL the house furniture of the family had been left there.... even Mrs. Norcom's wardrobe. The kitchen and backyard have become a perfect den of thieving runaway Negroes. These have free access to every part of the dwelling. They have appropriated to themselves such articles as they wanted, especially bed furniture and table furniture; they have taken the whole of the lady's wardrobe; and even her bridal dress has been worn by Negroes. A big buck Negro was lately seen seated in the parlor, thrumming on Mrs. Norcom's piano.
