Narrative Report of County Club Work

By MARGARET CLARK

The 17 clubs for women met during the month of April with a total attendance 170. At each meeting the method of preparing milk and egg dishes was given by the agent assisted by Foods and Nutrition Leaders.

Fifteen attended the Foods and Nutrition Leader's School conducted by Miss Sallie Brooks, assistant Extension Nutritionist. Miss Brooks demonstrated the method demonstration of "Yeast Breads," training the Foods and Nutrition Leaders of 7 clubs who are to give the demonstration at the club meeting in June.

The Peletier Club selected two captains, wide awake and active members, each heading one-half of their club in a membership drive during the next 6 months.

Thirty home visits and a total of 719 miles were made during the 26 working days. 440 notices were issued from the office and 340 N. C. leaflets distributed.

Clubs For Women Curb Market

The Curb Market opened on Wednesday and Saturday of each week from 7:30 to 11:00 A. M. on May 15 the sixth anniversary was celebrated. Total sales for the month amount ed to $227.47.

4-H Clubs

The Home Demonstration club women held their annual Spring Federation meeting in the form of a Flower Show and Dress Revue in connection with 4-H Rally Day. The annual meeting of Federated 4-H Clubs was held with the vice president presiding. A king and junior senior queens of health were crowned. Selection of the king was based on 1936-37 individual health records and physical examinations. Each club presented a play or stunt and exhibits or work were displayed. The champion banner was awarded the Smyrna Junior Club, Beaufort Club won first prize for the best stunt, and Harker's Island carried home the attendance gavel.

4-H Service Club

The 4-H Service Club with 13 in attendance met and were led by Mr. Gossard, NYA Recreation Leader in a discussion, "The Advantages of Rural and City Life."

Bennett Gilbert, a 4-H club member of Catawbb, reports an average of 26 eggs a day from a flock of 32 Rhode Island Red hens. He has sold 17 dozen eggs to the local hatchery at a price averaging 15 cents above the local market price.

The Most Exacting Demands for Beauty

We are ever on the alert to improve our service. Thru the journals of our profession, and thru membership in state and national associations, we keep abreast of the latest developments in mortuary work. This means that the people we serve receive the advantages of new ideas and discoveries as soon as they are available to residents of the largest communities. We always aim to keep pace with progress in making funeral rites just as beautiful and impressive as possible.

He'd Walk Mile (Up) for Sonja

With their Detroit hotel crippled by strikers, Sonja Henie, famed ice skater, and her actor boy friend, Tyrone Power, walked up seventeenth floors. Then because Papa and Mama Henie were hungry, Power walked down and up again with food.

Press Gleanings

"Fiddling"

After fiddling it for years a Morehead City man looks into his fiddle and finds the name Stradivarius—after hearing that somebody lately sold for $35,000 a violin similarly inscribed. Take a peep into your old violin. If you see the legend "Antonio Stradivarius fecit Cremona," it is a good model, and if well made of good material ought to be worth anyhow $10. But that does not mean old man Strad ever saw it.—(Greensboro News).

SAND-FIDDLERS AND HILL-BILLIES

Another hill-billy we know personally is Aycock Brown, who is one of the state's most outstanding weekly newspaper editors. Aycock a Hillsboro boy, is editor of The Beaufort News, and down there in the flatlands we understand he terms himself the "sea-going mountaineer" or something like that. We can understand where he gets the "sea-going" but the "mountaineer" part is shrouded in mystery because Hillsboro just ain't got no mountains with the exception of some little hills over across the river that the folks there call mountains.

Still if he wants to term himself a mountaineer or hill-billy it's okay with us, although we've never seen a genuine mountaineer with one of these cute little bottle-grown mustaches—and we understand Aycock now has one, the lucky fellow. All we've ever been able to raise is just some blonde fuzz that doesn't look good when doctored with soot.

The Friendly Port

Two captains met one day, In a far and distant land. They talked of their adventures, And some of them were grand. And one said, "By the way, Did you ever go, to the Friendly Port In a city a mile from the sea? It is right on Bogue Sound, With a harbor fine— Better could never be.

Where ships come in from every port, And it takes no tugboats To bring them in, or take them out. You come right in and turn about, And in 30 minutes you are out to sea With or without your cargo, Just as you wish it to be. The people treat you royally, They are friendly as can be. You are glad you came, You hate to leave, And you want to come again.

The State is North Carolina, Morehead City is the town, And a better, more friendly port, I'm sure you've never found. "Why, no," the other one replied, "But I've heard before, All that you have told me, And a great deal more, And only today, a friend he wrote That I must be sure to go to this Friendly Port." —D

CAROLINA COAST.

The south wind softly sweeps the sea. In nature's sweet caress, Like loving hands that gently smooth The hard lines of distress.

The heavy sweets of flowers and vines Borne on the breath of bees, Lull in senses, as the wines Of golden scented lees.

Bird notes drip in liquid tones, Deep from their hearts' full well. In joyous praise and birds' content, For oaks, in which to dwell.

The tide comes in and lifts the world, To greater reaches far, Drawn by the moon to loftier heights As some soul to reach its star.
