OCRACOKE

On Friday, June 18 a picnic was enjoyed which had been sponsored by the adult Bible class of the Ocracoke Methodist Episcopal church the pleasures of which was enjoyed by a number of invited guests from the M. E. Church South, there were among us the oldest man on Ocracoke. More than eighty years, Mr. F. F. Gaskins too young to be called uncle Tom but known to everybody as Tom Frank another distinguished guest, the oldest woman on the Island and possibly the most loved, was with us Mrs. Charlotte O'Neal known as Aunt Lot who happened to be 86 years old, that day, being her birthday. She has served this community for 40 years as a midwife and has officiated at the birth of possibly 100 of the Islanders (now retired) but still young enough to enjoy a good time. After a generous report of all the good things on a short address by Amasa Fulcher the teacher of the class the event was dedicated to Aunt Lot by the Rev. M. W. Mann of the church. Needless to say that after a good sun-baking and blistering, and pushing of trucks over sand dunes, the day was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Ohio Will Have a "Little Ruhr"

A new "little Ruhr" is rising seven miles up the Cuyahoga river from Cleveland, Ohio, which will mark it as America's meeting grounds for iron ore and coal. The development is part of the Republic Steel Corporation's program of expansion. A $15,000,000 plant, shown above, is under construction, which, when completed, will be the world's most continuous strip mill.

He Likes To Photograph Egrets And Herons

Roy Eubanks of Beaufort has made quite a name for himself in WPA photographic circles. He is the official photographer for this district and shots he has made of various projects have been widely used in newspapers and booklets throughout the country. Most widely circulated of his WPA shots were photos of Port Raleigh on Roanoke Island which were submitted by Aycock Brown to the Roto-Section of New York Times and used in a full-page spread recently. Roy's favorite subject is birds and he has a very complete set of herons and egrets at Lenoxville Rookery. The above photo used thru courtesy of News and Observer is one of his shots.

Convention To Stress Richer Life On Farms

RALEIGH, June 23—Farm and Home Week at State College, August 2-6, will focus attention on the theme, "Building a richer farm life."

The program will cover most of the things that make agriculture and rural life more fruitful and satisfying, said John W. Goodman, assistant director of the State College extension service.

"Since the farmstead is a cooperative enterprise in which both husband and wife share the responsibilities and the benefits," he continued, "we are arranging a program that will appeal to farm men and to farm women."

"We are also desirous of having a large number of husbands and wives come to spend the entire week, as Mr. and Mrs. Steve Chadwick of Sara Sota, Fla., spent several hours here last week visiting Mrs. W. F. Taylor and Mrs. Lina Weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Taylor of Maxton spent Sunday here visiting Mr. Taylor's mother Mrs. Lena Taylor.

Farmers of Martin, Tyrrell, Hyde and Washington counties cooperated to sell 400 lambs in a pool recently held at Plymouth.

The Most Exacting Demands for Beauty

We are ever on the alert to improve our service. Thru the journals of our profession, and thru membership in state and national associations, we keep abreast of the latest developments in mortuary work. This means that the people we serve receive the advantages of new ideas and discoveries as soon as they are available to residents of the largest communities. We always aim to keep pace with progress in making funeral rites just as beautiful and impressive as possible.

tions, and lectures. Rural ministers of the State have been invited to meet with the farm people, and to hold meetings of their own during the week.

"We are particularly interested in cooperating with ministers to help the church reach more country people and to help them render a broader service in the rural community," Goodman stated.

The various agricultural organizations of the State have been invited to meet at the conference. The Junior Order Orphanage at Lexington will send a 25-piece band.

Recreation, band music, and other entertainment will be offered to help make the week "a real vacation as well as an educational event," Goodman pointed out.
