Attention To Layers Pays With More Eggs

RALEIGH, Aug. 28.—Successful North Carolina farmer-poultrymen pay almost as much attention to the way they feed their pullets and laying hens as to what they feed them, says C. F. Parrish, Extension poultry specialist at State College.

The main reason for this, the specialist explained, is the fact that abrupt changes in diet cause the birds to "go off feed" and result in lower egg production and slower growth, just as will the use of stale feed. If a change in diet must be made, Mr. Parrish advises, it should be gradual and extended over a period of at least a week or ten days.

Important, too, is sufficient hopper space, the specialist continues, so that the more timid birds will not go hungry. At least 10 linear feet of hopper, with hens eating from both sides, should be provided for each 100 laying hens, and a sufficient length of watering trough or number of containers to prevent crowding.

One practice now followed by many of the bettes poultrymen is to provide only a little more feed each day than the chickens clean up. The left-overs, if clean and dry, can be mixed thoroughly with the fresh feed in the hoppers. In this way, there will be no accumulation of stale feed at the bottom of the hoppers, thus reducing the collection of mold.

Feed mixers containing fish oil, as sources of vitamin A or D, should be bought or mixed in small quantities so that they can be mixed in small quantities so that they can be mixed within 10 days or two weeks, the specialist says.

"With egg prices good and prospects continuing bright," the Extension poultryman adds, "farmers will profit by providing the right combination of the highest quality feeds."

Ed Conley of the Cane Creek community, Mitchell County, has an ace-high cooling system for milk—a spring runs continuously over cement vats holding the milk.

Every Registrant Is Entitled To Appeal From Classification

Every registrant is entitled to appeal from any classification by his local board and no one has the right to deny him that privilege, General J. Vann B. Metts, State Director of Selective Service, declared recently.

In all cases local boards and government appeal agents must make every effort to insure protection of the registrant's right of appeal regardless of whether or not they think the appeal is justified, he asserted.

Any registrant who is dissatisfied with a determination of his local board may appeal the decision to the board of appeals and no one has legal power to interfere with his efforts to get a review of his case, the Director said.

Citing Selective Service Regulations relating to appeals, the Director pointed out that a registrant any person who claims to be dependent of a registrant, or any person who has filed written evidence of the occupational necessity of the registrant, may appeal from any local board classification.

The Regulations also provide, he said, that appeals may be taken by a government appeal agent for his local board area, a State Director of Selective Service for any local board area in his State, and the Director of Selective Service.

Pointing out that the registrant or his dependents must appeal within ten days after mailing of the registrant's notice of classification (Unless the time is extended) the Director outlined the provisions of the Regulations on how an appeal is taken, as follows:

"Any person entitled to do so may appeal in either of the following ways:

"(1) By filing with the local board a written notice of appeal. Such notice need not be in any particular form but must state the name of the registrant and the name and identity of the person appealing so as to show the right of appeal.

"(2) By signing the 'Appeal to Board of Appeals' on the Questionnaire (Form 40)."

The person appealing may attach to his questionnaire, a statement specifying the respects in which he believes the local board erred; may direct attention to any information in the registrant's file which he believes the local board has failed to consider or give sufficient weight; and may set out in full any evidence which was offered to the local board and which the local board failed or refused to include in the registrant's file, Director Metts emphasized.

Neither registrants nor representatives of the System are permitted to appear before boards of appeal, however, the Director said.

Penalty Of Excess Cotton Seven Cents

RALEIGH, Aug. 21.—The U. S. Department of Agriculture has set the penalty rate on 1941 cotton marketed in excess of the farm marketing quota at seven cents a pound, Tom Cornwell, Cleveland County cotton farmer and member of the state AAA committee, announced.

The 1940 penalty rate on excess cotton was three cents a pound. The 1941 rate was provided by Congress in an amendment to the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938. This legislation set a basic cotton loan rate at 85 per cent of the parity price and provided that the penalty on marketing excess should be one-half the loan rate.

In view of the cotton parity price of 16.49 on August 1, the loan rate for 7-8 inch middling cotton is 14.02 for gross weight. Thus the penalty rate, which will apply to all excess cotton marketed this year, will be seven cents a pound, Mr. Cornwell said.

The Cleveland county farmer reminded that while the penalty rate has been increased just four cents a pound for violations of marketing quota provisions, the loan rate has been increased by more than five cents a pound—from 8.9 cents in 1940 to 14.02 this year.

Cotton growers who knowingly exceed their acreage allotments may receive government loans at a rate of just 60 per cent of that offered to growers who planted within allotments. The 60 per cent portion of the crop which is subject to penalty, however, Mr. corn will be available only on Cornwell added.

The late corn crop in the Johnston County area will be "light" because of recent dry weather, says County Agent B. M. Holder.
