North Carolina History.

The New York Herald says: The people of North Carolina have been unfortunate in some respects. They have been but little addicted to boasting of their achievements. While other States have been conspicuous of gala days and in the historical records of the past the people of North Carolina have for two hundred years been making history without seeking to blazon forth their deeds to the world. Mr. Bancroft, whose duties led him to investigate the facts of North Carolina's history has recognized that the people of this state have accomplished in the cause of human freedom and in the vindication of rights ever held dear by free born citizens and has in his immortal pages, chronicled some of the events that make the advance of North Carolina upon the religious development. But unfortunately, the people of this State have been so isolated from the great centres, have had so little communication with the outside world have been so destitute of those channels of intercourse that belong to more favored sections, that the great important and unquestioned facts of their history are unknown to the people of other States. While the skirmishes of the New England States are known and read of all men events of earlier and quite as significant character that happened in North Carolina are known to gentlemen beyond its borders who like the late Colonel Peter Force of Washington Mr. Bancroft President Welling and a few others are fond of historical investigation or have been led by some of the partially known historical territory that belongs to this people. In view of these facts it becomes an interesting question what North Carolina claims and what can be established beyond all cavil questions? Briefly true.

That the first Englishman who ever planted a foot on the American continent landed on Roanoke Island in the month of July, 1585.

That the first child born of English parents on American soil was Virginia Dare, who was born on Roanoke Island in 1585, after whom the county Dare is named.

That the first resistance to the stamp act at Washington N. C., in 1765.

That the first blood that was ever drawn in defense of the people's rights and in resistance of tyranny, was at Alamance on May 17, 1771.

That the first meeting that was ever held in any of the colonies to declare separation from the British command to organize for armed resistance was in North Carolina in the county of Mecklenburg in the month of May 1775—nearly fifteen months before the national celebration.

Plain Facts.

Chicago News. This globular and useful world would smoothly sail along if you were from its surface whirled—Picked from the busy throng The sun would in the morning rise With undiminished light, And 'twould occasion no surprise If it should set at night. The things to which you now attend Would good attention get. If you should knock off work, my friend And quit your toil and fret. The thing to which you give yourself Would draw some other one, Would garner, maybe, prize and pelf The same as you have done. No doubt the starchy universe Could promptly fill its date. And find that it was none the worse If you should emigrate. You need the world while you are here No matter what you do; Its need for you is not so clear, So keep the balance true.

County officers, and perhaps other officials, were chosen, and as usual an appeal to every voter to the country from impeding an accident last week at a house came near putting an electric light system out of time. A blinding fire threatened danger to the serious results were being to the damage done in driving belt, the serious week been up to the standard of excellence; but was ordered by telegraph being installed, and the trouble are almost over.
