A Good Word for the Frivolous.

"Our besetting sin is to be too sobriety," says Margarett E. Sangster in the Woman's Home Companion for August. "I hold a brief for pure fun. Laughter is wholesome; mirth does more good than medicine. Not merely when we are on a Holiday, but m mid-current of the daily round weare the better for an interlude of amusement. The person who was born without a sense of humor is greatly to be pited. No situation is intolerable if one can see the fun in it. When I hear or see condemnation of a girl's gaiety, I am forced to the conviction that the grave censor never had a girlhood worth the name or else was born under a and should not be reproved when children are in their early teens; rather it should be rejoiced in, and their elders look back in tender wistfulness on their own days of such thoughtless delight. Be as frivolous as you please, dear maiden and matron, in the summer days and be assured that in its place frivolity is the sunshine that dances on the wave. Some of the most portentous people one meets, people solemn and severe, and given to frowning, fools underneath their masks. Some of the lightesthearted, gayest and winsome in their capacity for seeing fun and making it are among the great and wise. If one has no native sense of humor. one should endeavor by every legitimate means to acquire it. An evening spentata play which from the first act to the last scintillates with jest and irresistibly provokes mirts is a boon to tired folk; so, too, is an hour with a novel in which the serious underlying purpose is illuminated by flashes of fun on a summer day or a winter afternoon."

Follow this advice.

Quaker Oats is the best of all foods; it is also the cheapest. When such men as Prof. Fisher of Yale University and Sir James Crichton Browne, LL.D.-F.R.S. of London spend the best parts of their lives in studying the great question of the nourishing and strengthening qualities of different foods, it is certain that their advice is absolutely safe to follow.

Professor Fisher found in his experiments for testing the strength and endurance of athletes that the meat eaters were exhausted long before the men who were fed on such food as Quaker Oats. The powers of endurance of the non-meat eaters were about eight times those of the meat
