The Teeth.

By J. S. FROST, D. D. S.

The Sixth Year Molar.

When a child is from five to seven years of age his first permanent tooth appears. This is a large jaw tooth and comes above and below on each side, back of the baby teeth. It is called the sixth year molar.

Owing to the fact that the tooth appears at so early an age, few parents realize that it is a permanent tooth, and that every precaution should be taken to preserve it for future years of usefulness.

Dr. Farrier who is an authority on the correction of the irregularities of the teeth, says that this tooth is the foundation for a normal occlusion of the teeth.

If a child loses this tooth the ones which are to appear back of it will tip forward and the ones in front of where it was extracted will tilt backward thus forming a V shaped space, which is an ideal place for the lodgement of food and germs which will cause decay of the adjoining teeth. These teeth which lean forward and backward on each side of the space touch the opposite teeth with their corners only.

A child who loses these teeth soon after they appear on account of neglect and decay, are robbed of the proper function of these great grinders with which nature provided us for the mastication of our food.

Most of the permanent teeth appear between the ages of five and fifteen years. If the parents have had these teeth examined every six months during these years and carefully guarded them against decay, and have taught their children to carefully use their tooth brushes after meals, it will be little trouble in the future to save the teeth, from the fact that their habits are fixed and their teeth are now becoming hard enough to aid in resisting decay.
