Important to The Farmers of The State.

Many sections of the State are passing through the most severe drought they have ever experienced at this season of the year. Many of us, as we review the farm operations of the past three months, see where we have made costly mistakes. We also see where we hit the "bull's-eye," so to speak, and scored a success. We have illustrations and demonstrations, or opportunities for observing on the farms of others, the causes of these successes and mistakes. We should make careful note of these and they will serve us in good stead in the years to come. It would be a day well spent to take a day off at this season and drive over the country and observe the crops on the different fields and farms along the way, make inquiry as to date and method of cultivation, and previous crops grown, noting carefully the physical and mechanical condition of each field. In this way we can get interesting matter for discussion at Union meetings, Alliance meetings, Farmers' Clubs, picnics and social gatherings. It is thus that we can learn and teach some most valuable lessons in soil and crop management, and thereby make our mistakes contributory to our future success.

But the past, with all that it teaches, is behind us; the immediate future engages our attention: the harvest is yet; the critical period is just before us, and we should try to avoid making further mistakes. In the beginning of the season our minds and thoughts were engaged principally with the problem of proper fertilization, in most instances, methods of preparation and planting received secondary consideration. Many of us die not reckon with the problem of moisture, but just took it for granted that it would be forthcoming, and herein we find the cause of some of our most costly mistakes.

Moisture is the most important factor in the production of crops, and methods by which water may be stored in the subsoil and conserved for future use by the crops should receive our most careful consideration early in the season.

The planting season in many sections opened with less water in the subsoil than ever before, and the rainfall in most places since April 1st is below the average for this period by several inches. As a result, the soil is unusually dry, and the soil water unusually low for this season of the year. And, as already stated, we are just entering the critical period in the growth of the crop—the stage of growth at which most moisture is required to bring to good fruitage and maturity.

With a normal rainfall the remainder of the growing season it will require our utmost skill to produce a fair crop in many sections. We will have to conserve every particle of moisture possible, and herein we need to be resourceful, and perform the work in the most efficient manner. The only thing to do is to cultivate. Cultivate shallow, cultivate frequently. Avoid open furrows. The man who takes a shovel plow, or solid sweep and opens a ditch on each side of the row, as some are now doing, is guilty of murder—the destruction of plant life. Heelscrapes, cotton sweeps, harrows and cultivators, set to run shallow, not over one or two inches deep, are good implements to use in making a dust mulch. Lay aside the Dixie and shovel plow and thereby save the crop. Make all possible haste to stir the soil after a shower. Under present conditions it is imperative that we do this; if we do not, and a crust is allowed to form and remain for a few days the soil actually becomes dryer than if no rain had fallen, and the crop suffers most severely.

We should keep the cultivation going even if no rain falls to form a crust. In some instances it may be better to run a drag or a light roller constructed for the purpose to break the crust or compact the soil where too open and loose. Go over the crop every week or ten days; if allowed to lie too long, injury will be done by cultivation.

It behooves us as farmers to study the situation, to stand by our crops, seek advice from each other and try not to let our crops suffer through any mistake of ours. There is another thing that should not escape our attention—the scarcity and high price of hay. Many farmers are now paying $30 to $35 cash per ton, and $35 to $40 on time for timothy hay. The drought has cut short the hay crop in the North and West, and hay is going to be scarce and high next winter and spring.

Fortunately, it is not too late for us to yet grow the hay and forage that we will need. An acre or two sowed or planted to sorghum now, or any time in July, and well fertilized, will yield an abundance of forage. Millet can be sown, as also can corn, cow peas and soy beans, and no opportunity should be spared to grow an abundance of these crops to provide ample supply of forage for winter and spring.

In the fall, rye, winter oats, wheat barley, crimson clover and vetch can and should be sown for spring crop of hay. Oat and wheat hay can be easily and cheaply grown, and is far superior to the best timothy hay.

We recently saw a farmer paying $35 per ton for hay, and we wondered by what process of reasoning he arrived at the conclusion to grow cotton to buy hay instead of growing the hay himself. And as we ponder we thought of the remark of a ten-year-old boy, who stood in a cotton field, leaning on his hoe handle, in the middle of an afternoon, about the last of May, watching a farmer driving by with ten bales of hay on his wagon. He had passed early in the morning on his way to town and was now on his way home. As we drove by with the cultivator the boy said, "Papa, I have just been thinking. If that man had gone out last fall with his team and prepared half an acre of land and sowed to oats and crimson clover, and cut with mowing machine this spring and put it in the barn, it would not have taken him longer to do this work than he has been gone from home for this load of hay, and he would have made as much or more hay, too, and could have saved the money he paid for that load."

Was the boy right? Unless more than ordinary attention is paid to our forage crops from now on, many farmers in this State will buy hay next summer at prices higher than they have paid for it in many years. The hay crop out West is short. In fact, it is short everywhere, and we may reasonably look for exceptionally high prices for hay next summer. Begin now to prepare for the evil day. If your stubble land is too hard to break with a plow, run a disk or cutaway harrow over it at once so as to form a mulch and stop evaporation of the little water remaining in the soil. Then when the first rain falls prepare and sow at once with some crop for hay. A failure on the part of the farmers of the State to attend to this now will result in costly experience next summer.

Caught In a Rain.

Douglasville, Tex. — "Five years ago I was caught in the rain at the wrong time," writes Edna Rutherford, of Douglasville, "and from that time, was taken with dumb chills and fevers, and suffered more than I can tell. I tried everything that I thought would help, and had four doctors, but got no relief. I took Cardui, the woman's tonic. Now, I feel better than in many months." Cardui does one thing and does it well. That's the secret of its 50 years of success. Try Cardui.

Escaped With His Life.

"Twenty-one years ago I faced an awful death," writes H. B. Martin, Port Harrelson, S. C. "Doctors said I had consumption and the dreadful cough I had looked like it, sure enough. I tried everything, I could hear of, for my cough, and was under the treatment of the best doctor in Georgetown, S. C. for a year, but could get no relief. A friend advised me to try Dr. King's New Discovery. I did so, and was completely cured. I feel that I owe my life to this great throat and lung cure." School of Courtesy.

The Illinois Central Railroad will establish a school of courtesy throughout every branch of their system. That will be a real service to the road, for polite employes make an enterprise popular. It is very discouraging for a patron of a road to ask a question of an employe and get a rude mumble, or smart-alecky answer, which is frequently the case.

It makes no difference how high or low a man's employment is, it is as much his duty to be courteous as it is to be honest. No one has any more right to treat a man rudely than he has to hit him. And especially has a traveler on railroad or trolley a right to gentle treatment, for he is forced to go that way and very often is compelled to ask for information.

It is a sign of a low brow and of bad breeding to answer a polite question in a crabbed and crusty manner. But that is often done. How nice it is to fall in with a conductor, a motorman, a train boy, a porter, a ticket agent, a manager, who is a gentleman and answers your question kindly, gently and intelligently. That is often one's experience, but not always.

A woman is reported to have sat on her fiance's lap and to have written on his shirt bosom, "I love you." Writing on a man's shirt bosom, with the laundries merged for higher prices is a very severe test of love.

A Significant Notice.

Richard Croker, the day of his departure for his Irish home, said to a New York reporter: "It is the desire for freedom that sends so many Americans abroad every June. The Puritanical laws of America enslave us. These laws, with their total misconception of freedom and of enjoyment, are well exemplified in a notice board I once saw in a New England park. This board said: 'Pleasure Grounds. Notice—These grounds are for pleasure only. No games or play allowed.'"

Real Government Economy.

The growth of the United States in population is only a little more than 2 per cent. a year, but the gains in other directions are at a higher rate. That is true of the increase in the business and wealth of the people, the expenditures of local and state governments, the use of money by individuals and the demands made upon the public authorities for public service.

In view of that fact, the record of increasing income and diminishing expenditures by the federal government in the fiscal year which ended with the last day of June, is really remarkable. With all the drift in the direction of larger spending, the cost of running the United States as a nation was cut down about $3,000,000 below the figures for the preceding year, and this has been done in the face of an increase of about $13,000,000 in receipts. Economy is always doubly hard when there is more money to handle.

The net result has been a treasury surplus, for the first time in years, and the financial condition of the nation is all that could reasonably be asked. Now it remains as to whether the good record made can be followed up by continued economy and still more effective work in lessening waste in public business and further reduction of the burdens borne by the people who keep the treasury full.

Some Signs Are Deceptive.

The other day several New York friends of Tim O'Leary called on him at his office in the city hall. The New Yorkers began to boost their own town. "Why, we have it all over you in a thousand ways," one of them said. "The very appearance of things shows—"

"That's all right," said the assistant superintendent of police, "you know what Frank Stockton used to say about judging things by their appearance: 'Never trust a man because he carries a gold-headed silk umbrella. He may have left a cotton one in place of it.'"
