Entered as second-class matter May 30, 1908, at the post office at Burlington, N. C., under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

Wednesday, Feb. 28, 1912.

We want to again warn our republican friends that this is a presidential election year, and if you want to vote, you must qualify yourself by paying your poll tax. And this must be done on or before the first day of May this year. It may have been the custom heretofore for some friend to sometimes pay them for you, especially when you had had luck, and were unable to pay at the time they were due. But if you depend upon this being done this year you will be disappointed along with those who cannot read and write, and will be classed with them. Now we feel sure that you do not want this to happen. But unless you attend to this matter in person it will surely happen. The Dispatch is trying to do its duty to the party by warning you of what lies before, if you ignore the advice given, you will have no one to blame but yourselves. Pay your tax now, do it today.

The Lexington Dispatch a democratic newspaper of good and regular standing points out in a recent editorial, "Why Bryan Failed", in this he points out that the United States was looking for a man of firm business ability who the people had confidence in. In the three defeats which Bryan suffered he advocated policies that men were afraid of and would not uphold. The question asked is: "Will the people support Woodrow Wilson the man who Bryan stands for, when they have thrice turned down Bryan." Answer is plain to one and all alike. If Bryan himself can not be elected will he not tinge the platform of his nominee, or man of his choice with such faddish ideas as to frighten the conservative business men. Is it not readily seen that Woodrow Wilson stands little more chance if as much of securing enough electoral votes to make him more successful than the great Nebraskan. We will see.

Bob-O-Link Sure Sign of Spring.
We are told by old sure authorities who know that Bob-O-Link is the surest sign of spring. We are listening to hear the melodies of his charming voice as he is a dart of spring and spring without him is not complete. At other seasons of the year he is generally voiceless. We trust he will soon drive the dreary weather of the ground into its hole and his voice will be heard clear and sweet. Then the genial rays of the sun will warm the earth and winter will have fled away.

A Contest for all
We hear that some of our country friends want to enter our great Hustlers contest for the twelve grand prizes to be given away for the twelve best hustlers who succeed in getting the most subscribers to The State Dispatch. But that they are hesitating because some one has told them or they think perhaps that our town and city friends have the best chance of winning. To all such we want to say that you were never more mistaken in all your life time. Our country friends have a much better chance to win than those who reside in town. In the first place they have more time, and then too they do not have so much competition. Where there will be a dozen contestants from one town to divide the votes, there is not likely to be more than one or possibly two in the country. Then besides the country people take and read more papers than the town people, we of course refer to papers that are only issued once or twice per week. The town people take more daily papers and magazines, and hence they are harder to work for subscription to a weekly paper, than our country friends. There is nothing to this proposition if you are a hustler. If you are a hustling hustler you will win no matter where you are located. Wade in it is not near so deep as you think, and besides the water is fine. An automobile, a motorcycle, a pony and buggy, a diamond ring, a gold watch with a diamond set, a sewing machine, a bed room suit, a scholarship to a business college in the state, a double barrel breech loading hammerless shot gun, an automatic winchester rifle one that you do not have to load everytime you shoot, and that through rocks and Rail road spikes while you load, and a leather lounging couch is all worth having, and it does not matter whether the winner lives in the country or in town. These are valuable prizes and well worth hustling for. Get into the hustlers race, and stay until the clouds roll, and Everything comes to him who Hustles.

ENDS MISERY WITH CHLOROFORM

Yarmouth, Maine, Feb. 15.—Pleading for chloroform to ease his suffering, Harry Corliss, a brakeman pinned under the wreckage of a freight train which collided with another freight here today, was given a handkerchief saturated with the pain-deadening drug which he applied to his nostrils just before he and two other men were burned to death in the flaming debris before the eyes of a group of horrified spectators who were powerless to render aid.
The wreck occurred on the Grand Trunk Railroad near the station at North Yarmouth. Two freights collided with terrific impact and the wreckage had caught fire before the villagers arrived on the scene. Three men in one of the locomotives were buried beneath the mass of heated and twisted iron, around which was piled the wreckage of several freight cars, all burning fiercely. Two of the men, Ray Jordon, of Yarmouth, a fireman, and William Barnes, of Island Pond, Vermont, were unconscious and apparently dead, but Corliss was alive when the would-be rescuers reached the burning pile.
"For God's sake get me out of here," implored Corliss, who was pinned by an enormous weight of burning debris. Frantic efforts were made to release the doomed man, some of the villagers working so near the fire that their clothing was almost burned off before they were compelled to stop. Soon the fire reached Corliss. Begging piteously for relief, the man managed to cry:
"Give me chloroform; give me anything to put me out of my misery."
As a last resort Dr. George F. Bates, of Yarmouth, risking his own life, crawled on his hands and knees under a portion of the wreckage until he reached the suffering man. The doctor drew a large bottle of chloroform from his pocket and soaking a handkerchief with the liquid, passed it to Corliss, and backed out from his perilous position, just as a portion of the burning pile collapsed and fell around him. The last seen of Corliss, he was holding the handkerchief close to his face. The debris flared up fiercely, and the three men were burned to ashes before the helpless on-lookers.

No Official Report.
Rome, Feb. 24—A semi-official communication issued tonight says the government has received no official report of the operations at Beirut. The government recently learned that two Turkish warships were stationed at Beirut for the purpose of attacking Italian transports and facilitating contraband trade. Orders were dispatched to the Italian warships to capture them.

Queen Quality SHOES

TODAY waded shoes are the most popular. Yet the ordinary waded shoe lacks flexibility, the sole is stiff, hard, unyielding. "Queen Quality" waded shoes are different, they all have "Wonder Worker Process" Flexible soles, making them as flexible and elastic as a Turn Shoe. They are as comfortable as an old shoe from the first moment worn.
