George Washington Once Cussed U.S. Senate.

Washington, Aug. 17—George Washington actually swore. It must be true, because Senator Lodge told the Senate so in the course of a little lesson in American history today and produced the documents to prove it. Senator Lodge was discussing a proposition by Senator Newlands to send a committee to the President to confer on the tariff. Precedents had been cited.

"Yes," Senator Lodge said, "President Washington once did visit the senate and confer about a pending Indian treaty. But the discussion on the floor was hardly satisfactory to him. John Quincy Adams in his diary says: 'As the president left the senate chamber he said, 'I'll be damned if I'll ever go there again,' and he never did.'"

Senator Dodge produced the Adams diary to prove the incident.

Party Regularity Taft Battle Cry In Campaign Speech.

Washington, Aug. 16—President Taft today made his first political speech since that he made when notified of his renomination.

Addressing members of the Maryland Republican Editorial Association in the East room of the White House, he declared that presidential electors were "dishonest men" if they let their names appear on the Republican ballot and intended to repudiate the stolen nomination and vote for the candidate of another party. He asserted that those who were not for the Republican party were against it and should get out of the way.

"All we ask is a fair fight. A man cannot be in the Republican party and in a third party at the same time, and should be compelled to make his selection," said the president.
