MILLER IS NAMED VICE PRESIDENT OF SOUTHERN.

Office Force of Late A. B. Andrews Will be Moved to Atlanta.

The appointment Tuesday by Southern railway directors meeting in New York of Henry W. Miller to a newly created vice-presidency, is not only extremely gratifying to all of Mr. Miller's friends in Atlanta but means much to the city.

In the executive order confirming the appointment issued by President Fairfax Harrison it is stated that Mr. Miller will have his headquarters in Atlanta, where he will perform such duties as may be assigned to him from time to time by the President.

This means, it is understood, that the office force of the late Colonel A. B. Andrews, first vice-president to the time of his death, will be removed to Atlanta and its business, which formerly went through Raleigh, will center here. Atlanta will be the only city in the South to have a vice-president of the Southern road, the others, J. M. Culp, H. B. Spencer and E. H. Coapman, who is also general manager, being located in Washington.

At its meeting the board of directors abolished, as a mark of respect to Colonel Andrews' memory, the office of first vice-president, of which he was the only incumbent since the organization of the company.

The board's action in creating Mr. Miller's position was a recognition of his long and valued service to the corporation. He has been in the employ of the road for over thirty years, starting as a telegraph messenger; and by sheer pluck and native ability has risen to his present high position. For many years he was assistant to Vice-President Andrews. Five years ago he was transferred to Atlanta as assistant to the president. He has made many friends here since then, all of whom are highly pleased that his promotion will not take him from the city.

AT POLLS AND HOME.

A suffragist leader boasts that in addition to going to the polls one election day she got breakfast, luncheon and dinner for the family, testified in a lawsuit, went to the bank read the papers, organized a Bible class and performed numerous minor duties at home and abroad. This is as good evidence as has been presented of a woman's ability to vote without neglecting her household duties. Yet it is open to the fatal objection that the schedule of the day's activities makes absolutely no allowance of time for a bridge party, a tango tea or any of the other of the normal interests of the sex.

LOVE'S CALL WAS LOUDER.

Love had his way, after all. The call given Miss Ethel Sowell in a vision to consecrate her life to the heathen as a missionary was weaker than the pleading of her betrothed, Ernest Byars, and the young persons were quietly married.

A month ago the congregation of the Baptist church one Sunday morning was thrown into amazement when Miss Sowell at the pulpit renounced her love and told of a vision "received during a dream." That morning they were to be married, and the church was filled with friends who had come to witness the ceremony, announced to take place directly after the service.

"I shall go to Waco, to Baylor College, to study for mission work," said the bride-to-be. "There lies my duty. I shall not marry."

At first Mr. Byars was dumfounded, then took his dismissal as a direct rebuke from the Almighty, because he, too, once had made up his mind to enter the church, but had given up the idea of becoming a clergyman.

Miss Sowell went to Waco. One morning young Byars told his friends he was not going to sit calmly by and see two lives "go to smash." He followed her. Evidently his pleading was effective. They both returned to Elgin. The Rev. W. H. Horton, their pastor, performed the ceremony.

A well known vicar gives a curious experience which is well worth relating. It was this custom to point his sermons with either "Dearly beloved brethren" or "Now, my brothers," until one day a lady member of the congregation took exception to this, and asked him why he always preached to the gentlemen and never to the ladies.

"My dear lady," said the beaming vicar, "one embraces the other."

Proof that there are terrible times for the human mind is offered by the following:

"Gosh, life is getting strenuous."

"How so?"

"It was a heavy strain to follow four or five serial stories in the magazines. Now, you've got to follow 'em in the moving pictures as well."

An old and experienced lawyer decided to turn over part of his large practice to his son in order to start him in life. Everything went smoothly until on one occasion the son came in his father's office with a beaming smile upon his face.

"I say, dad," he said joyously. "You know that Wright case that you've been engaged in for the last twelve years?"

"Yes," admitted the old lawyer.

"Well, what about it?"

"I've settled it!" exclaimed the son.

"Settled it!" shouted his father. "You great, lumbering fool! Why, I gave you that case as an annuity!"

At a recent social affair the subject of marriage came up for discussion.

"Speaking of marriages," remarked one of the women guests, "I could never quite understand one of the Biblical references to it."

"To which one do you particularly refer, Mrs. Jones?" asked another of the guests.

"About marrying in heaven," answered Mrs. Jones, thoughtfully. "Why do you suppose there is no marrying nor giving in marriage in heaven?"

"That's an easy one!" promptly chipped in a sarcastic patron.

"I don't suppose there is a man in the place."

SENSE AND SENSIBILITY. A young lady was visiting her New York cousin and was being entertained gayly at dinner at one of the restaurants, says The New York Evening Post. She had taken a cocktail with the rest of the party and a little later her relative noticed that she was sitting rather limply back in her chair. "Why, Marion," she exclaimed, "do you feel that cocktail?" "Yes, cousin Emma," she replied languidly, "I feel it, but it doesn't annoy me."
