A REVIVAL OF SKATING

A Popular Sport This Winter, Indoors and Out—The Pantalette, Petticoat.

It looks just now as if all the world would go on skates this winter just as all the world took up the dance craze last winter. Our Hippodrome is displaying some wonderfully attractive skating notions in its present show, and many of the glass-enclosed roof gardens have taken up the fad and are giving a skating carbaret instead of the dancing carbaret. The sport is wholesome and appeals to young and old.

Piquant Skating Costumes.

Among the costumes, particularly youthful and chic, are the box coats, worn with short flaring skirts and tasseled Tam-o'-Shanters. The Norfolk model, too, is much in favor, and the sweater in some popular vivid tone combined with skirt of corduroy or tweed, is a prime favorite. Each of these suits allows the ease of movement so necessary to this sport, and the grace of line so much sought after in all costumes.

Fabrics favored for skating suits are tweed, in its various mixtures of soft browns, reds, and grays; sweater cloth, warmly and vividly colored; lamb's wool, so light and warm, and numberless novelty wools and other fabrics favored for sports use. Corsets should not be mixed in wide and narrow waists, it is being used for both coat and skirt. The colors are pleasing and of course the wearing qualities of corduroy and tweed are well known and appreciated, to require mentioning. Corduroy lends itself particularly well to the belted Norfolk models for golfing and other out-of-door sports, as well as skating.

Coats Are Unlined

The belted Norfolk, the sweater coat and the box model, now worn for sports are all of them unlined unless it be perhaps a shoulder yoke of satin or heavy silk as a sort of body foundation. This fact makes the fashioning of them at home a much simpler matter. Sport clothes, being more or less of a luxury, are of necessity expensive when purchased ready made; material, however, may be purchased and the garment made at home very reasonably. A particularly effective suit seen recently, was developed in a soft sage green English coating; it was reversible, the underside being checked in soft blues, greens, reds and browns. Collar, wide cuffs, labels and belt were made with the check outside; the coat was fastened with large brown leather buttons; a line of the buttons extended down the front of the skirt as well, adding a smart bit of trimming. Pockets are a great convenience for sports wear, and coats and suits this winter are well supplied. The various styles of collars too, so much a part of the new coats, are particularly adapted to real out-of-door wear. The wide chin collar, coming well up about the throat and ears is becoming and wonderfully warm and practical. The throw scarf of the same material as the coat, or of a finer fabric, often attached directly to the coat itself, is a practical and comfortable notion; what could be more ideal for skating than the wide muff cuff, into which one may slip the hands and remove them instantly if necessary, doing away entirely with the danger of losing a valuable muff and also the inconvenience of carrying one when the hands may be put to better use.

ARE YOU EDUCATED?

Various people have various ideas about what constitutes an education; but we have not seen a broader, higher and better use of the term than that made by a professor in the University of Chicago, who told his pupils he should consider them educated in the best sense of the world when they could say "Yes" to every one of these questions:

- Has education given you sympathy with all good causes and made you espouse them?
- Has it made you public-spirited?
- Has it made you a brother to the weak?
- Have you learned how to make friends and keep them?
- Do you know what it is to be a friend yourself?
- Can you look an honest man or true woman in the eye?
- Do you see anything to love in a little child?
- Will a lonely dog follow you in the street?
- Can you be high minded and happy in the meanest drudgeries of life?
- Do you think washing dishes and hoeing corn just as compatible with high thinking as piano playing or golf?
- Are you good for anything yourself?
- Can you be happy alone?
- Can you look out on the world and see anything except dollars and cents?
- Can you look into a mud puddle by the wayside and see a clear sky?
- Can you see anything in the puddle but mud?
- Can you look into the sky at night and see beyond the stars?—The Look-

A SAMPLE OF CENSORSHIP.

(The Raleigh Dispatch.) Detailed reports of the recent debate in the British Parliament over the censorship have reached this country. The most interesting revelation is that concerning the censor's defecation of Kipling which was accounted his most atrocious outrage. It appears that an enthusiastic correspondent, "somewhere in France" was moved to quote the familiar lines from the Recessional:—

The tumult and the shouting dies,
The captains and the kings depart,
When it got through the censor's hand it read:—
The tumult and the shouting dies,
The captains and the kings depart.
Sir John Simon, apologist for the censor, told the House of Commons: "I understand that the gentleman who cut out the three words and the kings felt it would be wrong to say, as no kings were present, that any of them departed."

Which moved Mr. Outhwait, M. P., to inquire: "Is the country still paying for the services of this idiot?" It is fervently to be hoped that our own scheme for preparedness will not include a censorship but if it should, that it will not be exercised by idiots.

A WISE DOCTOR.

(Philadelphia Telegraph.) Some time ago Brown began to feel a little under the weather and a physician was summoned. A few days after a friend called to see how the patient was getting along.

"Sorry to see you panned up, old boy," remarked the caller, sympathetically. "What seems to be the trouble?" "Just run down a bit," answered the patient. "The doctor says I will be all right in a short time."

"I see," thoughtfully returned the visitor. "I understand the doctor told you to take plenty of fresh air." "Yes," smiled the patient. "He knew it was the only kind of medicine that I could afford to get."

A PERPLEXING PUZZLE.

An Alabama contemporary tells of a situation in that commonwealth, brought about by recently enacted Prohibition laws, which constitutes a puzzle that neither the Attorney-General nor the Governor nor any other State official has so far been able to solve. A short time ago, it appears, a prominent citizen died leaving to his sisters an estate in which is included a quantity of fine wines, valued at approximately six hundred dollars and purchased before the traffic in intoxicants was outlawed in the county in which the testator resided. The legatees are desirous of disposing of the wines but in their efforts so to do find themselves up against the law, no matter which way they turn. Under the statute now in force in Alabama, they are prohibited from shipping the wine outside of the State or to any other county in the State. They can not lawfully sell the wine either at wholesale or at retail, nor can they give it away. On the other hand, they can not have in their possession more than five gallons of wine without violating the law and running the risk of having to serve a jail sentence. If the legatees, instead of being women, were thirsty Alabamians of the male sex, it is a safe wager that they would long ago have completely solved the problem to their individual and collective satisfaction.
