The Funereal Month of March.

An observant metropolitan barber says that he cau tell one's physical condition by the state of his hair!

The Bible tells us that with his hair gone Samson lost his strength. The Romans considered baldness a serious affliction and Julius Cæsar was never quite satisfiet with himself because his poll was bare.

The face, however, is the open book, and one can readily trace in its various expressions, lines, changes and complexion the state of the system.

The eye that is unusually bright and yet has a pallid brightness, the face upon whose cheeks nature paints a rose of singular beauty and flush, more marked in contrast with the alabaster appearance of the face, is one of those whom the skilled physician will tell you will some day dread the funereal month of March, because it is then that consumption reaps its richest harvest. Consumption they tell us is caused by this, that and the other thing, by microbes in the air, by micro-organisms in the blood, by deficient nutrition, by a thousand and one things, but whatever the cause, decay begins with a cough and the remedy that will effectually stop the cause of that cough cures the disease of the lungs.

That is all there is of it.

The cough is an evidence of a wasting. To stop it effectually, a remedy must be used that will search out the cause, remove that and then heal the lung and do away with the cough. This is the power, special to itself, possessed alone by Warner's Log Cabin Cough and Consumption remedy. This is no newfangled notion of narcotics and posions, but an old-fashioned preparation of balsams, roots and herbs, such as was used by our ancestors many years ago, the formula of which has been secured exclusively by the present manufacturers at great trouble and expense. It is not a mere cold dryer. It is a system-searcher and upbuilder and a consumption expellant. Where others fail, it wins, because it gets at the constitutional cause and removes it from the system.

J. W. Hensaw, of Greensboro, Pa., on Jan. 15, 1888, rep

Domestic Things Made Musical.

There is a store on Broadway where almost everything that enters into the household economy of people keeping houses or living in apartments is sub-jected through Swiss inventive genius houses or living in apartments is subjected through Swiss inventive genius into supplying musical airs.

The very chairs people sit on in parlors and dining rooms are made, after two seconds' manipulation, to give forth an air from the latest opera that will keep on filling the room with melody from eight to fifteen minutes.

The teapot or coffeepot on the breakfast-table is rendered musical without interfering with its customary duty to fill the cup. The bird suspended by the window resembling a robin red-breast perched in a beautiful gilt cage will, though not a native of the wild woods, sing quite as well and accurately, inspired by the musical machinery within its tiny anatomy.

Plates and dishes can be made to play tunes during meal hours and the bouquet of flowers on the centre of the table can have a bird precisely like one imported from the Hartz Mountains, called a canary, which will sing with sweet and dulcet notes.

Billiard balls, painted red, white, and blue, are turned into fountains of music.

Ladies' toilet cases are converted into music boxes without in the last degree music-boxes without in the last degree encroaching on the space required for perfume and powder-holders and the other requisites of a lady's dressing-case. In a glass inside the store is a pair of imitation greyhounds, and a pair of elephants true to life, and these are simply music-boxes in disguise, and so is the monkey who smokes a cigarette while he also plays the latest air from one of the minstrel shows.

also plays the latest air from one of the minstrel shows.

The smallest music-box is about the size of a man's average-sized timepiece, and plays an air as clearly and accurately as one ten times as big. The price of this is 35 cents, and the next largest, playing two tunes, $1.85.

The large boxes, which wind up by a lever and are kept in motion by powerful springs, range in price from $15 to $300. Those with bells in sight from $30 to $100, according to size: with bells.

to $100, according to size; with bells, drums and castanets in sight, $80 to

In addition to all the rest of the things made musical are water and milk pitchers, cuspidors, frames of paintings hanging on the walls, dolls, saucers, and stands for teapots and dishes.—New York Telegram.

"Cat-Tails."

"Cat-Tails."

The Rev. Thomas Morong has written an interesting account of the well-known "cat-tails" of our swamps. Their productiveness is enormous. He finds that a single "cat-tail" of average length—ay five inches—will yield 60,000 perfect seeds, and some larger ones may give 30,000. The seeds have a hairy perigone whole enables them to float long distances in the air. The plants often appear in swampy places long distances away from where they are known to grow, and this has been attributed to seeds brought in mud on the feet of way from where they are known to seeds brought in mud on the feet of water-birds; but in view of Mr. Morong's observations such a guess is not necessary to account for their appearance. There are but three species native to North America. One grows in Mexico and the West India Islands, and is an enormous cat-tail. A form found by the Rev. E. L. Greene had stalks fifteen to eighteen feet high, and a "cat-tail" of three feet. The natives of New Zealand make bread of the pollen of some species, and in the State of New York the leaves have been used for baskets, and the bottoms of chairs. Dr. Morong does not mention what we believe to be a fact, that the young shoots are used as a vegetable, as asparagus is used in the North of Unrope. The pollen is also inflammable, and used as a cheap substitute for the pollen of lycopodium.—Independent.

A number of youths in Shelbina, Mo., have organized themselves into an aid society. The object is to see that the poor widows of that town have their wood sawed and placed in the shed without cost. The boys go from house to house after having finished their own work and perform the mission for which they are organized.

Almont Barnes in an article on the natives of Terra del Fuego, situated at the southern extremity of South America, southern extremity of South America, says:

The doctors or "jakamusch" are the only "learned men," but are held in little estimation and have no authority. The doctor visits the sick as a matter of course, enters a wigwam with the usual gravity and with his head sprinkled with sand or ashes. He also wears a head dress of feathers of aquatic birds and indulges in landscapes upon his body dulges in landscapes upon his body painted in various colors. After getting the patient's idea of what is the matter panied in various colors. Are getting the patient's idea of what is the matter he goes into convulsion, makes horrible noises with his mouth and nose, and finally ejects, seemingly from his stomach, pieces of lances, points of arrows, etc., as Fuegans believe that sickness is caused by the introduction of such articles into their bodies by malignant spirits. If these violent remedies (which are not inflicted upon the patient, however,) do not speedily produce satisfactory results, the doctor is quite likely to be driven away with clubs and whips. The thoughtful explorer remarks that in this "the Fuegans are much more advanced than we are." It is further remarked that the ahility of these Southern medical men to hide things in their mouths is surprising, yet this is a part of their education, usually left to the patients elsewhere.

The Fuegans believe that after death

The Fuegans believe that after death separates the body and spirit the latter goes roaming through the woods and upon the mountains; that if the person was good his spirit will be tranquil and happy, but if bad it will be restless and will suffer; and that there are a good and a malignant deity, and both of these share their respect. Storms, rain and snow are attributed to the evil spirit, and the rainbow is considered a mark of his anger, at which women tremble, but men spit and utter insult. To the good men spit and utter insult. To the good spirit all pleasing things are attributed.

The Experience of Mrs. Peters.

Mrs, Peters had ills. Mrs Peters had chills,

Mrs Peters was sure she was going to die; They dosed her with pills, With powders and squills, With remedies wet, and with remedies with remedies web, and with remedies dry.

Many medicines lured her,
But none of them cured her.
Their names and their number nobody could tell;
And she soon might have died,
But some "Pelless" were tried,
That acted like magic, then she got well.
The magic "Pellets" were Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Furgative Pellets (the original Little Liver Pilis). They cured Mrs. Peters, and now she wouldn't be without them.

Quicker than the Telegraph

Quicker than the Telegraph.

When the first vessel completed the passage of the then new Eric Canal, in 1825, there being no such thirg as a telegraph in those days, the news was communicated to New York and to Buffalo by cannon placed within hearing of each other all the way along from Albany to each of the other cities. The signal was passed along in this way from Albany to New York city and back again to Albany in fifty-eight minutes. This is quicker than a telegraph message can be sent over the same route and answered now-a-days, considering the time usually consumed in the delivery at each end.—Waterloo (N. Y.) Observer.

TREATING THE WRONG DISEASE.

Many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous exhaustion, or prostration, another with pain here or there, and in this way they all present alike to themselves and their ensy-going and indifferent, or over-busy doctor, separate and distinct diseases, for which he prescribes his pills and potions, assuming them to be such, when, in reality, they are all only symptoms caused by some womb disorder. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, encourages his practice until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better, but probably worse by reason of the delay, wrong treatment and consequent complications. A proper medicine, like Dr. Plerce's Favorier Pressurption, directed to the cause, would have entirely removed the disease, thereby depelling all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery.
