Clark, of the Cincinnati Reds, the most successful "make good" player in all around ball of the season. Clark has made good in almost every position that a man can be put in on a ball field. Some of his hitting has been phenomenal and his base-running has brought out the fans to the freckly point, time and time again. When averages are made up there is little doubt that in the "all round" percentage he will come pretty near by at the tip.
