AMUSEMENTS

"Madam Sherry" Coming.
Every New York critic joined in superlatively praising the music and comedy merits of "Madam Sherry," which ran for a year in New York, six months in Chicago, and which will soon appear in this city. These lines are from the New York Herald: "It was welcomed with laughter and applause. It rivals 'The Merry Widow' and is one of the best musical shows seen in New York in a year or so long." The Post said: "The audience could not help humming the score, and it was heard in the cars and in the subway long after the curtain fell." "Madam Sherry" will be seen in this city at the Academy of Music Thursday night of next week.

"Jolly" John Larkins.
"Jolly" John Larkins and his happy flock of pretty girls and funny boys, in the new big musical comedy, "Royal Sam" will be the attraction at the Academy of Music to-morrow afternoon and night. Larkins has rallied around himself about all the talent worth having in the colored world of comedy song and dance. His success has been so great as co-star with Black Patti for the last four seasons that he has been able to create a sort of monopoly and plutocracy of a jet tint. His company numbers over two score of white teeth and shiny-eyed male and female funnies and fustlers. This collection of talented singers is headed by the merriest of fun makers, "Jolly" John himself who is a corker, in fact, a fancy-out-glass stopper in the way of a good cork, who doesn't need burn cork to be black or be merry, droll or hilariously amusing. Seats are now on sale.

"The Echo."
During her career, that has carried her from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from the Gulf of Mexico to northern Canada, not to mention several European pilgrimages and a trip to Australia, Miss Blanche Deyo has traveled so many miles that computation is impossible. This favorite member of "The Echo" company, the musical comedy success of the New York Globe Theatre, coming to the Academy of Music Saturday matinee and night with an exceptionally large company of capable players and a huge singing and dancing chorus, however, never makes a journey regardless of its length but that at its conclusion she does not step to the engine cab and thank the locomotive driver for having safely reached his destination. This same practice secured for Colonel Roosevelt great popularity in the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. Miss Deyo, however, has permitted the practice to grow into a superstition. She is firmly convinced that should she neglect to congratulate the man at the throttle for safely having brought his passengers to their journey's end, on her next jump some accident would be bound to occur.

Many a locomotive driver has been greatly surprised at having an extremely handsome, beautifully gowned young woman place a white-gloved hand in his naturally greasy palm, shake his hand earnestly and utter: "I thank you." Many of these knights of the rail are in ignorance of the lady's personality, but gradually her identity has become known until there is hardly an engineer on any railroad crossing the continent who does not immediately know that the fair charmer who is risking the cleanliness of her gown in order to reach the engine cab is Blanche Deyo.

FRECKLES.

New Drug That Quickly Removes These Homely Spots.
There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles as a new drug, othine—double strength has been discovered that is a positive cure for these homely spots.
Simply get one ounce othine—double strength, from Woodgill & Shepard's and apply a little of it at night, and in the morning you will see that even the worst have begun to disappear, while the light freckles have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.
Be sure to ask for the double strength othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove the freckles.

rather short, Miss Deyo was met in the Cincinnati station by several friends and in the excitement and greeting the usual handshake with the engine pilot was neglected. The following week, when the company was going on the other leg of the journey, at Gas City, Indiana, the entire special train was derailed and dumped into a ditch. Luckily there were no casualties, but the accident served to bring forth a solemn declaration from the actress that never again would she depart from a railroad coach without grasping the hand of the engineer.

"The Chocolate Soldier."
Of the world-wide fame, "The Chocolate Soldier," an opera bouffe treatment of George Bernard Shaw's "Arms and the Man," Englished by Stanislaus Strange, comes to the Academy of Music Monday evening.

The score will be interpreted by the Whitney Opera Comique Orchestra of 25 players. There are now three companies playing the opera in England. "The Chocolate Soldier" fairly sparkles with wit, spirit and brightness, and the music is tuneful, catchy and dreamy and sensuous by turns. In fact, the entire score is so dainty and charming that it facilitates as well as entertains its hearers. The famous "My Hero" waltz has been borne everywhere on the breeze, and is considered most incisive in its appeal and most musically perfect bit of harmonic composition since the days of Johann, father of the present Oscar Strauß, sent forth "The Blue Danube Waltzes," that have lived so long and sun themselves into the hearts of the world. It is epoch-making in bringing to the great favor of theatre-goers a true opera bouffe in which music tells the story as well as does the dialogue, in which every member of the cast is funny some of the time, though there is no special comedian, in which a full story is told without interpolated horse-play of any kind.

The story of "The Chocolate Soldier" has to do with a young Swiss gentleman forced into the Serbian army and who takes refuge in the house of a Bulgarian colonel, and captivates his wife, young cousin and also her daughter. The latter is engaged to a Bulgarian major, who poses as a hero. The Swiss chap is an engaging fellow, whose diet has been restricted to chocolate drops, but he is very voracious in his love-making and creates no end of complications. The bogus Bulgarian hero is finally exposed and the Chocolate Soldier wins the hand of the Bulgarian maid after the difficulties have been ironed out. It develops that the real hero is the son of a leading hotel keeper in Switzerland and able to overcome all the terrors of modern housekeeping.

The advance sale of seats will begin to-morrow morning at the theatre box office at 10 o'clock sharp. Mail orders must be accompanied by money orders made payable to John L. Crovo, manager Academy of Music, Charlotte.

World's Best Circus Coming.
The Barnum and Bailey Greatest Show on Earth is announced for two performances in Charlotte October 17. The day is swathed with great interest. A new and bright street parade, a new menagerie and a large company of European artists are promised.

This circus has stood at the head of the amusement business for more than fifty years. The policy of P. T. Barnum and James A. Bailey is still active in its management. These are the two greatest names in the history of any country where the show business has kept in constant touch with remote corners of the globe whence comes all wonders.
Nearly all great scenic novelties originate in Europe or Asia. No soon-

THE LAX-FOS WAY.
If you had a medicine that would strengthen the liver, the stomach, the kidneys and the bowels and at the same time make you strong with a systemic tonic, don't you believe you would soon be well?
That's "The Lax-Fos Way."
We ask you to buy the first bottle on the money-back plan and you will ask your druggist to sell you the second.
It keeps your whole insides right.
There is nothing else made like Lax-Fos. Remember the name—LAX-FOS.

er have they been exploited in foreign audience rooms than they are secured by Barnum and Bailey agents. Invariably novelties are introduced to America by this circus. When they cease to be novelties they are passed down to other shows and another budget of imported wonders takes their places. It is purely a foreign thing over 10 starting acts are presented by 400 of the leading artists of the world. This show employs 1,280 people. It has 700 horses. In its menagerie are 103 cages, pens, tanks and dens in which are displayed 1,200 wild and semi-domestic animals. Among them are forty elephants and thirty camels. There are four giraffes. One of them is a year-old baby the first one ever born or exhibited in this country.

The main performance is given in three rings, on two stages, on an immense hippodrome track and in a dome over 100 feet high. Among the acts are those of the balloon horse, a company of cream stallions that play on Swiss bells, a brass band of elephants, and a company of equestrian acrobats and wonderfully human-like chimpanzee, Charlie the first, who performs on one of the stages. He is the greatest bicycle rider and juggler on earth. These acts reach the utter extreme of sensationalism. There are any number of thrillers and the programme sparkles with the wit and humor of the fifty funniest clowns on earth.

The circus has a newly-built equipment. It was devised and executed in the foreign workshops of the show in England. Five long railroad trains are needed to haul it from city to city. In all there are eighty-five cars. The new outfit cost the management $3,500,000. With all these added improvements the Barnum and Bailey show stands at the zenith of glory. Never before in its history of splendid achievements has it been so attractive as now. It opened its spring engagement in Madison Square Garden, New York City, before the most distinguished audience that ever assembled in a circus arena. It made the biggest hit in all its career.

"Franz Liszt's Romantic Life."

The story of his career is romantic as any by Balzac. And the end of it all—after a half century and more of fire and flowers, of proud, brilliant music-making—was positively tragic! A gentle King Lear, following with resignation the conquering chariot of a man, his daughter's husband, who owed him so much—and, despite criticism, acknowledged his debt—thus faithful to the end (he once declared that by Wagner he would stand or fall) Franz Liszt died of a century ago at Bayreuth, not as Liszt the Conqueror, but a word-weary pilgrim, patted and flattered when young, neglected as the star of Wagner arose on the horizon. If only Liszt could have experienced the success of poverty as did Wagner. But the usual malevolent fate of the fabled endowed him with all the gifts but poverty, and that capricious old Pantaloon, the Time-Spirit had his joke in the lonesome latter years.

As regards his place in the musical pantheon this erstwhile comet is now a fixed star, and his feet are set upon the white throne. There is no longer a Liszt Case; his music has fallen into critical perspective; but there is still a Liszt Case, psychologically speaking. Whether he was an archangel of light or, as Jean-Christophe describes him: "The noble priest, the circus-rider, neoclassical and vagabond, a mixture in equal doses of real and false nobility," is a question that may be answered according to one's temperament. That he was captain of the new German music, a pianist without equal, a conductor of distinction one who helped to make the orchestra, and its leader, that they are today; that he was a writer, a reformer of church music, a man of noblest impulses and ideals, generous, selfless and an artist to his finger-tips—these are the commonplace of history. As a personality he was an apparition; only Paganini had so electrified Europe.

Freak Potato Vine.
Morroe Journal.
Mr. A. J. Greene, carrier on route 9, who keeps his eyes open for the queer and the quaint, has brought to The Journal office a big sweet potato vine that he says is the largest, but the vine is a caution, being eighteen and a half feet long. It was grown by C. F. Doster, colored.

About the Dictionaries

Among the many letters received each day by the circulation department are a number commending the New Standard Dictionary now being distributed by The Chronicle.

We reproduce three letters received yesterday morning and these will show what some people think of the dictionaries.

Circulation Department,
Gentlemen: The beautiful little dictionary arrived according to promise. It is an admirable book in every way, but to be more specific I shall indicate particulars upon the enclosed slip of "valuable features." This much is apparent at a glance and I have no doubt that the valuable features of the volume will be limited only by the use to which the dictionary is put. With many thanks, most sincerely,

Dear Sirs: I received my dictionary alright and am pleased with it in every way. It has more than come up to my expectations in every way.
Yours truly,

You are doing a great work in making price of the dictionary in reach of the poorer people and I want to thank you for my part.
Wishing you the success you so greatly deserve,
Respectfully your friend,
