

TO-DAY'S MARKETS

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, July 16.—The cotton market opened at an advance of 2 to 7 points on higher cables and sold about 6 to 10 points net higher during the middle of the morning on covering by sellers on the reaction of yesterday and fresh buying for long account. There was heavy realizing on the advance and fluctuations were somewhat irregular, but unfavorable weather news restricted aggressive selling for short account and the market ruled very steady toward the end of the first hour. After settling up to a net advance of 17 to 19 points on the new crop positions, the market turned easier on private predictions that Texas would receive rain by Thursday. Prices broke close late in the forenoon, but the market at midday was a shade steadier and a point or two up from the lowest in anticipation of a bullish weekly weather report.

Spot quiet; middling uplands 12 1/4 nominal. The bullish weekly report caused a rally of 5 or 6 points after the late forenoon break, but this was barely maintained owing to the favorable private crop advice from the Southwest. The market was more or less unsettled during the early afternoon with active months ruling about 4 to 6 points net higher.

Cotton spot closed quiet; middling uplands 12 1/4; middling gulf 12 3/4; no sales. Cotton futures closed steady.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, July 16.—Cotton futures opened steady at an advance of 6 to 9 points on good cables and the absence of any rains in Texas as were indicated in yesterday's private telegrams from that State. Shorts covered freely, an especially good demand coming from yesterday's sellers. Light rains were again noted in the Atlantic on the weather map and they increased bullish sentiment. The market was quiet, however, and bulls were not inclined to force the advance. At the end of the first half-hour of business prices were 12 points up on the active months. There was no trading in July in the early session.

Around the middle of the morning the market was firm and 14 to 17 points up on the weather forecast, which predicted fair weather for Oklahoma and west Texas and showers for the Atlantic. Buying for both accounts was steady, although in moderate volume, and offerings were scanty. The weekly weather reports at 11 o'clock were somewhat better than expected and private reports from Texas were encouraging, two features that again encouraged selling, and at noon the trading months were only 2 points over yesterday's last prices.

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, July 16.—Great Northern preferred was the feature of a fairly strong opening in stocks today, with an initial gain of a point, which soon increased. The other strong issues were Union Pacific, Reading, Amalgamated, National Lead and Steel, the last named opening with a block of 4,000 shares at a gain of 1/2.

Prices reacted after the opening but speedily recovered. Steel, Amalgamated, Reading, Western Union and Consolidated Gas and Erie first preferred all showing one-point gains. American Tobacco declined two points.

London Stocks. LONDON, July 16.—American securities opened steady today. Trading was light during the first hour but a good tone prevailed and prices ranged from 1/4 to 1/2 above yesterday's New York closing.

Wall Street bidding caused prices to have an additional fraction in the afternoon. Closed steady.

CHICAGO CATTLE.

CHICAGO, July 16.—Cattle, receipts 2,600; market slow.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS

CHICAGO, July 16.—Excellent crop conditions forced wheat down but selling was not on such a liberal scale as previously. The opening ranged from 1c to 1 1/2c to a shade advance.

Wheat rallied momentarily but there was a temporary relapse to a point lower. Closed easier with September 1/4 to 1/2c lower at 96 1/2.

Both sides unloading corn. September opened 1/4 to 1/2c to 1/4c lower at 67 1/2, touched 67 1/4, and then descended to 67.

MURDER LAID AT FEET OF POLICE

The five shots that were fired at Rosenthal attracted a large crowd and a few minutes after the incident the street about the hotel was filled with hundreds of persons. Reserves from several of the nearby stations were turned out to keep them in order.

James Considine, one of the owners of the hotel, witnessed the shooting from the rear of the lobby. He said: "I saw Rosenthal come from the hotel. He started as though he were going to Broadway and then stopped suddenly."

"I don't know whether he saw the men in the machine or not, but the sudden way in which he stopped convinced me that he was afraid something was about to happen to him. I know that one of the men in the car was a policeman."

Mrs. Rosenthal, the gambler's wife, was driven almost frantic when the messenger told her that her husband had been slain.

"This is the police again," she exclaimed. "It is just what I expected; I stayed up fearing that Herman would not get back safe."

District Attorney Whitman was notified of the murder within a few minutes and a half hour later he had opened his offices and was proceeding with a staff of stenographers and assistants to the West Forty-seventh street police station. He began his investigation of the murder there at 3:30 o'clock.

There were several witnesses ready to talk to the district attorney, but none of them appeared to have any very definite information to give. Their descriptions of the gambler's assailants were meager and did not agree in details.

Moreover, for an occasion such as this there is little doubt but that the murderers would substitute a wrong number for the one usually borne by their machine.

Sensational Climax. The murder of Rosenthal before daybreak brought the situation to a sensational climax.

The gambler left his home late last night, telling his wife that he had an appointment to meet Police Lieutenant Becker at the Hotel Metropole, at the corner of Broadway and Forty-third street.

Rosenthal reached the hotel, where he was well known, some time after midnight, and sat down alone, smoking a cigar and whistling as he watched the usual midnight crowd in Times Square outside.

Shortly before 2 o'clock a slate-colored automobile drew up in front. One of its six passengers got out and walked into the hotel, beckoning to Rosenthal.

Four Bullets Find Target. "Herman," he called, "come out here, some one wants to see you."

Rosenthal, without hesitation, came out. He had reached a point not more than a dozen feet from the door when a volley of shots rang out from the slate-colored car. Four of them found their target and Rosenthal fell dead instantly with a bullet in his brain.

Almost before the crowd on the sidewalk and in the lobby realized that a shot had been fired, the touring car was under way and disappearing in the direction of Fifth avenue.

Police Lieutenant File of the central office was dining in the Metropole with a party of friends when he heard the shots and ran out. Without waiting for details, he jumped into a taxicab and started in pursuit of the slate-colored racer. He gave chase for a mile across town before his slower
