

People and Things.

General Thomas Wilson, who died in New York on Friday last, served in the regular army for forty-three years. He was a member of "the famous class of '53," which included General Schofield, Sheridan, McPherson and several other men who became Brigadier Generals. Two of General Wilson's brothers have held commissions in the army.

Miss Mattie McClave, who has taught in Indiana schools for forty-five successive years, and who has among her present pupils grandchildren of some of those she taught in her youth, is about to resign and give up the work. She has taught in but three towns—Greensburg, Attica and Cambridge City—and ever since 1871 has taught one grade at Cambridge City.

Mrs. Lucinda Sampson, one of the very few women who lived to see three centuries, died on Monday last at the home of her son, in Cambridge, Mass. She was 104 years of age, and remarkably clear in mind and memory even up to the hour of her death. Mrs. Sampson was born in Newport, R. I., July 10, 1796, and was the granddaughter of John Fowler, chief of the Pequot tribe of Indians. Among the things plainly remembered by Mrs. Sampson was the burial of Commodore Perry, whose body was brought to Rhode Island from Lake Erie. Mrs. Sampson is survived by one son, David A. Sampson, seven grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

A tobacco company contributed for the comfort of the Confederate veterans during their recent reunion at Memphis, Tenn., 2000 pounds of smoking tobacco, 10,000 pipes and 10,000 boxes of matches. The tobacco alone was worth 60 cents a pound, jobbing rates. The 200 pounds was divided into 16,000 rations. Another company gave the veterans 14,000 rations of chewing tobacco.
