

How Atlanta Woman Suffered From Mileage Book Rule

(From Atlanta Journal)

R. N. Silliman, department manager for the S. S. White Dental Manufacturing Company, recounts an experience offering the most extreme instance set on record of the inconvenience, embarrassment and actual injury that may be occasioned by the rule forcing holders of mileage books to exchange the mileage for tickets.

Mr. Silliman is not a secker after newspaper notoriety, but has recounted the following facts to the Journal in the hope that their publication will be of interest and help to the traveling public in the present campaign to have the rule changed. "A short time ago," says Mr. Silliman, "I had occasion to travel north with my wife and along with other transportation which I purchased, I sent for a Pennsylvania railroad mileage book, asking that it be made out to myself and wife. The Pennsylvania road sent me by return mail a mileage book that is as nearly perfect as human ingenuity can make it; the book was simply numbered; no name was on it at all; the mileage was good for face value when presented on the trains by anybody. My wife and I and my friends, too, could travel on the same book if we wanted to. This I recount simply by way of contrast to our experience later with mileage books of other roads.

"On the return trip I was compelled to stop over at Philadelphia, while my wife, traveling alone with two little babies, had to come on through to Atlanta. Her transportation was all right so far as Washington, but she held a Southern railway mileage book in her own name for transportation from Washington to Atlanta, and I explained to her before she left Philadelphia that she would have to get the mileage exchanged for a ticket at Washington. I told her, however, that since the train arrived in Washington late at night, and since the Pullman she was in was the same in which she would go right through to Atlanta, she might ask the conductor to exchange the mileage for her, or if the conductor was too busy, might give the porter a half-dollar or a dollar for performing the service. She had her Pullman reservation straight through from Philadelphia to Atlanta.

"Well, in the evening, as the train was rolling along toward Washington, my wife called the conductor and explained that she wanted to retire early, and that it would be extremely difficult even if she sat up to leave her little babies alone and go out into a strange station to look for the ticket window at 10:40 p. m., and asked him, as a special favor, to exchange the mileage for her. The conductor was courteous and regretful, but he said there was an ironclad rule against his doing it, and he couldn't. Then she called the porter. He was sorry, but there was a rule prohibiting him from doing it.

"So my wife had to get out all alone, leaving her babies alone in the train, to look for the ticket window. She simply by way of contrast to our experience later with mileage books of other roads.

"On the return trip I was compelled to stop over at Philadelphia, while my wife, traveling alone with two little babies, had to come on through to Atlanta. BIG DOUBLE BILL TUESDAY NIGHT

The big double bill for next Tuesday night at Young Hackensmidt's School is undoubtedly the best show ever offered to the sporting public of this city.

The six-round sparring match between the little whirlwind, Billy Ryan, and Earl Moser, who can serve with the gloves, is worth more than the usual admission, but the wrestling match, as an added feature between two such prominent wrestlers as Young Hack and Jack Spaulding, the welterweight champion, is giving the public a show that could not be staged for the average attendance at the matches, but the Charlotte favorite stated this morning that he was willing to wrestle his end of the performance for nothing so long as the attendance would permit him to give the required guarantees that it cost to get first-class men.

Hack's matches, so far this season, has by no means been a paying proposition, although at times the houses have been large, it cost a great deal more than the average attendance to stage the first-class shows that he put on here.

This only inducement so far this season for the Charlotte boy to continue on the mat here is that he has made good in other cities, and it does seem with a man living here and holding the title of middleweight champion and making good on the mat, representing Charlotte in the clean sport, that the audience has failed to support his work as other cities would. At no time has any challenge ever been turned down by the local wrestler and the fact that the largest wrestling centers in America have men writing here goes to bear out the statement that Hack is a wrestler of note or so many recognized first-class wrestlers would not be writing here for dates, unless his work has made prominent this city in the sporting circles of larger towns.

If there is a man in the world that can best the Charlotte wrestler some information from those who can find one would be greatly appreciated. A shoe bet is always awaiting for those who feel that the local wrestler's master can be secured. No wrestler in the middleweight class is barred. A great deal of Hack's money is always in sight for any who are game to face him. So far there have been few in his weight equal his science and speed and we would like to see him matched against his equal.

Death Mrs. Vail Good Woman Gone

After a Five Days Illness Mrs. Vail Passes Away — Was Native of Wayne County — Widow Squire T. L. Vail, Prominent Citizen Charlotte.

Mrs. Jane Person Vail, widow of the late T. L. Vail, of this county, died yesterday morning at Taylorsville, where she has made her home for the past six years. The remains were brought to Charlotte last night and taken to the undertaking establishment of J. M. Harry & Co., where they remained until 9 o'clock this morning, when they were taken to Providence church, in Providence township, for interment.

Rev. L. R. Pruitt, pastor of the Ninth Avenue Baptist church, conducted the funeral exercises, which were held at 1 o'clock.

Mrs. Vail was in the 84th year of her age and until about five days ago she was in excellent health, when she suffered a stroke of paralysis, which was the cause of death. She is survived by one brother, Dr. B. T. Person, of Wilmington, and the following named children: Mrs. J. S. Grier, of Providence, who lives at the home place; Mrs. S. M. Rudoso, who lives in New Mexico; Mrs. W. S. Hollowell, of Goldsboro; Miss Cora Vail, who lived with her mother in Taylorsville, and one son, Mr. Willis Vail, who lives with Mrs. J. S. Grier, in Providence.

Mrs. Vail's maiden name was Person. She was a daughter of Mr. Solomon Person and Mrs. Peribee Holmes Person. She was born in Wayne county, but removed with her parents to Providence township, this county, early in life. It was there that she spent her childhood. Later her parents moved nearer to Charlotte and lived for many years in what is now Colonial Heights, east of this city.

Mrs. Vail was connected with some of the best families in Mecklenburg and Wayne counties. She was a woman of strong character and many lovable traits. She was pre-eminently a good wife and mother. Her life was devoted to those she loved. By faith she was a Baptist. She was strong in the faith, and was esteemed as one of the leading spirits of the Charlotte church, when a resident of this city.

Mrs. Vail and family lived for a number of years on moving to town, on East Avenue, their home being one of the most hospitable on that avenue. About six years ago Mrs. Vail and her daughter, Miss Cora, moved to Taylorsville. They bought a pretty home adjoining Mr. W. B. Matheson's residence.

Both were much beloved in their new home. Miss Vail and sister, Mrs. J. S. Grier, accompanied the remains of their mother to Charlotte, stopping last night at the Selwyn.

Miss Vail will probably return to Charlotte to live.

Don't Want Japanese Teachers. By Associated Press. Honolulu, Jan. 5.—An advertisement was published in a local paper by J. Tightfoot, an attorney, yesterday calling on citizens to hold a mass meeting to protest against the employment in the central grammar school here of Miss Tokai Miamoto, a Japanese. When the advertisement was read by Miss Miamoto she immediately resigned.

A Woman From Town Of Man

Tells Her Friends What Helped Her And They Tried It With Success

Man, W. Va.—Mrs. Grace Fortner, of this city, writes: "I was so weak last summer, I could hardly stand on my feet, and lost flesh every day. I was so nervous I could not bear to have anyone near me. The first dose of Cardul helped me. It is the most wonderful medicine in the world for weak women. Until I began taking Cardul, the woman's tonic, I had fainting spells, every month. Now, I am entirely cured of them. I have told my friends about Cardul, and they have used it, with great results. I cannot say enough for Cardul, for I know it has saved my life."

If a friend told you of the remarkable results she had obtained through the use of Cardul, the woman's tonic, wouldn't you think it worth a trial for your own womanly troubles? Thousands of ladies have written in praise of this reliable, time-tested remedy, for women. During the past fifty years, more than a million women have benefited by using Cardul.

Since Cardul has helped so many others, it should surely help you. Try it.
