It turns out that the chairman is getting all the exercise he wants in his appointing capacity as a result of that investment of power. In fact vacancies is about all there is to the list and Mr. Long says that, unless the appointees stay appointed when he has appointed them, he will have to send out in the county and have citizens of the rural districts come in and assess city property. He has filled vacan cy after vacancy in the list of tax assessors only to have the gentlemen appointed come back at him with the statement that they can't serve. He says, however, that "won't" is a better word than "can't" in this connection and that those appointed are succeeded by others because they "won't"

Chairman Long, using the power vested in him, has appointed a great number of assessors, who have consented to serve. They took the booklet embodying the regulation of their duties and read it carefully. Then they sat down and figured the time they would have to lose from their own business. The result has been that they took panic and straightway went ing service Sunday next. to Chairman Long saying it would be mpossible for them to serve. Whether he appointees are backing down from a fear that their business will suffer while they are serving the city or missioners do not know. They only know that there is a great deal of trouble in making the appointees stick to the appointment after they are ap-

Caton's Friend Before Recorder

Alex, Nivins, the man who testified for Ed. C. Caton whose conditional pardon was questioned by Governor Kitchin, was before the recorder this leigh. "If the world admires self-made morning upon the charge of being men why shouldn't it admire a selfdrunk on Easter. He was represented by an attorney and plead guilty to the charge. The farrant was amended so that he did not have to suffer for the disorderly part. He paid $5 and costs.

Ideally beautiful was Easter Sunday of 1911. The clouds and rain of the preceding day passed away in the night, and a glorious dawn made perfect the day toward which Christendom looked forward. The vernal festival was never more beautifully observed in flower and song, in sermon and prayer than yesterday. The churches decorated. The altars of the Catholic, Chuich St. Sold Episcopal and Lutheran churches were rich in lily adornment and beautiful with lights. The Methodist and Bap-tist churches were also banked with Easter flowers, making a lovely effect. The decorations at the Second Presbyterian church, which were directed by Miss Lucy Oates were the most beautiful perhaps of any. Great masses of lilies in a setting of ferns and towering palms made a decorative effect never seen in the church before. The services in all the churches were attended by as many as could be note heralding the fact "He is Risen, to the benediction, each service held was a beautiful expression of the Christian's faith and hope. The services at the Catholic, Episcopal and Lutheran churches were elaborate, as their rituals demand. Services in the Methodist, Baptist and Second Presbyterian churches, less pretentious but none the less beautiful. The music at each and all had been carefully sedence of it yesterday at both services.

Aside from the religious theme, the "Awake Thou That Sleepest," the adoration of the day, Easter Day, has other phases which made it memora The well known Handel favorite ble. It marks the great awakening of "I know That My Redeemer Liveth," the earth, the rising from sleep of it means a putting away of winter and the putting on of spring—a leaving off the old and taking on the new.
