

TRIMMED HATS

—AT—

$2.98, $3.50 and up to $5.00

It isn't in the least like choosing your Hat from an ordinary reduction sale. The big difference is that these are not marked down Hats but right new, freshly trimmed ones, marked away below what such Hats usually bring. There will be a hundred or more here Saturday including every latest style, marked at $2.98, $3.50, $4.00 to $5.00 each. For quality and newness you will say they ought to sell for at least a dollar more than these fuses.

Sailor Hats at 98 Cent Each

The plain Sailors are to be quite popular this season. Here are some new ones we will sell Saturday at less than regular prices. The values run up to $1.50 and our price is 98c. There are in Blacks, Whites and Burnt Straws, either the plain Knox or roll brims.

ONE OF KIPLING'S LATEST POEMS

If you can keep your head when all about you
Are losing theirs—and blaming it on you;
If you can trust yourself when all men doubt you,
But make allowance for their doubting too;
If you can wait and not be tired by waiting,
Or being hated don't give way to hating,
And yet don't look too good, nor talk too wise.

If you can dream—and not make dreams your master;
If you can think—and not make thoughts your aim;
If you can meet with Triumph and Disaster
And treat those two impostors just the same;
If you can bear to hear the truth you've spoken,
Twisted by knaves to make a trap for fools,
Or watch the things you gave your life to,
Broken, and stoop and build 'em up with worn-out tools.

If you can make one heap of all your winnings
And risk it on one turn of pitch-and-toss,
And lose, and start again at your beginnings,
And never breathe a word about your loss;
If you can force your heart and nerve and sinew
To serve your turn long after they are gone,
And so hold on when there is nothing in you
Except the will which says of them:
"Hold on."

If you can talk with crowds and keep your virtue,
Or walk with kings—nor lose the common touch,
If neither foes nor loving friends can hurt you,
If all men count with you, but none too much;
If you can fill the unforgiving minute
With sixty seconds' worth of distance run,
Yours is the Earth and everything that's in it,
And—which is more—you'll be a Man, my son.

The person who can boast of a quiet, easy-going disposition holds the key to much happiness. It means a great deal in this trying age of arduous application and varying pleasure and disappointment to be able to move along serenely through life untouched by bitter wranglings and personal enmities. Prejudice plays but a small part in such a person's existence. He is busy with himself all the while with the better things of life and enriching his treasury with all that is good and true and worth while, and he has no time to cultivate these unfortunate prejudices, which would probably present themselves were he on the lookout for them. Instead of prejudicing others the calm, consistent nature merely concerns itself about the possession of those friendships with which it sympathizes.

One reason for our prejudices is jealousy pure and simple. There are few persons who are willing to admit that the latter quality has any part in their moral make-up, but that it exists to a greater or lesser degree in nearly every nature is unquestionable.—Charleston News and Courier.

MRS. GLASGOW COMPLIMENTED.

Just previous to her return to Charlotte from Columbia, her old home, where she had been visiting Mrs. Robt. Glasgow was extended a charming hospitality, which Sunday's State tells of as follows:

"In compliment to Mrs. Robert Glasgow, before her return to her home in Charlotte after a three weeks' visit here, Miss Agnes McMaster entertained on Tuesday afternoon at a lovely garden party at her home on Laurel street. The affair assembled Mrs. Glasgow's special friends who spent a delightful afternoon in the old-fashioned garden. The dainty tea table was set beneath the rose arbor and Miss Anna Heyward Taylor presided there, dainty refreshments being served by a corps of efficient waiters in the persons of several of Mrs. Glasgow's men friends of her unmarried days here. About 75 guests called during the afternoon and enjoyed it as one of the pleasantest of the week."

ELIZABETH COLLEGE ALUMNAE BANQUET.

The annual alumnae banquet of Elizabeth College was held Saturday night in the dining hall of the college, which was beautifully decorated in smilax, ferns and palms for the occasion. The tables were arranged in the form of a diamond and at the corner of each table was a huge bowl of English marquisettes and asters, thus carrying out the college colors in the table decorations.

Mrs. C. S. McLaughlin, president of the Alumnae Association, acted as toastmistress and made a most gracious address of welcome to the class of 1911, after which for the various toasts. The first toast, "What Elizabeth Stands For," was responded to by Miss Zella Corriher, of China Grove, of the class of 1909. "Co-education vs. Woman's College," was responded to by Miss Emma DeWody, of Pine Bluff, Ark., class of '02. Miss Carrie Mae Probst, from Baltimore, class of '01, responded to the toast, "Our Alma Mater." After the response to the toasts the roll of the classes was called and the presidents or representatives of the classes responded as follows:

Miss Nan Koenig, 1900, of Charleston, S. C.; Miss Agnes Summer, 1901, of Newberry, S. C.; Miss Margaret, 1907, of Charlotte, of Charlotte; Miss Vera Mauney, 1905, of Philadelphia, Pa.; Miss Zula Hedrick, 1909, of Lexington; Miss Hazel Robinson, 1910, of Charlotte; Miss Hazel Albright, 1911, or Burlington.

An elaborate course banquet was served by the caterer from the Manufacturers' Club.

ELIZABETH CLASS HEARS SERMON BY DR. L. A. FOX

The baccalaureate services of Elizabeth College, at St. Mark's Lutheran church attracted a congregation yesterday morning that more than filled that beautiful edifice. The church was crowded.

The church was set with Easter lilies and ferns, and with the white and gold altar cloths, made an effect most beautiful. In the middle of the church, where the aisles cross, a pyramid of palms and ferns added to the beauty of the floral adornment.

The graduating class occupied the seats of honor, and it can be truly said that no handsomer class ever wore the cap and gown at Elizabeth than the class of '11.

President King, of Elizabeth, conducted the opening service, after which Rev. Dr. L. A. Fox, of the faculty of Roanoke College, Roanoke, Va., delivered the sermon of the occasion.

Sermon.

Dr. Fox announced as his text II. Corinthians 4:18, "For the things which are seen are temporal, but the things which are not seen are eternal." The text was a peculiarly appropriate one for the discourse, which was a plea for the cultivation of the spiritual as being the only permanent and enduring part of the personality.

"It was on this idea set forth in this text that Plato based his immortal system of idealism," said the speaker. This is also St. Paul's test of reality. Accepting this principle, we are called upon frequently to revise our estimate of things. Many things that we have looked up as visionary we come to realize are the most real and lasting things in life. Mind is more real than matter. Motions of our feel that we are sure of our bodies, but are in doubt about our minds. This is because the first impressions we receive come through our sense and the first lessons we learn are about our bodies. Our bodies have been so closely identified with all our thoughts and with all our conscious existence that we feel as if the body is the real person and the mind only a fraction of the brain. "Every atom in the human body, so physiologists tell us, changes once in seven years and yet throughout all this change and in spite of it there remains the consciousness of personal identity. Mental work is more real than physical work. This is proven in the case of many great men. Take for example the Apostle Paul. The period of his work extended over a period of thirty years, but in that time he established churches which long survived him, and though they have now passed away, his spirit still lives in the membership of thousands of succeeding churches and is as strong as ever.

"Once the most famous name in the financial world was Weller. Though now the name is almost forgotten. The spirit he infused into the realm of finance, however, still exists—just so will the names of Rockefeller, Carnegie and Morgan be forgotten, but as long as men are interested in financial matters the spirit infused into the world of finance will still be felt. It is the spiritual and unseen part of man that is imperishable and enduring. "Scientists tell us that back of man and long before his creation there was a lower order of animals, that back of the animal there was an order of fishes, etc., on back to a protoplasm as the lowest order of life and that back of that was chaos. The Holy Bible tells us that before everything there was God, and science cannot deny it. There must have been a great first cause and it must have been self-existent. You may call it matter, you may call it mind, you may call it God. It hides itself behind invisible laws, but the one thing certain is that it exists."

"Agreeing that the first cause is mind the speaker contended that there cannot be anything in the effect which is not in the cause. The stream cannot rise higher than its source. If we are persons then our creator must be a person."

Finance Committee To Meet Tonight

With Chairman E. W. Thompson presiding, the finance committee of the board of aldermen will meet this evening in the council chamber.

The budget for the year will be made out and from the appropriations submitted the members of the executive board will act in their disposition on appeals for increase in salaries from present city officers.

It is the first meeting of the committee since it was appointed last week by Mayor Bland. There are seven members and Mr. Thompson is the chairman.

Said He Gave His Hungry Friend Food

Sam Harper is a negro who works in the Selwyn hotel, or who rather has been working there. Sam got fed by the chef every morning at 10 o'clock, and with even regularity another negro named Sam Miller, who rooms with Harper, would hang around. The chef caught this other negro taking away a hamburger steak, some bread and some butter and a piece of an egg. He became aggravated and had the two arrested.

Harper told the recorder this morning that he did not want all of the breakfast given him the morning in question and that he presented the leavings to his friend. His friend, of course, corroborated him in this statement.

Judge Smith found them guilty of trespass and suspended judgment by their payment of the costs.
