Wolgast Wins Fight In Thirteenth Round—A Furious Battle

By Associated Press. San Francisco, Cal., July 5.—Champion Ad Wolgast, fighting true to form, retained his title yesterday afternoon by knocking out Owen Moran, of Birmingham, England, in the thirteenth round of their scheduled 20-round battle in the Eighth street open air arena.

Wolgast knocked out the Englishman in the first minute of the fighting in this round. The lightweights had been going at a terrific pace up to the very end, with the honors first with one and then with the other.

Wolgast, rushing the Briton into a neutral corner in the thirteenth, ripped a right-hand uppercut into the stomach at close quarters, following with two similar punches that sent the game little Englishman to the canvas helpless and gasping, while the arm of the referee tolled off the ten seconds.

Fight By Rounds. The ring was cleared at 3:05 p. m. and time was called at 3:06. Round 1.—After shaking hands they closed in slowly and almost immediately the crowd yelled for the referee to break them apart.

Moran protested that Wolgast was "butting" and the crowd jeered. Wolgast broke a clinch with two powerful full rights to the jaw and they mixed it, each fighting viciously. They went to close quarters when Wolgast hooked his left viciously to the jaw. Then he started the blood from the Briton's mouth with a volley of short-arm lefts. A hard body blow by the champion closed the round which was in Wolgast's favor.

Round 2.—Moran's supporters shouted at him to keep away but the Englishman rushed in. Wolgast rocked his head with short arm punches and paved the way for a volley of lefts by sending in rights to his stomach. Moran, fighting back gamely, sent Wolgast across the ring with a hard right to the jaw. Wolgast bled from the nostrils as Moran followed with his advantage by slipping the champion several times with hard left and right punches to the face and head.

Round 3.—Wolgast covered up, crouching low and missed a terrific left swing intended for the jaw. They roughed it head to head, both scoring frequently while in this position. Wolgast almost floored his man with a left swing to the jaw and then closed in, lashing out with left and right. Wolgast sent three lefts in succession to the body and received in return a stiff right to the jaw. The round was even.

Round 4.—Wolgast's right eye was badly discolored and Moran's mouth was bleeding as they toed the mark. Moran shot a stiff left to the face and again he roughed it with their arms locked. Wolgast was doing the greater execution. Moran drove a straight right to the jaw and then clouted the champion with a left to the same place. Wolgast sent his right with great force to the body and they seemed disinclined to break from the clinch. Wolgast hooked a left to the body and drove the Briton against the ropes. They were quickly back in the center of the ring fighting like tigers. Wolgast's seconds taunted Moran, to which the Briton replied: "He won't get me today," and then protested vigorously to Referee Welsh that the champion was intentionally "elbowing him." Moran had a shade.

Round 5.—They clinched with Wolgast uppercutting to the face with right and left. Moran jarred the champion with a short-arm right to the jaw. Wolgast swung wildly and Moran rammed him twice more with rights to the face. A long clinch followed. Wolgast breaking it with a hard right to the face. They danced about the ring and Wolgast landed two to the jaw with short rights. Wolgast seemed the stronger as the bell ended an even round.

Round 6.—The fighters slowed up a bit at the outset of the round and then Moran shot a straight left to the face. They went to close range, Wolgast landing several rights over the kidneys. They fought at a hot pace against the ropes, each scoring long-range rally, both landing lefts to the face and both spitting blood. Moran, breaking from a clinch, rocked the champion's head with a right hook and the round ended with the men mixing it at a fast clip. The round was about even.

Round 7.—Up to this stage Moran apparently had landed the cleaner punches but seemed to be the weaker of the two. They at once went into a clinch and a heart-breaking rally followed, Moran having much the better of the wicked exchange. Wolgast crowded Moran against the ropes, the Englishman making a determined stand. Referee Welsh finally parted them for the first time, Wolgast, standing uppercut to the body with telling effect and Moran reeled across the ring to the ropes. Wolgast shot a left to the jaw that sent Moran hurling against the ropes and the bell ended a round much in favor of the champion.

Round 8.—Moran found Wolgast's face thrice with his left. They clinched and Wolgast drove his right powerfully to the kidneys. Moran almost sent the champion through the ropes with a rush and then went nearly through himself from the force of his onslaught.

Wolgast drove a terrible left to the stomach and followed it with right uppercuts to the jaw. Wolgast started the blood in a stream while like Briton's mouth and Moran wilted like a leaf. Wolgast sent in a storm of blows, following his man about the ring and was using both hands with equal facility. Moran went to his corner with a bloody face and appeared to be in sore straits. Wolgast had all the better of the round, with Moran tiring.

Round 9.—Wolgast chatted with friends about the ring during the minute's rest. At the gong he rushed to close quarters, sending his right to the kidneys. Moran retaliated with two straight rights to the face and the champion swung back wildly. However, he landed several hard rights and lefts to the stomach and the round closed with the fighting going at an awful pace. Wolgast almost sent the Englishman through the ropes with heavy punches but Moran came back gamely and scored frequently on the body. Another rally followed with both fighters apparently suffering from the hurricane pace. Wolgast had the better of the round.

Round 10.—Wolgast forced the issue but was met with a straight right to the jaw and they slowed up. The champion then swung his left to the jaw and almost sent the Englishman through the ropes with right and left to the body and face. Moran brought the crowd to its feet when he met Wolgast at his own game, beating him to the punch and starting the blood from the champion's mouth.

Wolgast slowed up and they rested in a clinch. Moran swung a hard right to the jaw and they were in another rally when the bell clanged. It was Moran's round. He was cheered to the echo.

Round 11.—Moran opened with two lefts to the face and a moment later shot two more to the same place and escaped a return. They clinched and exchanged rights to the face. Moran, after blocking several rights drove left to the face. Wolgast countered with slashing body punches, but Moran did not give way an inch. The Briton swung right and left to the jaw and cleverly escaped the champion's vicious assaults. It was Moran's round and he appeared to be gaining strength.

Round 12.—They clinched, hammering away at each other's body and face. Wolgast sent two right uppercuts to the body. Moran shot a straight left to the face and another to the nose. Wolgast retaliating with two forceful body punches. Moran swung his right to the jaw at long range and quickly followed it with a left to the same mark. Wolgast started Moran's mouth bleeding with a hard right just as the bell rang and the Briton spat a tooth. Even round.

Round 13.—Wolgast rushed desperately and finally forced the Briton into a corner. They had not been fighting thirty seconds, when the champion shot his right with terrific force to the middle of the stomach. The impact of the blow was heard clear across the arena. Quick as a flash Wolgast sent two more rights to the stomach and as Moran began to fall, a left hook found the jaw. Moran went to the floor with his mouth open and his eyes glassy.

He was counted out while in a recumbent position.

Why George Kept Quiet. A man, but lately married, went out to post a letter, and as the lamps had not been lit in the suburban road in which he dwelt he could only dimly see his way. A short distance up the road he met, as he thought, his wife, who had been out to tea, and as he went past he just whispered: "I shall be with you in a minute."

Immediately after he had said these words he saw the lady turn a startled look upon him and then hurry away; and the horrible idea occurred to him that it was not his wife after all and that in the darkness he had made a mistake. He decided to say nothing about the matter and quickly disappeared.

When he returned home he found his wife waiting for him, and she at once greeted him with the words: "Oh, George, I have had such a frightful experience! I was just coming down the road when a man tried to stop me, and said, 'All right, my dear; I shall be with you in a minute, and I've been so much alarmed.'"

George was just about to explain, when an idea came to him. "What sort of a man was it, he asked."

"Oh!" replied the wife, "I saw him quite plainly, and a more villainous face I never beheld in my life. He was a perfect monster, with crime stamped upon every feature."

George decided it was best to say nothing after all.—San Francisco Star.
