Seeking Efficiency. This, although to no such deeply discouraging degree is the situation with nearly all business or at least with a very large part of Trust company reserve with clearing gin of profit is very low or has disfurther expense reduction and added intense aplication of greater-efficiency systems, and in all lines there is steady effort towards these. There is much room for them. This country has gone along so fast that such a thing as apprentice training of the younger men has been neglected. In the rush of business men have taken on and put at work without the least capability and training. The pour-ing in of demand for product has left the older experienced men no time to train the inexperienced, and it has been the habit to let them do what they could at immense loss of efficiency, and these men have grown up unskilled and shiftless except where of their own volition by reason of fortunate temperament they have trained themselves.. All this must be reversed and many institutions, even of the higher class, like banking ing house members carrying twenty- houses, are devoting much attention to the thorough training of their mer by specialists in order to produce the utmost efficiency-the elimination of waste and consequent increase of prof-

Taking iron and steel as the most reliable indications of the trend of business conditions the betterment this week has been decided. According to the Iron trade journals, reports from the various markets, are becoming much brighter. Chicago and Cincinnat inquiries are remarkably good and Cleveland reports pig iron demand showing more life than for months Pittsburg, our correspondent, tells us is exhibiting a better demand for pig iron and a little improvement in steel. The July shutdown of finishing mills and steel works will not be as extended as usual owing to the improvement in demand for finished ma terial. Within the last two weeks the steel companies have put into blast a number of additional furnaces and an James A.
