DITTO ALL THIS WEEK FOR BUGS

Special to The News.
Winston-Salem, N. C., July 29.—In a game that was replete with sensational playing by the individual members of both teams, the Twins took the second game of the series here yesterday afternoon by the score of 4 to 1.

Both teams got the same number of hits but the locals were able to bunch their nine and get results with them, while the visitors' hits were so widely separated that they could only get one run across. Bauswine pitched for the Hornets and was in excellent form only allowing four men free transportation to the initial sack and forcing five Twins to bat three line drives to the catcher. Boyle worked for the local talent and acted as a peacemaker for the hectic twister of the waterless city, as both men were hit for the same number, each walked four, but Boyle only fanned four. The sensational nature of the support given the local sinner was partly responsible for the game going in his direction.

Agnew and Garman handled the stela stuff for the visitors and were given round after round of applause by the fans. McMillan also chunked one to the home plate for the center garden that was good for several rounds of cheers. Shumaker and Stewart were the star performers for the locals.

The story as told by the unprejudiced official:

Winston-Salem:	A	B	R	H	P	O	A	E

SWATFEST GOES TO ANDERSON

Special to The News.
Anderson, S. C., July 29.—Only 25 hits were secured off three pitchers in the game here yesterday afternoon that went for a total of eight runs for the Electricians and three for the visiting Spinners. Ridgeway opened the game for the visitors and had nothing but the habit of throwing ones that were already hit for extra bases. He retired in the fourth and Big Liz Cashion sauntered into the box out somehow the hitting suffered no abatement.

Trammell was touched up in the nine innings for a total of 10 safeties but they were pretty well scattered and then every Electrician, with the exception of the heavier, was basting the ball to all parts of the lot where no one was. Verily, it was a day of avoirdupois batting averages.

Listen to what the box score tells:

RED SOX GORGE THEMSELVES ON HEAVY HITS

Special to The News.
Spartanburg, S. C., July 29.—Dr. Tony Walters got his in several places in the game here yesterday afternoon and had to be yanked from the mound after the second inning. Doak took his place, but the Red Sox had gotten a taste of the hitting food and it was so good they proceeded to gorge themselves on it and carried the game away by the score of 9 to 4. In the very first inning the Doctor's offerings were received on the business end of a bat to the tune of two singles, a triple and a home run, which gave the locals a lead of three points. The second seemed to be going as badly for the Medic, for he allowed two passes and two singles in that one before he was relieved. The locals seemed able to score at will despite the magnificent game put up by the entire team of the visitors. They made four errors but every one of them was a hard one and made because the men were making desperate stabs at everything they could come in touching distance of.

The Red Sox secured a grand total of 15 hits and every man on the team was allowed to fatten his batting average. It was a veritable swatfest for the visitors were able to connect with those sent over by Laval for a total of 11 safeties. Rickard, for the visitors, was the premier batsman in this contest, getting four out of five times to the bat.

Williams at second for the locals scooped 'em up from the daisies, pulled 'em down from the clouds and, in fact, handled himself in a way to endear himself for all times to the local fans. Nothing seemed possible to get by him and he was the real live wire of the contest.

The box tells the story in short-hand.

The official score:

CHIP DIAMONDS.

If the Heavenly Hornets continue to lose in the way they have for the past week we will begin to believe we've been mistaken about them being the best team in the league. We won't abandon that idea yet, though, and will continue to believe the jinx is on the job.

A few more days like yesterday and some of the fellows will have to take anti-fat for their batting averages.

One. Two. THREE. Four. FIVE. It's like chewing an oyster.

At any rate it takes some ball team to lose five straight games by as close scores as the Hornets did.

Lave should invest in a box of candy and present it to the Goddess of Luck.

That might induce her to stay away from the other fellows, and if she will only do that we will take care of ourselves.

Anyhow, she is a fickle old thing, and if you get in the habit of depending on her, just then she is going to cut the string.

Characteristic of the sex.

The ability to hit the ball when a hit is needed seems to be one of the Patriots' greatest assets.

There is only one point left between Gentleman Jim's gang and us, Wonder if they will get stuck on that?

Suppose Garman is managing the team in the absence of Lave. Well, he couldn't have any worse luck.

Possibly Wofford is not walking in from third and touching the home base. That used to be lucky for Lave.

By the way, Wofford has been playing third now for a few games and we have failed to see him prominently mentioned in the last row in the box score. He is still hitting them, too.

Hope Anderson got all the hits that were coming to them this week. That will keep them from winning today, and every time they lose makes us feel safer.

What do you Spinners think you went over there for, if not to save the third place for us?

That old adage about a bad start indicating a good ending certainly was not on the job this week.

We'll say it for you Joyner. "A team that has played as good ball as the Patriots have all the week can afford to lose one occasionally."

How's the pedal extrem Lave? Hope it's better.

Captain Rowland is so wrapped up in duck farming and wondering if "they'll stand up when they're grown" that he won't take interest in the team any more. Maybe those Indian Runners of his are the jinx.

Everybody around the circuit is glad to see the attendance figures as big as they are in Anderson, and the Electricians are putting up a 100 per cent better game since they are being supported. It is another good basis for the argument that a team that has the loyal support of the local fans will work harder and more cheerfully to win games.

We are sorry the manager is confined to his bed. Here's hoping the doctor will get fooled and he will be able to use the injured pin in a short while.

Wonder if that jinx that's been following the team was responsible for the manager's injury.

If some one could just locate that thing, we'd get along fine.

Joyner had a cinch. Anybody can grind out a lot of stuff about a winning team.

We haven't had a chance to do anything like that in a long time. We are as unlucky as the Hornets.

"When will the Hornets' luck change?" causes us as much mental perturbation as "What is whiskey?" caused a republican president.

How in the world can a town get along in the summer with a losing team and no water?

One seems to be bad enough without being afflicted with the other. Oh, brace up, fellows, and take one, if you have to give it back.

At the very least we can't lose but one more this week.

Don't knock when the fellows come home. They feel bad about it as it is, and there is no use in massaging them in it.

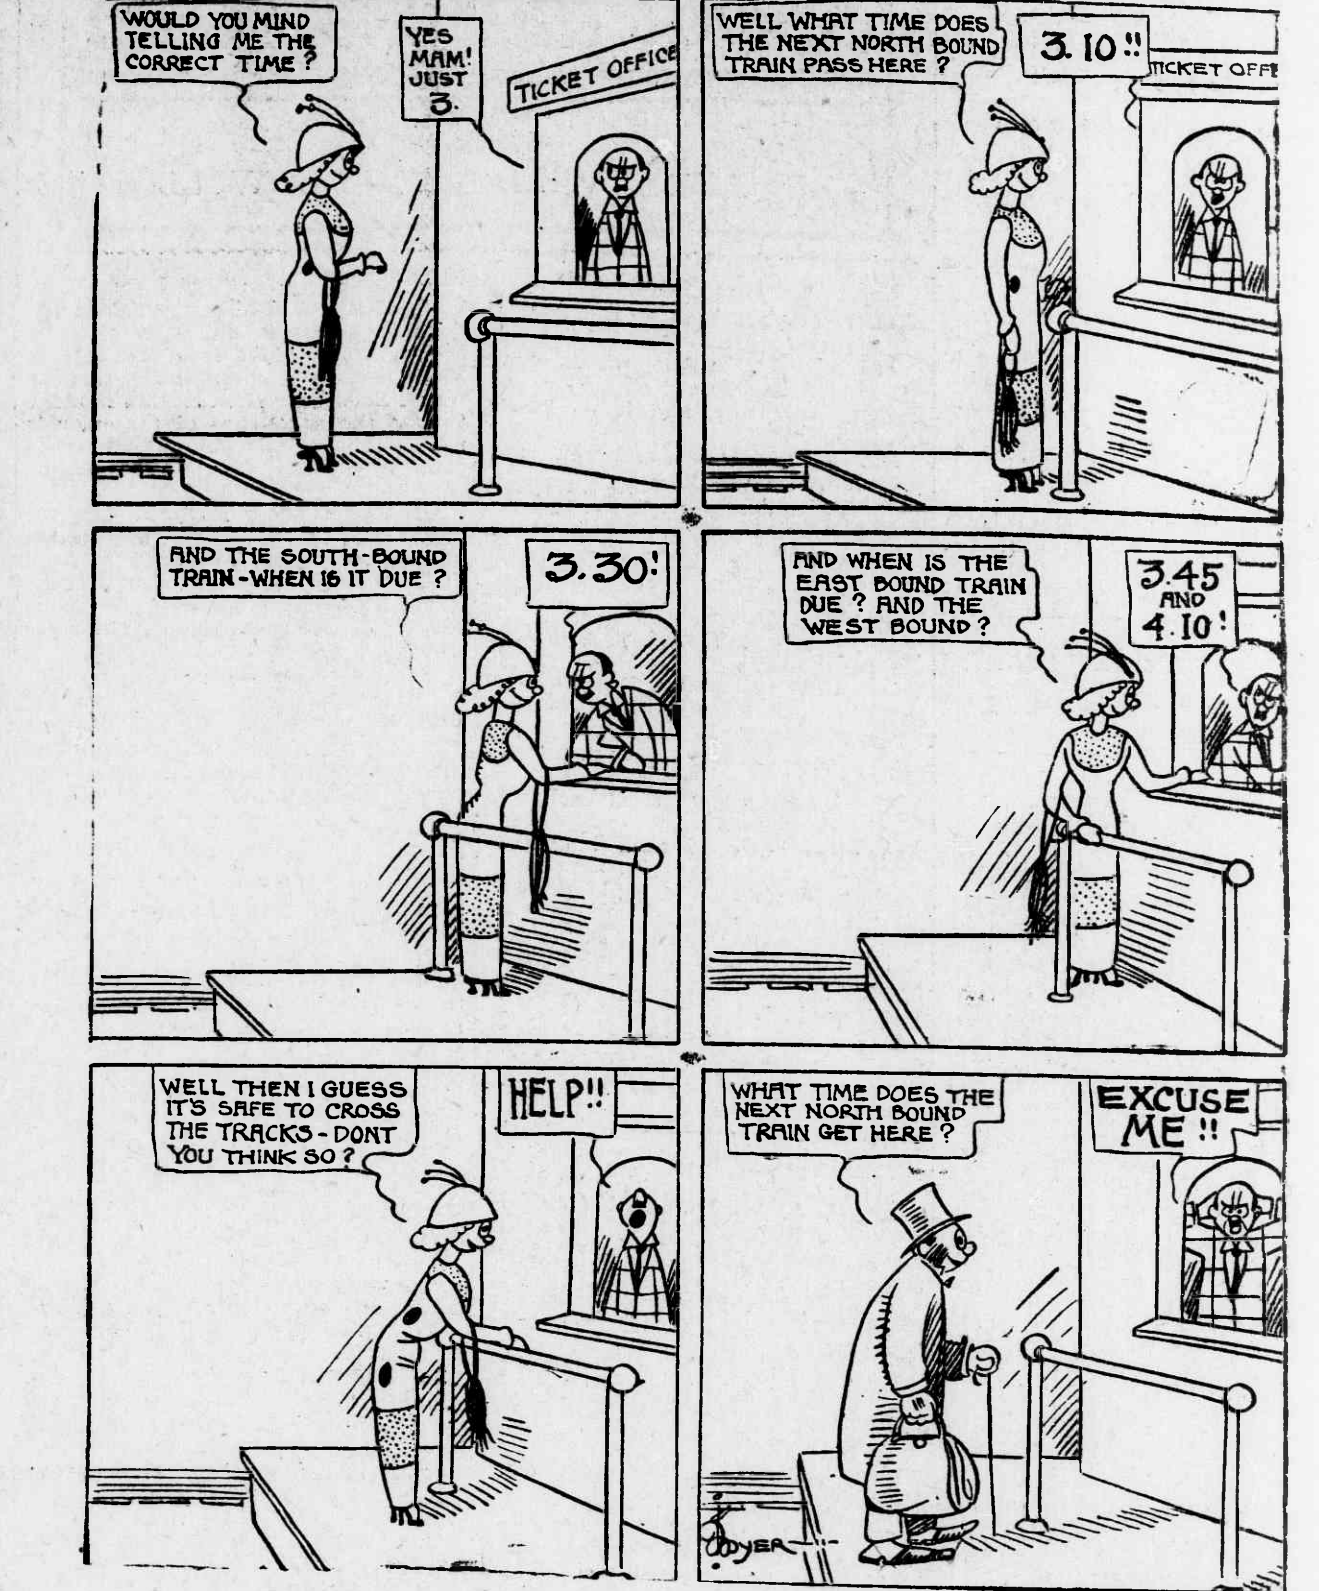

Anyhow, now is the time the Boosters Club can do their most effective work. A joyful howl from the fans on Monday will sound good to the team.

If we only knew what was in store for us this day.

Here's "30" on the dope wire.
