DIRIGIBLE TORPEDOES HAVE WARM DEFENDERS

Washington, Aug. 7.—Through the reports of the experts who have been watching the operations of the battleships, torpedo destroyers and submarines near Provincetown, Mass., have not yet reached the navy department, the officials of the division of material declare there is not the slightest probability of the abandonment of the use of dirigible torpedoes in naval warfare because of their alleged inaccuracy. They insist that the torpedoes have been greatly improved in recent years, not only in the matter of speed and range but in accuracy of direction. It is true that in rare instances the automatic steering gear of the torpedo has blocked itself causing the weapon to take an erratic course but through the use of a small microscope within the shell it is generally possible to hold the torpedo on a very accurate course.

Steamer Collided With Iceberg

New York, Aug. 7.—The Anchor line steamer Columbia, which collided with an iceberg on August 2, reached New York from Glasgow under her own steam. Many yards of canvas covered the hole made in her bow by the iceberg, but her officers said the damage was entirely above the water line and could be handily repaired. The accident occurred about 120 miles off the coast of Newfoundland.

The Columbia's 598 passengers had just sat down to dinner and because of the heavy fog the vessel's engines had been stopped for several minutes. The customary drop in temperature, the iceberg loomed up in front of the vessel almost at the moment of collision. There was a crash as the sharp stem cut into the berg and tons of the ice rattled to the vessel's deck. Capt. George Mitchell signaled full speed astern and the liner backed away.

An inventory of the damage showed the bow stove in so badly that the liner took considerable water and the canvas was accordingly stretched across the splintered section. There was no trouble from this source during the rest of the voyage. Close examination of the Columbia at her dock tonight revealed greater damage than at first reported. Her hull was holed with hundreds of tons of water, her bow plates were crumpled for fifteen feet, her port anchor was torn away and several persons aboard were suffering from injuries.

Captain Mitchell explained that the vessel was stopped in the fog when he heard the echo of his fog horn from the berg. After the impact, he said, water poured into the forebay to the depth of nine feet. The pumps were set going and the crew was put to stemming the inrush with sand bags and other makeshifts. Passengers and crew were in many instances thrown to the floor. Tom Murray, the forecastle lookout, was buried under the ice which poured upon the vessel's deck and when survivors dug him out he was senseless. Tables in the dining saloon were swept bare of the evening meal, stewards were sent sprawling in the general crash of crockery.

The eighty-four first cabin passengers had hardly tasted food when the ship struck. There was a cometary silence after the crash of falling dishes but the passengers kept their seats and there was no evidence of a panic. Passengers said the iceberg towered more than 100 feet above them and was a quarter of a mile in length.

Fifteen minutes after the accident the Columbia cleared the fog zone and sighted a vessel, without wireless, bearing directly towards the berg. Immediately signals were burned in the international code reading: "You are running into danger." The vessel was the 1,020 miles from New York and as the pumps were lowering the water in the hold, Captain Mitchell held his ship to her course without summoning aid. The wireless word of the collision to the Columbia's sister ship, the Furnessia, and the message was relayed to Glasgow and cabled to New York.

Captain Mitchell said tonight the accident was the nearest to a maritime disaster he had ever experienced.

"Father of Irrigation" is Dead.

The deceased was 86 years old and one of the pioneers of the state, having crossed the plains with one of the Mormon wagon trains.

He was the father of 23 children, 14 of whom together with one of his five wives, survive him.

He had 49 grandchildren and 21 great grandchildren.

TO THE MOUNTAINS, AUG. 16-17TH.
 Just now a great many Charlotte folks are turning their faces to the mountains for their usual summer vacation and the number is being greatly augmented by the exodus of those from the seashore who the month of August usually bring.

This month is the vacation month of the summer and the time when the mountains with their shady nooks, cool breezes and spring water appeals most to the hot and tired city folks. The many resorts along the new Clinchfield route are proving very attractive this season and are growing more popular as the vacation seekers find them out.

An opportunity will be afforded those who wish to take a trip over the wonderful Clinchfield route and find a retreat to their liking in the Johnson City excursion which goes Aug. 16th.

Many prominent Charlotte people have taken the trip on former excursions and have been perfectly delighted.

Probably the most attractive places along the Clinchfield route are Little Switzerland at Alta Pass and Unaka Springs, Tenn. Many Charlotteans are at Little Switzerland and the excursion to Johnson City on the 16th and 17th, will stop at Alta Pass and Unaka Springs going and returning. The management of this excursion will be in good hands—men of large experience and everyone is assured a comfortable and pleasant ride—positively no rowdiness being allowed. Artesian water and well managed refreshment car will be a feature of the excursion and the car will be under the supervision of the management of the train.

The train will be in charge of Mr. Jas. Ker, T. P. A. of the S. A., and Mr. J. T. A. Lawing, chairman. Vacationists would do well to include this trip in their plans. The open-top observation car which has proven so interesting to excursionists on former trips will be attached to the train at Bostie, N. C., and operated through the mountains to Johnson City and return. No extra charges will be made for seats on this car. The round trip fare from Charlotte will be $3.50 for adults and $2.00 for children over 5 and under 12 years old. The low cost of this trip appeals to many—it being within reach of most anyone. The entire trip can be taken for $5.00 which will easily cover railroad fare and hotel bill.

To see the construction of the wonderful Clinchfield R. R., the grand scenery along the route and visit the Soldiers' Home at Johnson City is worth several times the cost of the trip. For other information phone or write J. T. A. Lawing, Chairman.

Hot Campaign For Reciprocity

Ottawa, Ont. Aug. 7.—Readjustment of political plans and preparation for the campaign throughout the Dominion involving reciprocity with the United States, have characterized the past week when the Laurier government dazed most of its own followers and the opposition by sudden dissolution of parliament. The extent of the surprise is indicated by the fact that few members were ready to leave for their constituencies to seek re-election and the last groups are now leaving Ottawa. Meanwhile tons of printed matter has been put into the mails, the franking privilege having been extended one week.

Little election machinery is in running order. This is because the contest has been precipitated a year before its normal time. This would have been after four sessions of the eleventh parliament instead of after three, a general election being required every five years. Neither party has enough convention-named candidates in the field to begin extensive campaigning at once. Nominating conventions, however, are scheduled and the naming of candidates will be completed in a month. Both party leaders will be well started on their speech-making tours by that time.

It is the evident purpose of the opponents of reciprocity to ignore and to divert attention from it as much as possible. But the government and its supporters will insist that in the election six weeks from now every ballot for a candidate shall be, morally if not politically, a decision whether there shall be reciprocity with the United States. In so deciding the people will determine whether Sir Wilfrid Laurier shall continue to be prime minister of whether he shall be replaced by R. L. Borden, the opposite leader.

Prominent members of the government express increased confidence that after the first week of pulse-taking, far and near, the new parliament to be opened in October by the new governor-general, the Duke of Connaught, will be so constituted by the re-election results as to make the Laurier government would survive. The opposition forces, on the contrary, assert that the crest of a tidal wave of anti-reciprocity sentiment has been sighted and that after it has rolled across the map a resultant conservative and fresh nationalist majority in the new parliament will kill the pact by leaving it in its present condition—ratified at Washington but not at Ottawa.

To end reciprocity the opposition will have to return with 25 more members than they have now. That would give them a majority of five in the house. But as one of these would have to be elected speaker the working majority would be but four. This small margin, however, is sufficient.

Parliament has a membership of 221. To have 137 are government supporters, 84 are opponents of the government, the administration's majority being 45. The government's principal strength lies east of Ontario. Its supporters from that portion of Canada number 79, while the opposition has but 21. In the part of the Dominion comprising Ontario and the provinces to the west the parties are more evenly divided, there being 67 opposition and 64 government members.

President Taft is almost as great a personality as Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the present campaign and it is safe to say that his utterances on reciprocity will be more often quoted throughout the provinces these coming weeks than those of Sir Wilfrid of Finance Minister Fielding.
