

House And Senate Agree To Adjourn

Three O'clock Tuesday Afternoon is Time Selected by the Leaders of Both Branches—Cotton Bill is the Cause of Uncertainty.

Effort Made to Induce Underwood to Agree on Saturday Night But He Says Cotton Schedules Must be Debated Before Closing.

Washington, Aug. 19.—Tentative agreement was reached between the house and senate leaders today to adjourn the special session of congress at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

The one cause of uncertainty is the cotton bill which Chairman Underwood reported to the house this morning. With statehood out of the measure late this afternoon, nothing remains but to dispose of cotton. There are some fears that Republican Leader Mann may inaugurate a filibuster against this when it is taken up for consideration Monday morning; but with republicans and democrats alike anxious to get away it is believed that Mr. Mann will be dissuaded from any such attempt. Indeed, he has it in contemplation.

Every effort was made today by Vice President Sherman and Senator Penrose to induce Underwood to agree to adjournment tonight. Underwood insisted, however, that such a plan was impossible. He pointed out that the iron, steel and chemical schedules inserted in the cotton bill by the senate had not been debated by the house, and he expressed the opinion it was only fair the measure be given some consideration by the lower branch and that the president should have an opportunity to decide whether he desires to communicate another veto message to congress.

Following their conference with Underwood the vice president and Senator Penrose returned to the senate, where Senator Warren for the committee on appropriations reported out a resolution providing for adjournment on Tuesday at 3 o'clock. The resolution was adopted without a division.

To give effect to this, of course, it will be necessary for the house to concur.

Convinced that the end is at hand senators and representatives are already quitting the city. The statesmen walked, rode and drove to the executive offices this morning to shake hands once more with Mr. Taft. Not since the arbitration treaties went to the senate and the falling out between Mr. Taft and that body took place have there been so many senators on the calling list as today.

Everyone rejoiced in the common hope of an early adjournment.

Mr. Underwood, preceding the conference, was the storm center of questions from both democrats and republicans regarding legislative wrap-up plans. Representative Leonard of Wisconsin, progressive republican, declared the cotton bill as amended by the senate would receive support from the progressive republicans. Mr. Leonard is a close political ally of Senator LaFollette, of Wisconsin, who voted against the bill in the memorable fight of Thursday when the democratic-insurgent alliance was broken.

Republican Leader Mann, of the house, pressed Democratic Leader Underwood for a positive assurance as to what he proposed to do when the president vetoed the cotton bill. Mr. Mann declared that if the session continued until Tuesday he would not look for adjournment for two weeks. He said it was necessary to know whether to keep the republican members in town. Mr. Underwood candidly advised him to hold his force. Mr. Underwood indicated that he did not wish to say in advance whether an attempt would be made to pass the bill over the veto.

To Invite Other Republics. The house today passed a resolution authorizing the president to invite Mexico and the republics of Central and South America to participate in the Panama-California exposition at San Diego, Calif., in 1915.

The exposition was described as a branch of the Panama exposition to be held at San Francisco. Republican Leader Mann's amendments providing that the invitation shall not be extended until the president is satisfied that a suitable site has been selected and not less than $2,000,000 had been raised were incorporated in the resolution.

London Strike Has Been Called Off--Arbitration Committee to Be Appointed

(By JOHN L. EDDY.)

London, Aug. 19.—The joint committee have settled the strike. Victory for trades unionism. All men must return to work immediately.

The foregoing telegram despatched at twelve-thirty this morning to the 1,800 branches of the railway unions throughout the country tells the story of the sudden and dramatic ending to Britain's spectacular strike.

"Whether the leaders can now control their men and get them back to work remains to be seen. It is a significant fact that in the agreement signed tonight the leaders pledge themselves to use their best endeavors to induce the men to return to work at once." The leaders on both sides who signed the agreement realized the strike fever which has gripped the country has become so violent that even those who had called it forth might be unable to allay it.

Under the agreement the railroads are to take back all the strikers without prejudice. A conciliation board, in which men will be represented equally with the railroad are to be appointed, both parties pledging themselves to abide by its decision. A royal commission is to be appointed by the government to inquire into the men's right to higher wages.

"The final paragraph of the government announcement of the appointment of this commission clearly indicates that higher wages will be granted.

"The government pledges itself to propose to parliament that owing to the increase of the cost of labor there will be a legal reason for an increase in the charges to the general public."

Meanwhile, as if to prove that the trouble is not yet over, despite the agreement, a bulletin comes in from Llanelly in Wales, where earlier in the day troops fired on the mob, killing two men; rioting renewed, terrible scenes enacted, freight shed fired, cars burned, explosion occurred, many people killed and injured.

From the very first the strikers have declared that they would trust Lloyd George and Lloyd George truly, the representative executive of the government in an attempt to reach a settlement and when it was announced that Premier Asquith had handed over the complete conduct of negotiations to the chancellor the feeling so grew strongly in labor circles that the basis of a fair arrangement would speedily be arrived at. It is said that the men will insist that the chancellor shall head the royal commission as they believe he will more fairly represent them than any one in the government service.

Doings of The Idle Rich of Chicago Told In The House By Representative Fowler

Washington, Aug. 19.—The doings of the idle rich of Chicago were told in part in the house this afternoon by Representative Fowler, of Illinois, who spent some time in the Windy City a few weeks ago.

After explaining he had visited the district represented by Mr. Mann, "who claims to lead a portion of the republican party" in which are located big car plants, he said he had gone to Lake Calumet in South Chicago to witness a dog party given by a member of the idle rich society of that section. "None of the women at that party," said Fowler, "could show children, although each could show a dog. In fact, the party was given in honor of a lady dog and other dogs had all been invited.

"The dogs were dressed as men and women and most of them walked on their hind legs. One dog carried the train of the lady dog hostess. Finally some person tempted the train bearer with cake and he dropped the train and ran for the cake. Other dogs followed. The female owner of the train bearer started to chase her dog. Being doubled she fell and lose a valuable diamond from her anklet.

"Dogs and women joined in a search for the diamond. A dog found it and ran pursued by others to Lake Calumet and plunged in. The diamond was recovered and the incident afforded the women of the party amusement and excitement, but no apprehension."

"I was criticized the other day by Mr. Mann," remarked Fowler, "for speaking of the humble and lowly and how greatness often springs from the hovels of the poor. It occurred to me that it might be well to remind Mr. Mann of the amusement of his constituents."

"I am a widow, aged 42, and my dear husband died 14 months ago from an attack of appendicitis. He was taken from me so suddenly after seven years of happy married life and I feel so very lonely and miss him so and do so want some one to care for. I have no children, only brothers and a sister.

FAVORABLE REPORT ON COTTON BILL

Washington, Aug. 19.—As soon as the house convened, Chairman Underwood informed the house of the favorable report of the ways and means committee of the cotton bill and his amendments and announced that he would call the bill up for passage on Monday.

The committee's action insures passage of the cotton bill by the democratic house, but it will fall to become a law for the same reasons that its two predecessors, the wool and free list bills failed—the veto of the president and inability of congress to override the veto. All the tariff revision legislation, however, will be renewed at the regular session of congress, beginning in December.

The bill, on which both houses are in exact accord, carries senate amendments reducing the duties on iron, steel, cotton machinery, certain chemicals used in cotton manufactures and a provision for reciprocal free trade in the admission of bituminous coal across the Canadian border.

Washington, Aug. 12.—Workmen on the Panama canal have encountered two fifteen foot crocodiles—the first that have been seen in Central America for many generations—and each is believed to be three and four millions years old, with seven full sets of teeth on the upper and lower jaws. The crocodiles were routed out of their hiding place about two weeks ago, by a steam shovel working in the Culebra Cut and are now on their way to the National Museum at Washington with much of the earth and rock crust of ages knocked off their bodies. The discovery of these relics of a past biological era is complete from a scientific standpoint and is regarded as an important link in the theory that the common Florida gator and the crocodile of the Nile and Ganges are blood relatives.

Many negroes are leaving. A lumber manufacturer of that city who owns a large mill at Jakin stated that word which he has rescued from the Georgia town holds out no hope for the negroes should the enraged white men make-up their minds to compel their exodus.

"The sheriff is totally unable to cope with the situation," he announced. "Should there be another outbreak only the presence of state troops could check the onslaught."

Confused by Smoke From the Great Steel Plants Boston Airman Made Wide Detour Over City Before Landing at His Scheduled Place.

Thousands of People Gathered at Race Track, Thinking Atwood Had Met With Accident, Left—Made Remarkable Time in Flight.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Confused by the smoke of the great steel plants, Harry N. Atwood, the aviator who is flying from St. Louis to Boston, made a wide detour over Buffalo before he could find the race track upon which he was scheduled to alight.

By 3 o'clock this afternoon nearly 10,000 persons had gathered at the race track to see Atwood alight. At 6 o'clock they were all still there. Then the crowd, believing that Atwood had met with a mishap and would not arrive, began to leave. At 7:02 o'clock when Atwood swooped down onto the great oval and landed as lightly as a bird comparatively few of the 10,000 were on the ground.

The flight from Erie to Buffalo, a distance of 84 miles, was made in one hour and forty minutes.

Atwood arrived in Erie from Swanville, Pa., where he spent the night, at 11:10 a. m. It was his intention to proceed eastward at once, but owing to high winds he was compelled to wait and it was 4:55 this evening before he started for Dunkirk after circling over the temporary aviation field at Erie.

The actual flying time from Erie to West Seneca, on the city limits of Buffalo and four miles from the center of the city, was one hour and forty minutes. As Atwood covered 84 miles in this flight, it is apparent that his speed today equalled, if it did not exceed, that of the first day of his trip from Ponta, Ill., into Chicago.

When Atwood left Erie he expected, owing to high winds, to fly only to Dunkirk, but on progressing eastward he passed out of the more dangerous currents. As he was going well and at a moderate height when he reached Dunkirk he concluded to try for his original destination—Buffalo.

He passed Dunkirk depot at 5:43 and was cheered by a great crowd, which had assembled in the hope of receiving him and entertaining him for the night.

Ten minutes later he flashed over the little town of Silver Creek, N. Y., and at 5:57 the aviator waved his hand to a crowd at Irving, N. Y., only 25 miles from Buffalo. When he reached Buffalo the daring aviator would carry out his original plan and make Buffalo for the night, barring accident.

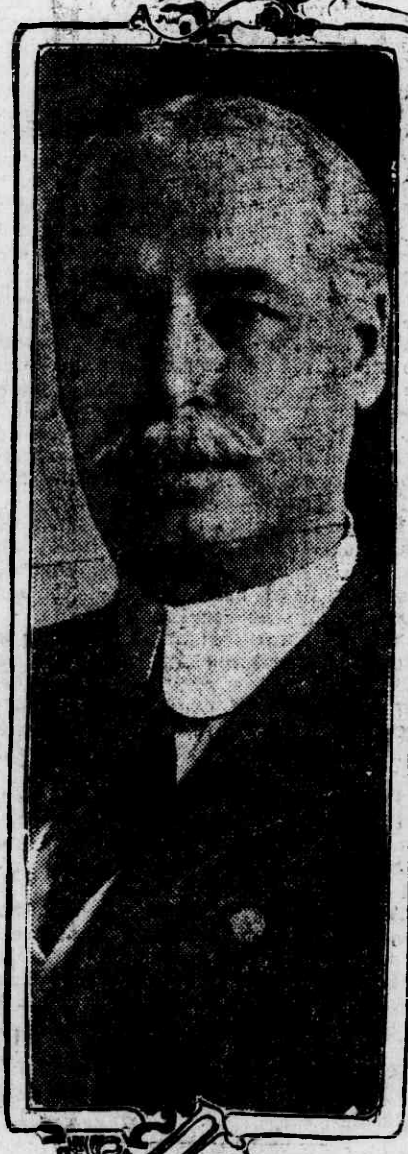

Angola was reached at 6:07 and Lake View had a glimpse of him, going at a terrific pace, at 6:13, he having covered the eight miles between the two places in six minutes.

The last ten miles of the journey from Lake View into Seneca, the intrepid flyer covered in twelve minutes and made a fine descent in an open field at 6:25. In a little while he was again awing coming on into the city.

Buffalo is 805 miles from St. Louis and 500 from New York. Atwood is confident tonight that his aircraft will sink to earth at Coney Island late next Monday night or some time Tuesday.

Atwood is not certain tonight as to whether he will stop at Rochester in his flight tomorrow. He might go on to Utica, he said.

Up until tonight Atwood has flown 805 miles since leaving St. Louis, in 37 hours and 43 minutes. The distance from Buffalo to New York is 460 miles.

GOVERNOR PORTO RICO

George R. Colton, militant governor of Porto Rico, who has sailed to return to his island domain after a visit of several weeks in New York on one of the most peculiar missions ever essayed by an officer of any government. Governor Colton's visit was to arrange for opening an "advertising headquarters" of Porto Rico in the United States, to be maintained by the Porto Rican government, which would place advertising for any Porto Rican firm that had money to pay for it. Governor Colton's idea is that this will prove a great good to the island.
