The Capital City News Department

Raleigh, Sept. 19.—Will G. Wilkins, Nash county, is pardoned by Governor Kitchin at the request of the county officials and many citizens because after six months service of a twelve months sentence his health has broken down and he cannot be treated safely in jail. Furthermore his original sentence was to pay $250 fine and to begin a twelve months sentence on the roads six months later if still in the county. He remained in the county and entered upon the sentence with the result that he is now a very sick man. The trial judge seemed to have not expected that Wilkins would remain in the county to serve the sentence to imprisonment after paying the $250 fine.

At Rex hospital the statement is made that there is now a good chance for Walter Armstrong to recover from the injuries he sustained Sunday morning when he was struck by the swinging door of a freight car on the Southern track and knocked on to the Seaboard track where another train cut off his arm and inflicted other injuries. His life was despaired of one while State Senator J. R. Besant, of Hanlet county, member of the board of trustees of the State School for Feeble-Minded, was here today in conference with State Superintendent of Public Instruction J. Y. Joyner, chairman of the board relative to the selection of an architect for the designing of the buildings which the board expects to erect in time to house 150 children by the time the next legislature meets. The probability is that the contest over the selection of architect will result in the naming of two jointly. The trustees could not agree and left this to Dr. Joyner. The plan is to erect at once a main building, two dormitories, a power house and laundry building. Olmstead & Son, of New York, have been selected as landscape architects and G. B. Cheeney, of Kinston, has been selected as engineer for the water and sewerage systems.

Dick Cause, colored, of New Hanover county, is under sentence to be electrocuted in the penitentiary here Friday of this week for the murder of Ed Gibson, in Wilmington. However, the trial judge, the solicitor and the members of the jury have joined in a recommendation that the governor grant a commutation to life imprisonment on account of extenuating circumstances and it is understood that this course will be taken by the governor. This is the case in which Judge Peebles severely criticised the court record in New Hanover in the matter of the failure of juries to convict for murder and ordered the case removed to Pender county where, later there was conviction for first degree murder and sentence imposed for electrocution September 25. Then Governor Kitchin granted a reprieve to September 22, and this is now about to terminate in a commutation to life imprisonment on appeal of the judge, solicitor and jury.

A charter is granted for the Citizens' Bank, Catawba county. The capital is $25,000 and $10,000 subscribed by Marvin Minor, P. E. Isenhower and others.
