

Superior Court Continues to Grind

Ben Henderson, a negro, was convicted of highway robbery and sentenced to three years work on the county roads.

Henderson's story was that the boy approached him with the offer of the articles for some cocaine with which to entice a negro woman.

When the verdict had been returned Attorney Newell, who represented Henderson, called to the attention of the court the fact that Henderson is a hopeless convict.

The verdict of the jury in the trial of Will Barrett yesterday, on the charge of retailing liquor and keeping a disorderly house, was given to the court this morning.

A case which created much amusement this morning was that of State vs. Reuben Connor, for carrying a concealed weapon.

When Miron Carpenter was put on trial, charged with selling cocaine, he caused much laughter by peremptorily excusing four of the jurors.

The cases of Will Saddler, charged with stealing a shot gun and Frank White, charged with the larceny of groceries, were given to the jury this morning.

At 10 o'clock this morning Jackson Dicks and Amelia Flowers called upon Squire C. L. Hunter with a license in their possession and in the twinkling of an eye they were made one and sailed out on the matrimonial sea.

Mineral Point, Mo.—Mrs. Clara Cluff, of this place, says: "I had a pain in my left side and back, and suffered a great deal with womanly troubles."

I would take pills that lasted two or three days, when it seemed like I was uneasy all the time, and didn't feel like doing anything.

I had suffered for six years, and I can't tell you just how I did feel, I felt so bad, the doctors' treatment didn't seem to help, and I was so blue I was almost crazy!

I tried Cardui, and before I had taken two bottles, I felt much better. I took 12 bottles in all.

Now, though I haven't taken any more of a good while, I still feel all right—better than I have for years.

Cardui will help you, just as it helped Mrs. Cluff.

Why not try it? It may be just the very thing your system has long been craving.

Millinery Opening Held Today

I was there, were you? I saw hundreds of women and hats. Did you?

Feminine Charlotte was out today from the tiny tot who wears a hat to the pretty debutante, the quiet matron and the gray haired old lady—all looking for hats.

Hundreds of women went back and forth all forenoon from Belk Bros., Little-Long Co., Eard's, Ivey's, Morrow-Bass Co., Doggett and Mobley, the New York Millinery and the Charlotte Millinery—Mrs. Gardner's.

Each parlor was radiant in humanity—the humanity that wears ornate feathers, that adorns itself with stunning creations, semi-annually in what is still referred to as hats, but which in reality are creations of art.

The offerings in the various shops are wonderfully charming this fall. As this is coronation year, the colors are bright and rich.

The styles are more simple, the hats smaller, the amount of trimming less than in several seasons. Black and white is one of the season's distinctions.

King's blue and Emerald Isle green are this year's mark. Street hats are severe. Many hats nothing on them at all—the "Ding-dong" for instance.

The women are enthusiastic and happy in the enjoyment of the fall millinery festival.

Mr. W. S. Lee Returns. Mr. W. S. Lee, of the Southern Power Company, returned today from Monroe, where he was called this week on account of the critical illness of his sister. The condition of his sister is slightly improved.

Last Body Found From the Lake

Body of George Carson, Last of the Three Negroes Who Were Drowned in Lakewood Sunday Night was Recovered Last Night.

The body of George Carson, the last of the three negroes who were drowned in the lake at Lakewood park Sunday night, was brought to the surface last night at 9 o'clock.

The body of George Carson was found in 25 feet of water and within 10 feet of the spot where the remains of Peter Blakely were found early in the day.

An inquest was held by Coroner Z. A. Hovis yesterday to inquire into the death of the two men whose bodies at that time had been discovered.

The verdict of the jury was that death resulted from drowning, which resulted from their own negligence, being brought about by their standing up and rocking the boat.

Dr. C. S. McLaughlin, county physician, testified that there were no marks of violence on the body of either of the negroes.

The sun shone brightly on the patriotic gathering—a gathering at once unique and representative in personnel.

It was as the coming together of a great clan—Phifers, Erwins, Craigs, Allison, Gibsons, Smiths, of Cabarrus, merrit kin and kin, in the descendants of the Locke and Brandon family in Mecklenburg and Rowan, at the monument of George Locke.

There is living today only one descendant of the family who has the Locke name—Miss Mary Locke, who lives in Salisbury.

With her, the name becomes extinct. But of the descendants of the Locke family there are several clans representing the state's best blood and dearest.

Mrs. Latta C. Johnston, regent of Mecklenburg Chapter, was mistress of ceremonies. As her voice was heard in formally calling the grove to order, Johnston, daughter of the handsome "Madame Regent" of the hour, and Miss Susie Hutchison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Parks Hutchison, and step-grand daughter of Mrs. Ann Locke Parks, stepped to either side of the monument, laying hands on the cords which held the veil in place.

A thrill of patriotic interest ran through the assembly. Mrs. Johnston introduced Rev. Dr. A. McGeachy, of the Second Presbyterian church, who opened the exercises with prayer.

In a most appropriate petition Dr. McGeachy thanked God for "those wise minds, kind hearts and valued lives—who contended for our safety and welfare when we were but a little people; for those godly and patriotic women whose nerve was sublime; those heroes who brought to this nation liberty, property and peace. We are gathered to unveil this memorial to one who gave his life that we might know happiness and peace."

Mrs. Johnston then addressed the gathering, giving gracious and graceful salutation.

"Friends," said she, "it is with decided pleasure and pride that we meet today to finish that which we have begun. In placing this marker to the brave and gallant Lieutenant George Locke, we hope by our example and teaching to inspire the youth of our state, and in the language of our constitution, 'to cherish, to maintain and extend the institutions of American freedom, to foster true patriotism and love of country, and to aid in securing for mankind all the blessings of liberty.'"

The cords held by Miss Johnston and Miss Hutchison were drawn and the veil fell revealing the monument. The grove resounded with applause.

The monument is erected on ground given by Mr. Martin Davis. Mr. John Pharr gave the rock for the base of the monument, and Mr. David Parks Hutchison, a step grand son of Mrs. Ann Locke Parks, who was a grand daughter and Matthew Locke gave the rock on which is the inscription. MONUMENT TO LT. GEO. LOCKE IS UNVEILED

Three counties—Mecklenburg, Rowan, and Cabarrus—united yesterday to honor the memory of Lieutenant Geo. Locke, who lost his life in a skirmish with the British at a point on the Salisbury road six and a half miles from Charlotte, Sept. 26, 1780.

Appropriate it was that these three sister counties should unite in honoring this Revolutionary hero—he was a native of Rowan, died on Mecklenburg soil and was, and is, associated with the history of Cabarrus by family ties, one brother and one sister having married into the Phifer family, one of Cabarrus county's most distinguished families.

In the grove just across the road from the spot where Locke fell—a spot known locally as Locke's Hole—the monument commemorating the life and death of the patriot, has been erected by Mecklenburg Chapter D. A. R.

This chapter commemorates the death of this Revolutionary hero yearly, Sept. 26th, the date of Locke's death having been chosen by the chapter as Chapter Day.

Sept. 26, 1780, was made memorable in the history of Mecklenburg county by the death of Lieutenant Locke.

Sept. 26, 1911—131 years later—was made memorable by the unveiling of a monument to the young hero.

The Unveiling. In the pines just off the Salisbury road which leads from Mecklenburg through Cabarrus to Rowan, several hundred people gathered yesterday afternoon between 3 and 4 o'clock to honor the memory of Lieutenant Locke.

The highway was lined with autos and vehicles of various kinds, and the nearby country folk rode or walked to teach their little children with them to teach their heroes who gave Mecklenburg her glorious history.

It was as the coming together of a great clan—Phifers, Erwins, Craigs, Allison, Gibsons, Smiths, of Cabarrus, merrit kin and kin, in the descendants of the Locke and Brandon family in Mecklenburg and Rowan, at the monument of George Locke.

It is more necessary that you keep your Bowels, Liver and Stomach clean, pure and fresh than it is to keep the sewers and drainage of a large city free from obstruction.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system the decomposed waste matter and poison in the intestines and bowels.

state. Then followed her address. Said she: "Mecklenburg D. A. R., Ladies and Gentlemen—

"Our beloved state honors her own great past when she honors the brave men who by their self-sacrificing lives and heroic deaths made that past great. As the 'blood of the martyrs was the seed of the church'—so the blood of the patriot sons of the Old North State is the seed of our great commonwealth that today we love and honor for her glorious past, her splendid present and her promising future.

"We meet today, to honor the memory of that patriot who gave the last great gift that man may give, his life—that his country might gain the priceless heritage of liberty and take her place among the nations of the earth."

"No braver soldier than Lieutenant George Locke ever faced a foreign foe, and to him, and to the brave men fighting with him, we today pay our heartfelt tribute of love and honor, that the land we live in, is one of liberty and opportunity, and our government not the tyranny of kings, but one of the people, by the people and for the people."

DR. CALDWELL'S ADDRESS. Rev. Dr. John L. Caldwell, president of the Presbyterian College, the orator of the day, was happily introduced by Mrs. Johnston. Looking into the eye and addressing the hearts of the descendants of the clan of Locke, the speaker—himself a descendant of some of the most illustrious blood of the Revolution—said: "Ladies of Mecklenburg, Rowan and Cabarrus and all the rest of the Ladies and Gentlemen—

"When Mrs. Johnston asked me to talk about Lieutenant Locke, I asked her who he was. She replied 'I do not know—we want you to tell us, while we know but little about him we know that he died for his country; died in defense of Charlotte, repelling the invader.'"
