A CORDIAL INVITATION TO ALL

Social and Personal

(By ADDIE WILLIAMS CALDWELL)

ALIQUD AMARI.

Heard a sailor wailing as he leaned against the shrouds, his ocean bed beneath him, and above him flew the clouds, and the breezes moaned in answer, however happy love may be, the core of love is pain.

The breezes learned the burden and murmured to the land, the sailor's wife was sitting in her cottage by the strand, and when she heard them whisper her heart replied again, however happy love may be, the core of love is pain.

They left the woman weeping and hurried to the town, to each they told their message, and all confessed it plain—however happy love may be, the core of love is pain.

Then hearken, all ye lovers! Be mindful when ye meet, to promise naught or little ere this proverb ye repeat. Ye surely shall have proof thereof; ye shall not speak in vain—however happy love may be, the core and the voices of the main.—Francis Money-Coutts.

FOR AFTERNOON TEA.

One of the newer forms for afternoon tea device is a squat cream jug and sugar bowl of rock crystal set in a silver frame with arched handle to make passing easy.

Another useful article is a cake lifter of silver. This is on the order of ice tongs, but the one prong is flat instead of forked.

A convenient tea strainer has a silver bowl and handle and rests on a rock-crystal, silver-rimmed dish to prevent dripping on the cloth.

For tea on the lawn the wicker tables on wheels are light and convenient. They are provided with double trays and can be filled and pushed to any part of the grounds.

Tea trays for porch service are of dark green wicker rims with base of bronze or rare old brocade covered with bias. The handles on each end are substantial enough for hard use.

Long-handled iced teaspoons make an acceptable wedding gift for the summer bride, as they will be in constant use for lunch and afternoon tea. Those with hollowed tubes through which the tea can be slipped like a straw are more novel than practical, as they are open to suspicion from a sanitary standpoint.—Virginia-Pilot.

Among today's guests at the Selwyn are Mrs. Reid Tull, Mount Holly, and Mr. D. M. Armfield, Maxton.

Easy to Get Rid of Dandruff

Dandruff means that down near the roots of your hair there is a vast army of little invisible microbes.

And this army never sleeps; it wages a war of destruction night and day. It destroys the nourishment that the hair must have in order to grow vigorously and abundantly.

PARISIAN SAGE now sold all over America will destroy these germs and at the same time furnish the hair roots with just and proper nourishment to make hair grow lustrous and luxuriant.

PARISIAN SAGE is guaranteed by R. H. Jordan & Co. to banish dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp or money back. It is a delightful hair dressing that wins instant favor with refined women. Sold for only 50 cents a large bottle by R. H. Jordan & Co., druggists everywhere. Girl with Auburn hair on every cartoon and bottle.

Monument To

"I was surprised to find that the Locke family was such a large and influential one. The Locke's and the Phifers intermarried, making a large clan. There is no Locke here but the blood is here. A grand-daughter of Matthew Locke was the wife of Mr. David Parks.

"Why is this marker erected at this place? It is a tribute to what our forefathers did.

"In the winter of 1780 Locke joined a company raised in Salisbury by Maj. Davie, an Englishman, a law student at Salisbury. In 1779 Maj. Davie was elected lieutenant of Mecklenburg troop of horse. He was attached to Pulaski's Legion, was wounded at Stono, below Charleston, returned to Salisbury to study law. He raised a company in which George Locke was made lieutenant.

"Locke, Davie and Brandon kept hanging on to the British army. Graham joined them." Here the speaker gave a graphic account of the battle of Charlotte which resulted in the flight and pursuit along the Salisbury road. The patriots were a hand full; Tarleton's army numbered 4,000. Brandon, Graham and Locke were compelled to flee. Brandon had the best horse and got away. Graham was overtaken and received nine sabre wounds and was left for dead. Locke turned out of the main road into the wood. The late Mrs. Ann Locke Parks told her grandson, Mr. David Parks Hutchison that her father told her that Geo. Locke was killed by the British in this way: He encountered a tree across his path, and when his horse went to make the leap across it he stumbled and fell. Locke was thrown to the ground. The British rushed upon him and killed him. But by his side was found a dead Britisher. Locke died fighting. This took place to the left of the pond by Kennedy's Lane.

"The D. A. R. of Mecklenburg have erected this monument to General Locke," said the speaker, "because he died for this country. He was young and unmarried, the son of Gen. Matthew Locke, who had four sons in the army.

"Mrs. Regent, there is a beautiful appropriateness in Rowan county being represented on this occasion.

"Cornwalls said he wanted to stay in Mecklenburg and Rowan because he found so many mills to grind his corn, but he could not stay in either county because the people were so hostile to the British. They met them with shot and shell and every kind of weapon that could oppose their onward march.

"Another reason for the three counties this occasion Mecklenburg, Cabarrus and Rowan assembling here today is because of the inter-marriage of the family of the Lockes, Brandons and their descendants. These counties are one in history.

In concluding Dr. Caldwell paid high tribute to the work of the D. A. R. Said he: "The D. A. R. has a divine mission—a specific work to find and preserve accurate facts in the lives of these heroes. Many of the historical sketches I read about George Locke differed. These inaccuracies should be corrected, and this should be the mission of the D. A. R.
