Mr. Charles Lambeth is a popular young man with a wide circle of friends.

KING EDWARD'S SCHOOL DAYS.

Emily P. Weaver, in St. Nicholas, writing of the "queer but jolly school-days of the present king of England," says:

"George V, who was crowned king of England in the grand old abbey of Westminster, had rather strange school-days. From the time he was 12 years old his school was a ship and many of his teachers were naval officers. Sometimes his schoolroom rolled so much that it was impossible to read or write, to sit or stand comfortably, and this was very trying to the temper. But whether the weather was windy or rainy, calm or rough, 'school went on like clock work,' and the prince soon learned to adopt himself to changes.

"Their first school ship was the old man-of-war Britannia, lying in harbor at the little Devonshire seaport of Dartmouth. There the princes lived, exactly like the other 'naval cadets,' as the boys training for officers are called. They studied and they drilled. They learned to handle ropes, shift sails and use carpenter's tools. They darned their own socks and mended their own clothes. If they got into a quarrel (which, I fancy, was not very often,) they were left to fight it out themselves. In cricket and other sports they learned to 'play the game' and to take a beating manfully. They worked hard enough to find a real zest in holiday, and lived so plainly that when they went on shore they often spent some of their pocket money, like the other boys, on tarts and cakes.

In 1879, after two years on the stay-at-home old Britannia, they were promoted to the cruiser Bacchante, and for the next three years hard work and home 'roughing it' was sweetened by plenty of fun and change. Their two long voyages in the Bacchante, taken together, made a journey of over fifty-four thousand miles, during which they landed in many different countries and saw many strange sights."

FARMERS ARE DETERMINED TO HOLD COTTON

With the report from all over the county that the county cotton crop is going to be as short as mid-summer prophets declared and with the report that in some sections a large part of the cotton is already picked, the report also comes from the most reliable sources that the farmers are going to hold their cotton for a higher price than 10 cents. The farmers themselves say they are going to hold it and local cotton buyers say they are keeping their word.

As an evidence that only a small per cent of the county's cotton crop is being marketed, the figures at the cotton platform Saturday showed that 215 bales had been placed on the platform at 2 o'clock, as compared with 483 bales marketed on the same date last year. The price last year was 13.40 cents per pound. Saturday it was 9 7/8 cents per pound. It should also be borne in mind that Saturday is farmers' day in the city and the one day of the week when the receipts usually mount far above that of other days.

It is further stated that the crop has matured with unusual rapidity this year and there the amount of cotton already gathered throughout the county is far larger than is usual at this date. This fact, coupled with the fact that the receipts at the local platform for the last few weeks are very much lower than the corresponding weeks of last fall, are proof that the farmers of Mecklenburg are holding their cotton in reserve. A number of cotton buyers seen today agreed that the farmers are holding their cotton to a marked extent. While there is considerable cotton being placed on the market, it represents but a small per cent of the amount that must already be ginned in the county, so the local merchants, and those who are selling are doing so in order to cancel their most pressing debts, it being inevitable that this condition will always place a part of the early crop on the market.

A well known farmer of the county said today, "I have sold a bale or two of cotton to meet my most pressing obligations. After that I am going to hold my cotton for 15 cents. I think that 15 cents is not a reasonable price, all things considered. I am positive that 10 cents is not a reasonable price, is not even a 'living' price and all the farmers in my section of the county are of the same opinion."

Most of the local organizations of the county Farmers' Union, it is said, have decided as organizations to hold the cotton represented in the various unions, the overwhelming consensus of opinion being that 10 cents does not more than cover the cost of production, to say nothing of leaving a margin for profit. The purpose of the union locals in all parts of the county are the same as regards the matter and the local market is consequently feeling the effect.

Cotton Pests. As if the cotton shortage from the effects of the drought were not enough, a worm is attacking the plant in some sections and doing considerable damage. It is declared to be the army worm by several farmers who have seen the worm in Texas and other places. Mr. James Williamson, of Matthews, brought a stalk of cotton to The News office Saturday on which the parasite was still at work. It came from the farm of Mr. E. J. Heath at Matthews.

The crop in some sections of the county is practically all gathered and in some places where the cotton opened early the ground is being plowed now for an autumn crop of oats. In Long Creek township numbers of cotton fields are being ploughed, the cotton having all opened and gathered. Mr. C. H. Herron, a well known farmer of Berryhill township, who has been accustomed to making 12 or 20 bales of cotton each year, does not expect to make more than eight this year on the same ground.

Doctors Advised The Hospital

Mrs. Herberger, who Would not Consent to Go there, Finally Relieved at Home

St. Louis, Mo.—Mrs. Mary Herberger of this city, says: "I was sick in bed for ten weeks, with womanly troubles, and had four of the best doctors waiting on me. Every one of them said I would have to go to the hospital and have an operation, but I would not consent to that."

"I thought I would give Cardui a trial. When I began to take the first bottle, I could not turn over in bed, but had to be lifted. Before I finished the first bottle, my pains were leaving me, slowly, and soon I was out of bed and walking around."

My pains have not come back, since I weigh 155 lbs. and feel fine. Cardui saved me from an operation. I am going to keep it in the house, for I would not be without it."

Cardui's strengthening effects quickly show themselves in many different ways. This is because the ingredients, from which it is made, go to the source of the trouble, and by acting specifically on the cause, relieve or cure and help bring back health and strength. In the past 50 years, more than a million women have been benefited by Cardui. Just try it.

100 CHARLOTTE BOOSTERS THIS AFTER NOON

One hundred Richmond business men will arrive in Charlotte a few minutes after six o'clock this afternoon on a special Seaboard train. They will be met by a committee of Charlotte citizens and the Charlotte Drum Corps and escorted to the Selwyn hotel.
