IVEY'S

Social and Personal

By ADDIE WILLIAMS CALDWELL

THE BRAVE AT HOME

The maid who binds her warrior's sash
With smiles that well her pain dis-embles,
The white beneath her drooping lash
One starry tear-drop hangs and trembles,
Though Heaven alone records the tear,
And fame shall never know her story,
Her heart has shed a drop as dear,
As e'er bedewed the field of glory.

The wife who girds her husband's sword,
Mid little ones who weep or wonder,
And bravely speaks the cheering word,
What though her heart be rent asunder,
Doomed nightly in her dreams to hear
Bolts of death around him rattle,
Hath shed as sacred blood as e'er
Was poured upon the field of battle!

The mother who conceals her grief
While to her breast her son she presses,
Then breathes a few brave words and brief,
Kissing the patriot brow she blesses,
With no one but her secret God
To know the pain that weighs upon her,
Sheds holy blood as e'er the sod
Received on Freedom's field of honor.

The marriage of this popular young couple is of state-wide interest. Miss Henkel is one of the state's most beautiful girls, and is thoroughly charming. She won all hearts—and one in particular—on her several visits to Mrs. Armistead Burwell, Jr., at her lovely home on North Tryon street.
Mr. Wadsworth is the youngest son of the late Mr. J. W. Wadsworth and Mrs. Margaret B. Wadsworth, and is prominent in the business, social and club world of Charlotte. BRILLIANT EVENT OF INTEREST HERE

Miss Charlotte De Wolfe Whittlesey daughter of Mr. Charles Whittlesey, of Seattle, and Mr. Walter Scott Fitz, of the same city, were married Sept. 12.
Charlotte is keenly interested in the brilliant event by reason of the fact that Capt. De Wolfe and family were formerly residents of Charlotte and prominently connected with the life of the city.
The Town Crier of Seattle, of which Mrs. J. C. Haines is society editor, has the following interesting account of the wedding:
A cameo face carved in on a ground of that shadowy hair where the blossoms are wound,
And the gleam of a smile, O, as fair and as faint
And as sweet as the master's of old used to paint
Round the lips of their favorite saint.

The poet's description might have been written of the lovely bride, for it aptly describes the charming appearance made by Miss Charlotte De Wolfe Whittlesey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fountleroy Whittlesey, as she pledged her nuptial vows to Mr. Walter Scott Fitz, at Trinity Parish church at high noon, Tuesday, September twelfth, in the presence of relatives and a large representative gathering of Seattle society, in which the bride has been, ever since her debut, one of its most beautiful and admired belles. The bridegroom is a member of a well known Boston family, a Harvard graduate and a young business man of North Yakima, in this state.

It was expected that Miss Whittlesey would be a lovely bride but no anticipation could have realized the beautiful picture made by the bride and her sister, as maid of honor, as down the central aisle of the church, reserved for the purpose by broad white satin ribbons barring the pews. The four ushers, Mr. Samuel L. Russell, Mr. Harvey Carr, Mr. Frank Meares and Dr. J. Tate Mason lead the way, followed by Miss Laura Whittlesey, looking the personification of youthful grace and loveliness, in pink satin veiled with pale pink chiffon, bearing a big black velvet picture hat with pink plumes, and carrying a large arm bouquet of Killarney roses. Then the beautiful bride, on the arm of her father, her gown of ivory bridal satin sweeping away from her slender, graceful figure in a long square court train, its great length of gleaming white veiled by the misty tulle of her veil, caught to her dark hair by a wreath of orange blossoms, and framing the perfect contour of the lovely face. Her shower bouquet of valley lilies gave the finishing touch to her costume, its lines of simple elegance having no other adornment save the handsome Duchess lace that outlined the square cut corsage with its glimpse of tulle.

The bride's cousin, Mr. Walter Whittlesey, who was organist for the occasion, played for the entrance of the bridal procession, the wedding chorus from Lohengrin, and the Mendelssohn march as they left the altar. The ceremony was impressively performed by the rector, the Reverend H. H. Gowen. Mr. Fitz was attended by Mr. Lawrence Endicott, as best man.

At the reception, which took place immediately after the ceremony at the Whittlesey home on Federal avenue, all was mirth and merriment. Mr. and Mrs. Fitz with Mrs. Whittlesey, who wore a handsome costume of black and white crepe, with black plumed hat of velvet, and Miss Fitz, of Boston, sister of the bridegroom, in white crepe, with a black tulle, received in the large drawing room converted into a bower of bloom by festoon of asparagus fern, pink roses and ping sweet peas, banked in most prodigal profusion on mantel, over doors and windows and massed in baskets all about the bog room. From this room wide French windows opened into a conservatory where a stringed orchestra, hidden behind a screen of palms and flowering plants, played throughout the reception. In the library, Miss Helen Perkins and Miss Anne Laurie Ramsay

Helpless Woman Down In Bed

A Terrible Tale of Suffering and the Facts About Mrs. Bratcher's Case.

Ready, Ky.—"I was not able to do anything for nearly six months," says Mrs. Laura Bratcher, of this place, "and was down in bed for three months.
I cannot tell you how I suffered with my head, and with nervousness and womanly troubles.

Our family doctor told my husband he could not do me any good, and he had to give it up. We tried another doctor, but he did not help me.

At last, my mother advised me to take Cardul, the woman's tonic. I thought it was no use, for I was nearly dead, and nothing seemed to do any good! but I used eleven bottles, and was then able to do all my work and my own washing.

I think Cardul is the best medicine in the world. My weight has increased, and I look the picture of health.

I will always praise Cardul for what it has done for me.

Are you weak, tired, worn-out? Do you suffer from any of the pains peculiar to weak women? Do you suffer in any way like Mrs. Bratcher? If so, then take Cardul, the woman's tonic, for it will certainly help you. At all druggists.

The First Presbytery of the A. R. P. church will meet at Smyrna, S. C., on the 17th of October, which meeting will be largely attended by the ministers and laymen of the denomination in this section. A matter of interest at the meeting of the presbytery will be a consideration of a numerical version of the Psalms for adoption or rejection. MILE POSTS OF AGE BANISHED FROM SKIN
(Fashion's Mirror.)
Women with aged, wrinkled or rough, unlovely skins, will be delighted to learn of a new and simple lotion that quickly and permanently removes lines, pimples, blackheads and other blemishes as if by magic, and gives to the skin the charm and elegance of youth. This lotion is made by dissolving an original package of mayatone in eight ounces of witch-hazel.
When used as a massage, the mayatone lotion gradually corrects all complexion faults and gives to any skin a virgin purity and rich embellishment. No powder or rouge is necessary when the mayatone lotion is used, and as it is greaseless, there need be no fear of its encouraging hair or fuzz.

THE GROOM FROM CHARLOTTE.
Shelby and Charlotte are interested in a nuptial event which is to take place tomorrow, and which the Cleveland Star tells of interestingly as follows:
"Invitations are out for the wedding of Miss Eula Bird Abernathy to Mr. Grover C. Kimbrell Thursday, October 5, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Abernathy. The wedding is of much interest because of the immense popularity of the couple. Miss Abernathy is an exceedingly attractive young Shelby girl, pretty and popular.
"Mr. Kimbrell is connected with the Stuart W. Cramer Company, of Charlotte a big cotton mill machine shop. With that manufacturing concern he holds a lucrative position. The romance of their lives started when Miss Abernathy was in Charlotte taking a stenographic course."
Mr. Kimbrell and bride will arrive in Charlotte in a few days and will reside here.
