'Have you ever seen the defendant before or are you acquainted with him?" asked Mr. Horton for the deiense in cross-examination.

"Did you ever talk with any one about the case who purported to be an agent for the defense!"

"Which party to this suit would have to prove the guilt or innocence?" "I wouldn't convict on newspaper reports or on rumors.'

"In other words, if you were sworn and no other facts were introduced except as are in your mind from notoriely and rumor, would you find the prisoner not guilty?"

"Have you any bias then?" 'Not personally."

Would you give this defendant an impartial trial?" "I believe I could."

"If you were sworn as a juror would you, independent of your opinion now, ry the defendant impartially?"

"Your state of mind is such that you would not resist the introduction of syldence to remove your opinion?" "It would take evidence to remove my opinion "

"Entertaining the opinion you have on organized labor in the United States would that feeling bias you in an effort to reach a verdict?'
