THOUGHT HE COULD KILL ANYBODY AT ANY TIME

By Associated Press.
Stillwater, Minn., Nov. 21.—Declaring that he had the right, he believed, to slay anybody at any time, James Dyart entered prison for the rest of his life today for the murder of Mrs. Frank Bolton and her cousin, Frank B. Rhodes, whom he murdered on a farm several weeks ago. After pleading guilty to these two murders, Dyart declared in a Minneapolis court that he murdered John Hofstede, in Poplar, Wis., several months ago.

When told by the judge that he could be "thankful that capital punishment was abolished in Minnesota," Dyart replied:

"Can't we have it back again? That would suit me.

"I don't believe that I did wrong and I believe that I have the right to take any man's life at any time. I guess it was born in me."

Dyart admitted that he had been a great reader of melo-dramatic novels.

May a Father Avenge Daughter's Betrayal?

By Associated Press.
Philadelphia, Nov. 21.—Whether a father is justified in taking the life of a man who betrays his daughter and refuses to marry her is a question that will come up in the case of Frank W. McMahon, who was placed on trial here today charged with the murder of George A. Leary. McMahon is a seaman, Leary was a well-to-do dealer in real estate.

Leary was shot dead on a street corner in West Philadelphia last May. McMahon when arrested made a statement that Leary had betrayed his daughter and had insulted him when the subject of marriage was mentioned.

At the coroner's inquest McMahon made a statement regarding his daughter's troubles and the coroner promptly discharged him on the ground of justifiable homicide; but he was re-arrested on a warrant sworn out by Leary's relatives charging him with murder.

McMahon's counsel refuses to disclose what the defense will be until he presents it to the jury.

PREPARED TO CHECK-MATE BEEF TRUST

By Associated Press.
Chicago, Nov. 21.—Attorney Levy Mayer of counsel for the packers visited the office of District Attorney Wilkerson at noon and asked that Judge Kohlsatt's order dissolving the packers' writ of habeas corpus be entered today instead of tomorrow as ordered.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 21.—With the trial of the indicted meat packers set for 10 o'clock tomorrow in District Judge Carpenter's court, government lawyers were prepared to spend the final day before the real proceedings in keeping close watch for any surprise counsel for the defendants might reveal to secure further delay.

That there was a surprise in store was the belief of government counsel. A conference was held in the offices of District Attorney James H. Wilkerson, at which plans for the hearing were discussed. Mr. Wilkerson announced that the government was ready, as it had been for weeks, to proceed with the trial when the hour for which it was set arrived.

"There is no use," he said, "in guessing what kind of a surprise the packers are planning to give us but we will try to defeat any further plans for delay. We anticipate that the packers will seek further delay." Counsel for the packers and their clients held extended conferences throughout the day yesterday and at their conclusion neither the lawyers nor the defendants would make any statement.

No move had been made early today by the indicted Chicago packers to get their case before Associate Justice Day of the United States supreme court on an appeal to prevent facing trial tomorrow before Circuit Judge George A. Carpenter in Chicago.

There was nothing this morning to indicate that any movement would be made during the day. If attorneys for the packers are in Canton waiting until the last moment to execute a coup, they are keeping their presence secret.

Later the attorneys appeared before Judge Kohlsatt. The purpose of asking that the order be entered now, it was said, to return the packers case to the United States district court in a position where they would have standing before the supreme court.

The entry of the order, it was said, would be followed by an appeal to Associate Justice Day, of the supreme court, in Canton, O.
