Mortality Statistics Of Certain Cities For Year 1910

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2.—A preliminary statement giving the general death rates for all cities with a population of less than 100,000 in the city of Bureau's death registration area in 1910 as drawn from the advances Mortality Bulletin 112, now in press, was issued today by Director Durand, of the Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce and Labor. It was prepared under the supervision of Dr. Chester L. Wilbur, chief statistician for vital statistics, Census Bureau. A summary giving the death rates for all cities having a population of 100,000 or over, has already been issued by the Bureau.

The total number of deaths from all causes in 1910, as returned for all the registration cities, both in registration and non-registration states, was 262,109, or a death rate of 16.1 per 1,000 population. Of the total number, 191,894 deaths occurred in cities in registration states while 69,215 were in non-registration states. The death rate for the former was 15.9 per 1,000 population, while for the latter cities it was 16.9. These figures are all exclusive of stillbirths.

General rates are such as are computed without "correction" for the various factors of age and sex distribution, as the population data necessary for the computation of corrected rates are not yet available from the recent census. They are not, therefore, fully reliable measures of sanitary efficiency, there being much difference in the age composition of old slow-growing cities and those increasing rapidly by immigration, which latter have much lower death rates than the former. These considerations, and the fact that the colored population constitutes a considerable element of some of the southern cities, should be taken into account.

Cities Showing Highest and Lowest Death Rates

ANOTHER BEATTIE CONFESSION.
By Associated Press.
Richmond, Va., Dec. 2.—The News-Leader here prints the outline of what is said to have been a detailed and private confession left by Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., for the perusal of his family alone.

According to this alleged confession Beattie decided two weeks before the crime was committed to kill his wife. The date of the murder coincided almost precisely with the theory of the case set out by the state at the trial. Beattie induced his cousin Paul to buy the gun and hid it behind a stump on the Midlothian turpentine.

He is said to have stated that he shot his wife full in the face as she was stepping from his automobile and that she fell backward into the road. Beattie denied that he first knocked his wife down, a story which gave him "much annoyance, implying cowardice." Beattie is also said to have denied that he sat upon his wife's body during the wild drive to Richmond. He is said to have asserted that his marriage was comparatively loveless and was forced upon him by his father's earnest wishes.

BILL TO PROVIDE FOR PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARIES.
By Associated Press.
Washington, Dec. 2.—Senator Cummins, of Iowa, announces that he will introduce a bill providing for presidential primaries early in the coming session. The bill would direct the holding of primary elections in each state at which the electors of both parties could announce their preferences for presidential candidates. The bill would fix August 1 of next year as the time for the first primaries and if it should prevail nothing would be left to the national conventions except the framing of platforms and arranging the machinery of the national committee. It would provide for a direct vote for the presidential candidates in each party and also for electors.

Saturday matinee and night. . . . . "The Thief"

COMING NEXT WEEK.

Fritz Scheff, in "The Duchess."
"Dante's Inferno."

production taken from the Norfolk Landmark, of August 27th, as follows:

The initial presentations of the wonderful motion pictures depicting scenes from Dante's immortal poem, "The Inferno," given at the Academy of Music yesterday afternoon and evening, fully justified the enthusiastic commendation that has been accorded the entertainment by the press of the principal cities of the country where it has been thus far shown.

The possibilities of modern animated photography are shown to the very best advantage in these films, five in number, in which all of the scenes described by Dante in his great work, telling of a vision of a journey through the infernal regions, are projected on the screen, giving the spectator a splendid conception of the poet's idea of the other world.

The principal characters—Dante, Virgil, Beatrice, Pluto and others—were posed by Italian artists of note, while the other individuals, several hundred in number, were portrayed by equally competent actors. The scenic effects and all accessories, together with the gestures and actions of those in the pictures, are true to life, and convey to those who have not read Dante's work an intimate conception of the poet's idea of his visionary trip through Hades.

The pictures are accompanied by special music, and a more than ordinary complete and comprehensive lecture, which adds interest to the presentation of the whole. Dante's "Inferno" will be presented at the Academy of Music for three nights, beginning Thursday, December 7. Matinees will be given daily.
