PA SETS BAD EXAMPLE

A group of prohibitionists looking for evidence of the advantage of total abstinence were told of a man 90 years of age who had never touched a drop of liquor. They rushed to his home to get a statement. After hearing his story they propped him up in bed and guided his feeble hand so that he might sign on the dotted line. As this was being accomplished a violent disturbance was heard outside; scuffling feet, furniture falling and smashing dishes.

"Good heavens, what's that?" gasped one of the group.

"Oh," whispered the old man as he sank exhaustedly into his pillows, "that's paw. He's drunk again."
