Code Is Modified By Legislature

The honor code was amended Monday, Sept. 27, by the Student Legislature and will be put before students Oct. 21 and 22 for ratification.

The code, passed last year and ratified by an overwhelming majority of students, was modified in two ways. The clause "but not the mandatory obligation" (for reporting a violator) was deleted; the word "responsibility" was replaced by the word "obligation."

The new code reads:

"Under the honor code you are on your honor not to cheat, lie, or steal; and if you see another student doing so, you have the obligation of reporting the individual and the circumstances to the appropriate student agency."

The changes were passed at a Monday night meeting of the Student Legislature. The changes were passed unanimously.

Gus Psomadakis, president of the student body, said he was glad the changes had been made.

He said the stronger honor code would make the faculty more agreeable to stop proctoring exams. This is all the honor code is good for any way, he said.

Dean Wahab said he thought the code should really read stronger than it will be with the changes. However, it would be up to the faculty to decide whether or not to stop proctoring exams.

Dean Wahab said he was glad the school was finally getting a good honor code and system.

Kathy Scattergood

2 Chosen For Consolidated UNC Pageant

Kay Troutman, a freshman from Salisbury and Kathy Scattergood, a second semester freshman and transfer student from the College of St. Mary will represent the Charlotte campus of the Consolidated University in the "Miss Consolidated University" contest Saturday, Oct. 9, in Raleigh.

Miss Troutman and Miss Scattergood were chosen after competing with eight other contestants. The girls were judged for grace, intelligence, attractiveness, poise and speech.

In addition to the winners, other contestants were Terry Jacobs, Sandra Haney, Diana (Dee Des) Whitney, Jo Le Francois, Paula Howie, Charlene Crumpley, Mary Case, and Carolyn Campbell.

Winning beauty titles is nothing new to Kay Troutman. The petite brunette presently reigns as "Miss Rowan County" and has held several local titles in the past.

In addition to being beautiful, Kay is also a talented designer and seamstress. Most of the clothes she wears are her own creations.

"I am just delighted," said Kay having been told the judges' decision. "I think it is especially wonderful since this is my first year here."

With a major in history, Kay looks forward to teaching and eventually, a career in public relations.

"I was completely shocked," exclaimed Kathy Scattergood, the other UNC-C representative in the "Miss Consolidated University" contest. "I was sure that an upperclassman would be named."

But it was Kathy's combination of beauty, brains, and beautiful eyes that made her a popular choice of the judges from the beginning of the contest.

A great deal of Kathy's time is spent pursuing a major in biology and preparing for a career as a medical technologist. She does find time, however, for her favorite hobbies — sewing, water skiing, and cooking a fancy roast in wine.

The two representatives will compete with two representatives from each of the other three UNC branches for the title of "Miss Consolidated University." Final judging will take place Saturday morning, October 9 in Raleigh and the winner will be crowned during the half-time of the Carolina-State football game.

Judges for the UNC-C contest were the officers of student body, class presidents, University Union officers, and the editors of the annual and the Journal.

Democrats Elect Kern To Post

Milton Kern, a member of the junior class at UNC-C, was recently named state vice-chairman of the College Federation of Young Democrats. Kern was selected by acclamation at the convention of the 32-Club organization held Friday, Sept. 24, at the Queen Charlotte Hotel.

Kern said he was "honored" and attributed his election to the "moderate-liberal sweep" in the intra-party balloting.

The newly elected vice-chairman will officially take office on Jan. 1, 1966. He lists as his prime objectives "the promoting of the purposes and ideals of the Democratic Party."

Kern expressed the desire "to acquaint college students with the workings of a political organization and to render assistance to any individual or college club when called upon."

Kern is a transfer student from Mitchell College in Statesville. At Mitchell he was president of the Student Government Association, president of the Young Democrats Club, and was a member of both the newspaper and annual staffs.

Other college Democrat leaders elected during the convention were: chairman, Larry Robinson of Wake Forest; secretary, Martha Gainey of UNC-G; treasurer, Barry Blick of ECC.

Students Can See UNC Football

Students interested in attending Carolina home games at the reduced rate of $2.00 per ticket should see Gus Psomadakis in the Student Legislature office in the Union at least a week before the game will be played.

Vote Now On School Colors For UNC-C

The University of North Carolina at Charlotte will soon have its own school colors.

A referendum is being held today to determine the official school colors.

Students, who will cast their votes at the information desk of the university union, are being asked to choose between light green, dark green, and deep purple. One of these three colors will be combined with white, which is the co-ordinating color of all the branches of the consolidated University.

These three colors were selected by the school colors committee headed by Mr. Ken Sanford, publicity director. This committee has the final word on the selection of school colors.

The referendum is being held in order to give the committee a guideline as to which color the students prefer.

The committee's main purpose in selecting these three colors for the students' consideration was to insure that there would be no similarity of colors within the University system.

At present the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill has the colors blue and white; gold and white are worn by the University at Greensboro, and State University's colors are red and white.

'Germany Approaching Two-Party System,' Dr. Seger Tells Students

By RICK DANCY
Journal News Editor

Dr. Gerhart Seger, consultant to the German Information Center in New York City, spoke to students in the library auditorium Wednesday, Sept. 22. Dr. Seger's topic was "Germany Since The Elections."

The lecture was sponsored by the UNC-C Chapter of the Collegiate Council on the United Nations.

Dr. Seger emphasized the "marvelous job" carried on by the U.S. Military Occupation Force in Germany following the end of World War II. He credited the U.S., with laying the foundations for the now prosperous Germany.

Dr. Seger briefly explained the difference between the American form of government and that form used in West Germany.

Where the president of the U.S. is elected for a definite term of office the German chancellor can be ousted by a vote of "No Confidence" by the German Parliament. However prior to the rendering of a vote of "No Confidence" the parliament must select a new Chancellor to insure a smooth change of officers.

Dr. Seger suggested that West German politics are becoming even more like American politics since "Germany, for all intents and purposes, is approaching a two-party system."

According to Seger the major issues of the recently held German elections were of a domestic nature and that U.S.-German relations would not have been altered regardless of which major party — Christian Democrats, Union, or Social Democrats—won.

During a question and answer period following his prepared speech, Seger answered the question "What is Erhart planning to do about France's Charles De Gaulle?" He said, "Erhart is in a hell of a fix here, DeGaulle is a relic of the 19th century. No European country is that great a power. However Erhart wishes to maintain friendly relations with Germany while retaining ties with other Western allies."

Entrance Patrolled By Police

The traffic situation at the campus entrance should have been considerably eased Monday. According to a Mecklenburg County Police spokesman, a county policeman will be stationed at the entrance for about half an hour during the main rush in the morning.

The action was taken after a collision took place Friday morning. Bad weather conditions and the long line of cars were blamed.

The Journal asked the county to supply the school with a policeman from 8 to 8:30 a. m. early last week. It was understood that one would be on duty at the entrance at that time the following day. The order failed to go through.

However, after Friday's wreck, a Mecklenburg County Policeman will be present to direct traffic.

A county police spokesman said Friday that only an emergency call elsewhere would prevent the patrolman from directing the college traffic.

Journal To Announce Meetings

Beginning next issue, The Journal will set up a column for the announcement of meetings and any other doings around the campus.

To do this, it will be necessary for each club or organization to have someone prepare the announcement and leave it in the Journal's basket at the Union information desk.

Deadline for this copy will be the second Wednesday after the paper comes out for the next paper. The date will be printed at the top of the story.

Next issue's deadline will be Oct. 13.
