

Mistakes Take Toll On UNC-C Cagers

Team captain Robbie Snipes sounded sleepy.

"The thing that hurt us the most was the number of little violations — walking, out of bounds, all the turnovers."

Snipes was sleeping off a Saturday night mistakes - filled conference basketball game with N.C. Wesleyan. The Bishops flipped the Forty-Niners for an 82-49 loop to hand Charlotte its fifth loss in five games since losing six regular players.

"We'd lose the ball before we got a chance to shoot. So Wesleyan had a lot more opportunities to score than we did."

Snipes said this and weak rebounding were the main factors in the five losses. "Every time we would make a mistake that resulted in a turnover we could lose four points — two points that we didn't get and two points that they could get. Wesleyan capitalized on this and, well, you know the final score."

The second weakness, rebounding difficulties, took its toll in the same manner.

"Another bad weakness is the lack of rebounding on both offense and defense. When we miss out on defensive rebounds we give the other team a second and third chance at a two-pointer. On offense, if we get the ball downcourt at all, we can only get one shot off."

The Saturday night game with Wesleyan finished off the regular season for Charlotte. They posted a final conference tally of 4-6. The loss Saturday manner a practice teacher does. Often classes are split so a tutor can be in charge of instructing half a class at a time.

"Those majoring in education will find tutoring especially beneficial, although people having majors that can be put into practical use on the scale of an elementary-age child will reap much satisfaction and enlarge his own intellectual scope," Psomadakis pointed out.

Participating already in the tutorial program are ten UNC-C students. Bill Kinsey, a tutor who may take charge of the program at Villa Heights, is now teaching the fifth grade.

"The people out there (at Villa Heights) are so anxious to arrange their hours to suit yours, and they just bend over backwards to give you any assistance they can," he says.

Another student who took part in the program for a while but had to drop out because of taking a block course was Miss Rosalee Shufak.

Any one who is interested in this program can obtain an application blank in either the Student Government office, U215 or from the Education Department. There is no age or class restriction on aspiring tutors.

gave Wesleyan a tie for first place with Jroffitt-featuring Lynchburg at 8-2.

UNC-C will play 3-7 St. Andrews in the 7 p.m. game at the Holy Cross High School Gym in Lynchburg Thursday for the first game of the Dixie tourney.

"I know we can beat them," said Snipes. "But in order to win we are going to have to play a lot better than the first time we played them."

"We can match them man for man as far as offense is concerned and we feel we've got a score to settle with them. We feel we're a better ball team than they are."

The Forty-Niners dropped Saturday's game for a number of reasons, one of which was one ill Jerry Anthony. Anthony played little over one half of the ball game and scored only seven points. Nick Stravakas, a little guard who didn't even dress out first semester, paced Charlotte with 14. Snipes added 12.

If luck changes, and things turn out as they should, the Charlotte team should be prepared for tourney play.

"Anthony should be over his cold and Art (Buralio) should have his hand healed," Snipes predicted. "If they're feeling all right, I think we can score."

Bowlers Lose To St. Andrews

A recent 2533 to 2415 loss to St. Andrews College has dropped the UNC at Charlotte keglars to fourth place in the Dixie Conference standings.

The winning St. Andrews team, which had been defeated by the 49ers earlier in the season, rolled sets of 823, 822, 888 while Charlotte fared 118 pins worse at 787, 807, 821.

In point standings, St. Andrews has a 19-0 record, tops in the conference ahead of College of Charleston and Lynchburg College, 17-11 each.

UNC-C, 4-3 in league play after the St. Andrews match, has a 14-14 point total. Methodist College, 10-18 and N.C. Wesleyan, 7-21, complete the standings.

"It's still anybody's race as far as the top four teams are concerned," says bowling advisor Donald McKay. "Even if we don't finish first, though, I'm sure we will make a good showing in the tournament."
