Religious Music Is Scheduled

New church music is being written in the Carolinas and some of the best of this spiritual music will be presented by the Chorus of the University of North Carolina at Charlotte in association with the Cleveland County Choral Society.

The music of 17 Carolinas composers will be sung by the groups under the direction of conductor Harvey L. Woodruff.

The concerts will be presented as follows: At 3 p.m., April 24 at Lawndale Methodist Church; at 3 p.m., May 1 at Shelby First Baptist; at 7:30 p.m., May 3 at Pleasant Ridge Baptist Church at Swainsville; at 8 p.m., May 17 at Myers Park Presbyterian Church in Charlotte; and at 11:30 a.m., May 18 in the Library Auditorium at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte.

Composers who will be represented are Kenneth Pool, organist at First Baptist Church at

Computer's Role To Be Discussed

Putting the computer to work in business will be discussed at a workshop for Charlotte area businessmen at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte April 13-14. The event is sponsored by the Business Club of UNC-C.

The sessions, titled, "The Computer in Modern Business Decision," will be led by members of the Economic and Business Administration and Mathematics Departments of the University.

They include Dr. William D. Wubben, chairman of the Economics and Business Administration Department; Dr. William L. Blachman, assistant professor of economics and business administration, specializing in economics and finance; Lloyd Dale Davis, instructor in the Mathematics Department, who specializes in statistics and probability; instructor in the Mathematics Department, who specializes in the computer; and Dr. David Nixon, assistant professor of mathematics, who specializes in statistics and probability.

Some 150 representatives of 100 business firms are expected to attend. Cost of the program will be $15 per participant. Also, graduating seniors in mathematics and business administration will participate. Dr. Blachman said that the event will both provide businessmen with information and also allow an opportunity to recruit the seniors in the two departments.

Sessions will begin at 2 p.m., April 13 and continue through the afternoon of the 14th. Topics include, "The Computer," "Employment Problems and Effects of Office Automation," "Operations Research," "The Computer in Financial Management and Control," and "Risk Analysis."

Exec. Council, Union, Journal Officers To Be Elected Today

Students Win NDEA, Fulbright Awards

A member of the senior class has received a National Defense Education Act (NDEA) Fellowship for three years of graduate study toward a Ph.D. degree.

Robert D. Thomas, 25, of 2513 Vail Avenue, Charlotte, will work toward a doctorate in political science at the University of Arizona at Tucson. He plans to graduate from here in August with a BA degree.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Thomas of 5521 Carmel Road, he is married and a veteran.

Last year Thomas was named an intern in the North Carolina General Assembly and served as an assistant to Senator Ralph Scott, chairman of the Senate Higher Education Committee. He worked with the committee while it was considering the bill to make Charlotte College the fourth campus of the University.

Mrs. Doris Clinard Weddington, the University of North Carolina at Charlotte's top senior academically, has won the first Fulbright grant ever received by a student at the institution.

Mrs. Weddington, who began her college career at 35, hopes to prove that life begins at 40—she will observe her 40th birthday this month.

Her age isn't the only unusual feature about the winner of the coveted Fulbright. For her entire college career she has made only straight As, the only senior to do so.

She says her career spans three institutions on the same campus. When she began college in 1962, the institution was Charlotte College, a community college; a year later it was a senior college, and she will be graduating this May 29 from the University of North Carolina at Charlotte.

An English major, Mrs. Weddington, will use her Fulbright to study English Renaissance Drama at University College of the University of London.

The winner is walking on air about winning, except for one so-far disappointing aspect. She has a daughter, Elizabeth, eight, and a son, David, 16. Enough money is in hand to take Elizabeth with her and enroll her in a public school in England. However, Mrs. Weddington needs about $500 more to take her son David.

David is a promising student of drama, with emphasis on Shakespeare, at the North Carolina School of Arts at Winston-Salem. Mrs. Weddington feels that it would be a shame for David not to get to Shakespeare's homeland to continue drama studies.

Of course, her husband, Walter D. Weddington, who has the watch repair concession at W. T. Grant Company in downtown Charlotte, will have to remain with his business. The Weddingtons are residents of 2450 Elkwood Circle, Charlotte.

Mrs. Weddington's hometown is Mooresville. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Clinard of the Prospect Community at Mooresville.

She said that Dr. Bonnie Cone was really responsible for her beginning college later in life. For years Mrs. Weddington had wanted to attend college. Then she saw statements in the newspapers by Dr. Cone, plugging college educations for adults. She clipped the articles, placed them beside her telephone and "finally got courage to call the college." She enrolled at Charlotte College when daughter Elizabeth was in kindergarten.

Mrs. Weddington plans to be a

The polls for student body executive positions, University Union officers, and Editor of the Carolina Journal will open today at 12:15 p.m. and remain open until 7:30 p.m. to allow the night school voters to cast their ballots. The Polls will open for voters tomorrow at 8:30 a.m. and remain open until 7:30 p.m.

Election speeches will be given today during the 11:30 break in the Library Auditorium.

The Student Party's candidate for President of the Student Body, Tim Britton, is running unopposed. Britton expressed his opinion that "in order for our University to reach true University status, we are all going to have to evaluate what we have done to help reach this goal, and act accordingly. It is only Slechta New AAUP Pres.

Dr. Joseph Slechta, associate professor of French at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte, has been elected to the vice presidency of the North Carolina Conference of the American Association of University Professors to fill an unexpired term.

He has served during this academic year as president of the UNC-C Chapter of AAUP.

The State Conference includes all institutions' chapters plus independent members on campuses which do not have chapters.

through hard work in this direction that we can approach the concept of a true University.

"We need the help of each and every student at UNC-C. Let's make the academic year 1966-67, the year in which UNC-C reaches University status without a doubt from any angle. I'll be working for you, but I need your help and support."

Monday morning brought a new candidate in the race for President of the Student Body. Wayne Furr, a rising senior, is running for the office as an independent.

When asked what he thought his chances for election were because of his late start, Furr says he thinks he has a chance and "I wouldn't be in it if I didn't."

Furr entered the race "primarily (because) I thought I could do the job and I hate to see Britton go unopposed." He set three major goals for his administration if he is elected: (1) conduct an investigation to insure that student funds are properly spent; (2) separate student publications from the Student Government; (3) publish student evaluation of professors.

The two candidates are Bud Stokely, a rising senior, and Sam Scott, a rising junior.

Stokely stated his primary objective as "the realization of a conscientious two party system that will be responsive to the needs of our student body. We intend to help give the students at UNC-C the kind of student government that they deserve. Now that we have joined the consolidated University it is time for a mature approach. This is what (I am) offering." Stokely is

'PACE' Offers Summer Employment

Students who need employment in order to attend college should investigate a new program called PACE. This advice comes from Miss Mildred English, Director of Student Personnel.

Students can also obtain summer employment under this program.

PACE, which stands for Plan Assuring College Education, has been formed to take advantage of the funds available for college students under the work-study provisions of the Higher Education Act of 1965 according to Dean Donald MacKay.

Under the provisions of the Act, any public or non-profit agency which needs extra summer help may request a college student to work. The government will then pay 90 per cent of the student's wages and the agency will pay the other 10 per cent.

Miss English listed law enforcement agencies, local welfare departments, libraries, health departments, local poverty fighting agencies, schools, and similar institutions as possible areas of employment for needy students.

Twenty-four colleges and universities (including UNC-C) in North Carolina have expressed an interest in handling the necessary applications for funds for their students.

The program will be coordinated by Mr. T. A. Gu'ton who says that "Students successful in getting PACE work-study assignments can make money this summer while performing meaningful tasks in their home communities. The student benefits; the community benefits; and the ability of the college to render aid can be supplemented."

Students can work up to 15 hours per week during school under the PACE program and up to 40 hours per week during the summer.

Any student who can not attend college because of financial limitations is encouraged to make an application to PACE through Miss English's office. Freshmen entering next fall are eligible as well as students already in college.
