The exhibit is scheduled to run from November 7 through 25. Mrs. Fran Clay, art chairman of the Distaff Club, said that coffee will be served to those attending the exhibit on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fumero, a Cuban couple in their eighties, started their yarn-and-canvas art work in 1962. Their work has been featured in a special showing at the Mint Museum and can be found in the homes of many of Charlotte's art connoisseurs.

The Fumeros had no previous art training prior to their start. Their son, Jose, interested them in the art form and they decided to take a course in yarn painting which he was teaching at the time at the Mint.

Mrs. Fumero's work is precise and flat. She intricately blends stitches and color, giving her works a distinct feminine flavor. Most of her painting are of an

Trustees Say Problems Here Need Solving

BY JOHN MOORE

At the board of trustee meeting in the Student Union ballroom on October 24, the trustees of UNC were told that UNC-C must receive special treatment in order to reach university status in reality as well as in name.

Seventy of the 100 member board attended the meeting to hear a report by the trustee visiting committee.

The report made it plain that UNC-C has many problems which do not exist in the other universities. An inadequate library for a senior institution which will also offer graduate work is just one problem.

For a science building, campus lighting, a language laboratory, expansion of utilities, dormitories, new land, and outdoor physical

Election Returns Held-Up

In a surprise move, results of the freshman elections were kept confidential by the Election Committee, last Friday afternoon and the JOURNAL was unable to obtain them for publication.

Cirina McLaurin, chairman of the Election Committee, said that the results would be held in confidence until 1:00 p.m. Monday, October 31, due to the many rumors of rule infractions during the elections.

Amid an air of confusion, those Election Committee members and observers who were present during the counting of the ballots quickly left campus after the committee's announcement.

Contacted at her home, Miss McLaurin said that in holding up the results she was only following the suggestion of student body president Tim Britton who had appointed her chairman of the committee.

Mr. Britton, when reached at his home, said, "My first impulse was to go ahead and publicize the results. Waiting until Monday was Cirina's idea and I will back her up."

Britton said that, although no written protests concerning election procedure had been received, "there were too many verbal complaints to ignore."
