

How To Succeed In Trapping A Man Without Even Trying

BY CORNY STILWELL

Here's some of my fool-proof methods for "how to succeed in trapping a man without even trying". Of course, I can't guarantee the effectiveness of most of the ideas. Perhaps it would be practical to try them all and through trial and error (mostly error) you can decide on the ones most suited to your personality.

The one idea that seems to be the best one, especially with world conditions such as they are today, is to keep mentioning the draft. This proves to be a good marriage promoter in this day and time. Men are going to all ends to evade the long arm of Uncle Sam... even a sure death as marriage. That is a subject on which I could expound for centuries to come, but I worry that I'll offend and I don't dare do that—not in this newspaper.

Now, the second method to try is the one in which you employ the word "inexpensive" (not cheap). You simply keep reminding the subject how inexpensive your tastes are and hope that he catches on. But there's one thing to watch for if you snare a date with him, remember how inexpensive you've been telling him you are...unless he proves to be a dud and you aren't worried about trapping him after all.

The next method is not too easily followed. You must have fortitude—guts. You begin this one in a standing position...you let the victim hypothesize that you have money. You just have to be careful that you don't let him discover you don't really have money until after you've trapped him.

Men are always bugging women about the good-looking blond at the office. So, you can turn into one of the purr...purr...purr... perfect blondes that you so often see on the "big eye". Don't do this, however, because they only want other women to be blonde not you. No one wants to be known as the "blonde-boomshell's husband."

A method that doesn't work for me but might for you, is to make your home a free dispenser for beer. This tends to make the Bartenders of America mad at you for operating without a license. It also tends to turn your home into a refuge for alcoholics. I don't recommend this method too highly, but if everything else fails, give it a try.

The next method is one in which you could get trapped yourself. My suggestion to you is turn your basement into a virtual gameroom. Knock out a wall or two and put in a pooltable and a ping-pong table. Of course, you could be ignored after you've answered the door and led the way to the pooltable. But at least you'll have the fellow in your domain.

One method, to which I've not resorted yet, is to advertise that your folks have a place on the beach and you go down...there every weekend. (Make whatever you will out of that sentence). This will result in your inheritance of a bum or freeloader all your life. If you want a guy that badly, you can have him.

Now, let me tell you that I've tried several different methods myself and the one that prevails over all of them is the one which seems most logical. Never mention marriage to a guy and you've got it. That seems to prove that you're not out to trap anyone and men don't want to feel that they're being trapped like a rabbit. (They're not much better when a female hunter sets her sights on them!). But when I develop a sure-fire, never miss method, I hope to put it on Broadway!

P. S. I'm going to have to start charging for my advice one of these days, (you know). Dear Corny.....

Literary Club (Parnassian People) Meets

BY GAYLE WATTS

The Literary Club will have an organizational meeting on next Wednesday, November 9 at 11:30 a.m. in room A202. Faculty advising is available.

This club has in the past enriched campus life through the publication of The Parnassian, a literary magazine composed of the original works of UNC-C students. The Parnassian, formerly published twice a year, was not offered last year.

Providing opportunities for discussions and criticisms of contemporary and older authors, in addition to an outlet for students' writing talents, the Literary Club is a useful and entertaining addition to the UNC-C campus.

All students with an interest in writing and publishing (or being published!) are invited to come to A 202 on November 9.

Pep Club, Sophomores Meet And APO Is Out For Blood

Wednesday, November 2, 1966

The Student Party will meet in U-209 from 11:30 until 12:30.

Alpha Phi Omega will hold a meeting in U-210 from 12:00 until 12:50.

The University Party will meet in U-231 and 232 from 11:30 until 12:30.

The Cheerleaders will practice in U-231 and 232 from 4:00 until 6:00.

The Baptist Student Union will have a meeting in U-233 from 11:30 until 1:30.

Baptists Will Convene Soon At Wake Forest

The annual Baptist Student Convention is being held at Wake Forest College in Winston-Salem on November 4-6, 1966.

Several students have already signed up to attend. Other interested students of all denominations are invited to help us represent UNC-C at Winston-Salem. The registration fee is $1.00.

A meeting for all students who plan to attend the convention will be held in U233 at 11:30 a.m. on Wednesday, November 2.

Most colleges and universities throughout North Carolina will be represented at the Student Convention.

This is an opportunity to hear speakers such as Dr. Warren Carr, Pastor, Wake Forest Baptist Church, Winston - Salem; Dr. Robert E. Seymour, Pastor, Binky Memorial Baptist Church, Chapel Hill; Dr. John Macquire, Professor, Weleyan College, Middletown, Connecticut and Dr. Ben C. Fesher, Secretary, Council on Christian Education, Raleigh.

The Rotary Club will meet in U-215 from 11:30 until 12:30.

Tuesday, November 8, 1966
The United States Marine Corps will be recruiting in the Lobby from 9:00 until 5:00.

Other Notes of Interest:

Your body contains about 12 pints of blood. Surely you can spare one pint for someone who needs it desperately. If you are between 18 and 59 years of age, and weight 110 pounds or over, you are able to give blood. The pint of blood you give entitled you and your immediate family to receive blood for 12 months through the Piedmont Carolina Regional Blood Program. If you give two gallons over a period of time, you are given a lifetime card.

Alpha Phi Omega is signing up students and faculty each Wednesday until November 16. The Blood Drive will be held on that day from 9:30 until 4:30. President Bill Hodges said, "A P O is sponsoring the blood drive for the second year. We hope participation will be better this year because UNC-C came in last place in the donating last year."

The Circle K Club at UNC-C elected new officers at their Wednesday, October 26 meeting. The incoming officers are: President-Walker "Chip" Wright, Vice-President-Richard James, Secretary-Andrew Fitzpatrick, Treasurer-Reggie Yaude. Normally the officers are elected at the end of the school year and this was done last May.

Scott MacMillan said that the club was already making plans for the coming year. These plans include "...assembling and distributing a Student Directory, continuing to publish the newsletter as long as there is sufficient interest, a coffee hour on November 9 to start the membership drive and several Circle K Forums which will present speakers of interest to the student body."

Yearbook portraits in process color will be taken on Thursday, November 17 and Friday, November 18 from 8:00 to 2:00 in U215. Men should wear dark coats and ties and blouses for the women are provided.

The University Chorus has received notice that the North Charlotte Rotary Club cannot attend the full chorus concert planned for Monday, December 19 at 1 p.m. in our ballroom. They will, therefore, take a double quartet to perform at the North Charlotte Rotary Club following a 12:30 luncheon with the Club members.

The Chorus would also like to announce their slate of newly elected officers. They are: Dwayne Spitzer, president; Paul Boswell, vice-president; Theresa Stanton, Secretary - treasurer; Melody Roberts and Betty Ann Guion, Librarians.
