Arts Forum Begins Tomorrow

BY CAROL HAYWOOD

According to Dr. Loy H. Witherspoon, a tragedy might occur Thursday, March 2. The faculty and students might not expose themselves to the knowledge that the participants of the University's Forum can give them. The topic for this year's Forum is "The University's Relationship to the Arts and the Community."

The Forum is a preliminary program to the installation of Chancellor Dean W. Colvard at 11 A.M. on March 3.

Seniors Discuss Location

The Senior Class met to discuss plans of graduation on Wednesday, February 22 in C-120.

Dr. Cone addressed the class concerning the actions of the Committee for Graduation until the present. Ovens Auditorium was not available last June when the Committee first met so a tentative reservation was made for a Park Center graduation.

When it was learned that Park Center was not an agreeable site to many Seniors, the Committee looked for other locations. Several places were discussed by the Committee and then in the class meeting.

It was decided to appoint a committee from the class to find every possible location and figure out the number of invitations each senior would be allowed at each place.

The committee will present its findings at the next Senior class meeting which is scheduled for 11:30 on March 15 in C120. Seniors have been urged to attend this meeting.

Mike Thomas, President of the Senior class, read a list of announcements pertaining to Seniors. They are as follows:

Each graduating Senior should pick up three placement sheets from Miss English's office. These sheets go into a permanent file on each student so that he can get references anytime in the future.

This campus is beginning its own program in the arts; while music and drama are being founded, painting is being added to on the campus. The Forum will offer the opportunity for knowledge of what is going on in the frontiers. It is hoped to encourage creative and experimental work in all fields of art, not just the classics. Dr. Witherspoon says that the newness of the campus provides the genuine opportunity to do something genuinely original, the opportunity to lead rather than to follow and to try to hold on to what it thinks.

An address by Douglas Reid Sasser, President of Young Harris College, will begin the March 2 program at 10 A.M. in the Parquet Room of the University Union.

Sasser's address will be followed at 11 A.M. by an address by Richard Gilman, drama critic and associate editor of Newsweek.

Seminars will comprise the afternoon. These seminars will be led by Robert H. Corrigan, Dean of the School of the Arts of New York University, and Norman Dello Joio, Pulitzer Prize winning composer and chairman of the policy committee of the Contemporary Music Project of the Ford Foundation. Mr. Gilman and James Johnson Sweeney, director of the Museum of Arts of Houston, Texas, and former director of the Guggenheim Museum, will lead the seminars at 3 P.M.

In 1957 Mr. Dello Joio won the Pulitzer Prize for his work for string orchestra, "Meditations on Ecclesiastes." He studied at Juilliard; after three years of composition, he moved to the Yale School of Music. For some years, he was on the faculty of Sarah Lawrence College. He was next professor of music at Mannes College of Music.

Dr. McEniry Is New Vice Chancellor

Dr. William Hugh McEniry, Jr., has been named to the top academic position here. As vice chancellor for academic affairs he will be in charge of all academic programs and the library.

His appointment was approved by the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees of the University of North Carolina.

Chancellor D. W. Colvard said that Dr. McEniry comes recommended by his peers in academic administration as one of the outstanding academic administrators in the Southeast. The chancellor says he also understands that Dr. McEniry is well regarded by foundations and had helped Stetson to receive a Ford Foundation grant.

Dr. McEniry is also a leading Baptist layman and is highly regarded in Baptist higher education.

A former president of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, regional accrediting agency for southern institutions, Dr. McEniry is presently dean of Stetson University at DeLand, Florida. He will leave his Stetson position to come to Charlotte some time this summer.

Dr. James H. Wahab, chairman of the Mathematics Department, who has been serving as acting academic dean since 1964, will serve as top academic officer until Dr. McEniry arrives.

The 51-year-old McEniry is a native of Bessemer, Alabama, and received his AB degree in 1937 from Birmingham - Southern College. He received his MA in 1938 and his PhD in literature and philosophy in 1942 from Vanderbilt University.

At Stetson, Dr. McEniry has been assistant professor of English and acting chairman of the department, chairman of the Department of English and chairman of the Division of Humanities, acting dean of the University, chairman of the graduate council, dean of the college of liberal arts and dean of the university since 1959.

In addition to serving as president of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, Dr. McEniry has served as a member of the Commission on Colleges of the Southern Association and on the executive committee. He has been a member of the Coordinating Committee for the Educational Improvement Project of the Southern Association since 1963.

Other professional affiliations include: member of the Educational Policies and Practices Advisory

'Only Once Will We Install First Chancellor' -- Dr. Cone

BY GAYLE WATTS

North Carolina state leaders -- including government officials and heads of Universities -- will come to Charlotte from all parts of the state to join in honoring Dr. Dean W. Colvard during his installation as chancellor of this branch of the state university. The entire student body is invited and classes are cancelled for Friday, March 3, so that students may be free to attend the installation ceremony at 11 a. m. at Ovens Auditorium.

"Only once in history will we install the first Chancellor of the University of North Carolina at Charlotte and it is indeed a privilege to be involved in this momentous event," says Vice Chancellor Bonnie Cone, chairman of the Installation Committee.

Installation activities actually begin on March 2 with a forum held on this campus at 10:00 a.m. That evening a dinner will be held in the University Union for Special guests.

Dr. Barnaby C. Keeney, an alumnus of UNC-CH, who is chairman of the National Foundation for the Humanities and who was formerly the President of Brown University, will deliver the address.

rice will be served. Also, Seal-test Dairy has prepared a special dessert in our school colors for the occasion -- squares of Vanilla ice cream with green trimmings.

Eleven marshals, selected on an academic basis from out student body, will be on hand at this dinner to help in any way possible. These students are: Jerry W. Causby, Charles F. Culp, Robert A. Ennis, Patsey J. Hansel, William J. McAuley, Jr., Connie L. Morgan, Lindsay L. Robertson, Macon C. Smith, Jr., William L. Spicer, Susan M. Thomas, Johanna M. Zimmer.

"Nineteen other students closely involved in student government or who have shown excellence in other areas will also be present at the dinner," says Student Body President Tim Britton. These nineteen persons include the President and Vice-President of all four classes, Ellison Clary, Jr., editor of the Journal, Sandra Brantley, editor of the annual, the Executive Council of the University Union, and the Executive Council of the Student Government.

Forty Students, including the eleven marshals above, will serve as marshals for the installation ceremony on March 3 to give our programs and seat guests.

Among the guests invited to this black tie affair are the UNC Trustees, contributors to UNC-C, officials of the general university administration -- including President William Friday and his staff, and heads of the other branches of the University.

Entertainment will be a concert by the Charlotte Symphony Orchestra and a reception will follow the dinner.

On March 3, the installation ceremony will be attended by many
