

Hopefuls To Speak Today

BY GAYLE WATTS

After a full week of soliciting votes, the candidates for the University Union Executive Committee positions will deliver their campaign speeches today at 11:30 a. m. in the Parquet Room of the Union.

The candidates for the chairmanship of the Union, Dwayne Spitzer and Nick Stavarakas, will have five minutes each to speak, and the candidates for the other offices are allotted three minutes each.

John Lafferty, candidate for vice-chairman, and Kay Watson, candidate for secretary, are running uncontested. Bobbe Berry, who is seeking the position of treasurer, has been challenged for that position by Ronnie Russell.

Mr. Russell feels that the Union is the "center of the social life of our school" and he "does not see why the Union can't sponsor entertainment every weekend so students don't have to go elsewhere."

"I would like to see more weekend activities which will bring the students closer together," he explains.

Russell says, "I would like to see our money spent so that it benefits more people than it has in the past," and he adds, "that means active students getting the most for their money."

"I am for more entertainment that we have had in the past," says Mr. Russell, "in short, for anything that makes our school livelier."

"I am in favor of some sort of poll to see how the students feel about entertainment. We should find out early what the student body wants so that the time to schedule the events will be available."

Voting days, as of this writing, are the 21, 22, 23 of March between the hours of 8:30 a.m. -- 4:30 p. m. and 6:00 p.m. -- 9:00 p. m.

Court Convicts Student Of 2 Honor Violations

The Student Court, in a four-hour session last Friday, convicted a student here of two violations of the Honor Code. The student, William C. Pilker, a Junior, was found guilty of both lying and cheating.

The charges grew out of a recent student election to decide the nickname of this campus. Dwayne Spitzer, election committee chairman, accused Pilker of giving election committee workers a false name and of voting more than once.

Spitzer was a main witness for Bud Stokely, prosecuting attorney. He testified that he saw Pilker vote more than once and said he was reasonably sure Pilker gave a name other than his own.

Frank Caton, defense lawyer, placed Pilker on the stand. Pilker testified he had the permission of another student to cast a ballot for him. He said there was a misunderstanding at the polling place of the name which he gave the election workers.

The court, composed of seven judges, deliberated for approximately one hour after hearing the closing summations.

Chief Justice Hohn Gaither delivered the verdict of the Court. It reads as follows:

"In order for this court to properly consider the guilt or innocence of the accused, we found it necessary to reach a unanimous opinion as to what actions constitute lying and cheating. It is our opinion that the following are valid working definitions.

"Lying—misstatement or misrepresentation of facts by the individual which are known by him to be otherwise than stated.

"Cheating—actions taken by the individual which take unfair advantage of the rights of his peers in cases where custom that each individual is to have equal rights.

"The court has viewed the actions of the accused in the light of these definitions, and has decided that he is guilty upon both counts.

"The right to vote is an inherent one—a privilege which, although not specified by the responsibility to exercise that right in a manner befitting the sanctity of that privilege. When a member of any society so belittles that right it indicates that he does not appreciate it; then the society which granted him that privilege has also the right to deprive the individual of that right.

Capacity Crowd Greet Rock

BY PAUL BOSWELL

Last Wednesday in the Union Ballroom, Dr. John Rock, a primary developer and proponent of the birth control pill, spoke to a near-capacity audience of students, faculty, and guests.

After being introduced by Union Chairman Frank Jones, Dr. Rock, looking every inch the distinguished doctor that he is, approached the mike unable to suppress a blush at the applause.

Speaking of an introduction he received at a former speaking engagement, he quipped, "I was once introduced as a man who could well discuss sex, since both of my names are four letter words."

He then turned to Larry Keith's recent article on the "Sin Now, Pay Later" plan. He commented, "The general atmosphere of the article was not wholly unpolluted."

The doctor pointed out that China has moved up its legal marriage age range to 20-30 years for men and 18-25 years for women in an effort to control population.

"Notice they are keeping the range in adolescence," He glibed. Discussing the fact that the women who get abortions (legal in China) get four weeks paid vacation and become heroines, he said, "Let's not come to that."

However, he added that "anybody who doesn't pay attention to the welfare of society is reactionary."

He conceded that one battle has been won; birth control is here to stay. Other battles must be won in laboratories and in the minds of people.

"You must accept that you as an American are not entitled to have more than two and one-half children," he added.

"The sex instinct is loaned in interest of our kind, not for our own enjoyment. Man has reason, free will, and spirituality and therefore has something else to do than merely propagate."

"Sex, however pleasurable, is inseparably integrated with love. We must never fail to realize love is a prime aspect of human instinct."

He pointed out that the human sex instinct is controlled by the cortex of the brain which sifts out proper and improper impulses. The significance of sex action is here; therefore, the cortex needs example and education.

"There are getting to be far too many of us," he said. "Too much togetherness is not conducive to healthy mentality."

"It took us 1840 years after Christ to make our first billion.

Ninety years later the second came, the third in thirty years after that, the fourth in ten years more, and the fifth, sixth, and seventh will come before the year 2000."

Overpopulation will lead, he added, to neglect of young, destroying of the family, and the doom of the whole structure of society.

Now the question arises, how to accomplish birth control?

"It's simple," he said. "Just be sure that naughty little spermatozoan doesn't find the little egg."

Dr. Rock explained that the ovulation cycle of women is not very dependable, and that conventional contraceptive methods are mechanical and generally unsatisfactory.

"The pill is the most physiological of all," he expounded. "The hormones in the pill function exactly as the female's hormones function in pregnancy."

His remarks were interrupted periodically as he stopped to dig notes.

positions are Bud Stokely, Rodney Smith, and Patty Moser.

The University Party also endorsed candidates for the Positions of editor of the school publications. Endorsed for Union offices are Dwayne Spitzer for chairman, John Lafferty for vice chairman, Kay Watson for secretary, and Ronnie Russell for treasurer.

The UP backs Paul Boswell for editor of the Carolina Journal and Candy Kimbrell for editor of the annual.

Nominees for positions on the Publications Board are Patsy Hansel and Phil Wilson.

Bill Shuford, chairman of the Student Party stated that the SP's nominations for legislative positions will be made known at a later date. He remarked that "as for the president and vice president of the student body, SP, placing student government before party competition for competition's sake, and recognizing the outstanding qualities exhibited by John Gaither and Bill Billups, endorse these two candidates, regardless of party affiliations."

Concerning the Union and publications positions, Mr. Shuford pointed out that the SP "made no endorsements because that is supposed to be completely non-partisan.

Colvard Asks $1.5 Addition

Chancellor D. W. Colvard addressed the joint appropriations committee of the State Legislature last Thursday and asked that $1.5 million of the requests made by this campus for new undertakings be restored for the next two years.

Dr. Colvard told the committee the funds are desperately needed for library books, research, top-level faculty members, and increased salaries. He said the requested restoration is designed to develop the foundations in personnel in books and in equipment for a core university program.

Funds for the acquisition of additional volumes for the Atkins library made up a major portion of the restoration requests. A request of $600,000 for books for the next two years was cut to $177,000 by the advisory budget commission.

Dr. Colvard explained to the committee that there are just 75,000 volumes in the library at this time and that most new universities start with at least 100,000 volumes and have large budgets for future acquisitions.

"Adequate library resources, services, and facilities are the basic core of any institution of higher education. Without a library which will support instructional and research programs, all the top faculty personnel and fine classroom facilities available cannot result in academic excellence.
