

Religious Life Building To Be Completed When Dormitories Are Built, Located Near Them

With the cooperation of Dr. Bonnie E. Cone, several ministers and laymen of different faiths in the Charlotte Area initiated and funded a chaplaincy program headed by Dr. Loy Witherspoon, chairman of the Religion Department.

A United Religious Work program was established for stimulating inquiry and involvement on the part of students and for providing coordination among the several religious communities who seek to work with their students on the campus. The Religious Life Building is tentatively scheduled to be completed at the same time as the dormitories and will probably be located near them.

students at Raleigh. Many varied activities are planned for the future including a series of "secular" movies which will be interpreted in the light of philosophy and religion by a qualified faculty member.

This year the only active denominated group is the Baptist Student Union. An inter-denominational group is meeting every morning in C-building for Bible study and devotional services.

The next meeting of the B.S.U. is today at 11:30 a.m. in U-23 where they will hear a lecture and discuss the new morality, personal freedom, situation ethics, and the playboy philosophy.

The B.S.U., however, is always open to any student of any particular faith. It's activities so far this year have been meetings concerning the draft, technology and social change, and the psychodynamics of love.

Everyone is welcome to join at any time of the year.

The group has had a Halloween party at a coffee house and has attended the North Carolina B.S.U. Fall Convention with approximately 400 other N. C. college

Robbins Speaks To SCL Concerning Jefferson Davis-Conferederate Nationalist

BY FRANK SASSER

Dr. John Robbins, speaker at the Senior Classical League meeting Wednesday, November 15, entitled his lecture "Jefferson Davis -- Confederate Nationalist," or "Jefferson Davis -- Classical Statesman."

Jefferson Davis", said Dr. Robbins, "has much to tell both the present-day South and LBJ." He was called to leadership, Dr. Robbins continued, at a time when two great leaders dwarfed all around them, i.e., Lincoln and "St. Robert E. Lee." Davis has two main groups of followers, those who denounce him and "the United Daughters of the Confederacy type." According to Dr. Robbins, Davis is denounced principally because his side lost and supported because he became a symbol of the suffering of the South after the Civil War.

Davis was "a spokesman for the orthodox Southern position," a supporter of the states' rights theory, and a champion of Southern interests in the U. S. Congress, besides being an army hero, Dr. Robbins stated. "He was NOT a radical," he continued. "In fact, he was called to his position of head of the CSA because he was a moderate and this would gain allies for the succeeded states".

Almost overwhelming problems faced the new President, one of the major ones being organization, Dr. Robbins told the group. Davis saw the Confederate States of America as the CSA--not as individual states. He realized that the times called for something other than localism, and he took steps to weaken it. He said that President Davis pushed through Congress an extensive program of nationalism, one part of it being the first national conscription in history.

"The totality of its (the South's) defeat is the result of the totality of its efforts," Jefferson Davis was behind this effort. Dr. Robbins stated that as a leader in the first modern war in U. S. history David proved to be a man of vision and growth.

After Dr. Robbins' lecture the Senior Classical League elected officers for this year. The officers are: President, Sandra Hoover, a junior from Mt. Holly; Vice-President, Frank Sasser, a sophomore from Charlotte; Secretary-Treasurer, Boyd Morgan, a second semester sophomore from Salisbury; and Historian, Sue Amos, a second semester freshman from Murphy.
