

Impressive Scholars Lead Forum

'Once In Lifetime' These Together

By ROD SMITH

The third annual University Forum at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte will feature Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, one of the nation's leading scholars in the field of foreign affairs, Department of State consultant Dr. Kissinger will be joined on March first by Dr. Fred Sondermann, professor of international relations at the Colorado College at Colorado Springs, Colorado; Dr. Fred Warner Neal, professor of government and international relations at the Claremont Graduate School in California; and Dr. Lucian Pey, professor of political science at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. According to Dr. Nish Jamgotch, seldom has such an impressive role of foreign affairs scholars been compiled: "once in a lifetime will these four men convene."

Dr. Kissinger is presently a member of the faculty of the Center for International Affairs and of the Department of Government at Harvard University, where he received his AB, MA, and Ph.D degrees and was chosen to be honored with a Phi Beta Kappa key.

Recently Dr. Kissinger received a citation by the Overseas Press Club for his book "Nuclear Weapons and Foreign Policy," and in 1958 he was awarded the Woodrow Wilson prize for the best book in the fields of government, politics, and international affairs. A veteran of the Counter-Intelligence Corps in World War II and recipient of the Bronze Star, Dr. Kissinger is a consultant for such U. S. Government agencies as the United States Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, the RAND Corporation, and the National Security Council, in addition to the Department of State.

Despite his pressing schedule and numerous activities, Dr. Kissinger has found the time to author several books, including, A World Restored: Castlereagh, Metternich and the Restoration of Peace, 1812 - 1822, The Necessity Choice: Prospects of American Foreign Policy, and The Troubled Partnership: A Reappraisal of the Atlantic Alliance. He is also author of numerous articles in the field of international affairs. An impressive list of credits for a scholar and a true expert in his field.

This year's Forum will feature an addition to the program design to benefit the Charlotte community. There will be an evening session at 8:00 p.m. to allow persons in the area who must work during the day to participate in the Forum. At that session all four authorities on international relations will participate in a panel on "The University and International Relations: Problems and Prospects."

A buffet dinner for persons attending the Forum will be held at 6:45 p.m.

The names of the newly elected officers are: Earl W. Baucom, President; Danny W. Phillips, Vice president; Laurence J. Smith, Secretary; Henry Parry Bliss, Treasurer; and Donald C. Sprouse, Master of Rituals.

Jordan, Blanks Receive Red Cross Recognition

The University has been highly honored through two of its students. Miss Lenore Blanks, a sophomore, and Mr. Erik Jordan, a freshman, have been chosen by the Mecklenburg County Chapter of the American Red Cross to be possible delegates to the American National Red Cross' program, "Friendship Central America." Lenore and Erik were chosen from four students in this area who applied. There will be eight students from the Southeastern United States who will be interviewed by Red Cross volunteers and professional staff on Thursday, March 22 in Atlanta, Georgia. Lenore and Erik will be there to represent this area. Four of the eight students will be chosen to represent the Red Cross and the United States as ambassadors of good will in Central America. The purpose of this project is to provide a program of service, especially in health and safety, to be carried out jointly by young people of the American Red Cross and the Red Cross societies of Costa Rica, El Salvador, Nicaragua and Panama.

College students working in small groups will serve in local programs of the host society. They will teach first aid, water safety,

Grimm Brothers At Green Garter Are Sort Of 'Editorial Cartoon'

By SONIA MIZELL

Why would a trio call themselves the Grimm Brothers? Because it rhymes with Jim and they used to be known as the Grimm Jims. However, there is now a John which messes everything up. The reason now is because they have their own brand of fairy tales. (Get it? Grimm--fairy tales!)

But don't be misled. Their ideas are not fairy tale ideas. The trio of boys are all political science majors who find many things in America to be imperfect. They see a means within the American governmental system for change. Rather than demonstrate, or riot to prove their point, they feel it is much more effective to make people laugh at criticisms of the American system. The Grimm Brothers picture themselves as a type of editorial cartoon.

People worry about Cuba ninety miles away, but does anyone worry about Canada which is right on the border of the U.S.A.? Take time to think and worry? Canada has changed the color of the maple leaf on its flag to RED. They have troops massed on the border disguised as trees and branches. No one has ever seen them. That is because they cannot be seen. Begin to worry now!
