Lectures, Demonstrations To Highlight Arts Week

By BARBARA JEAN SMITH

There is growing enthusiasm and excitement on campus in response to the forthcoming second annual New Arts Festival. The Festy New Arts Festival. The Festival will be held on campus during the week of April 1-7, and will consist of various lectures and demonstrations by experts in the field of Fine Arts.

The objective of the New Arts Festival has been stated by members of the Art Department as an opportunity to stimulate interest in new directions in art and as "general cultural enlightenment."

A general review of the week consists of lectures on painting, clay-throwing, sculpturing; a panel discussion on young writers; poetry reading; and the film "Romeo and Juliet Ballet" starring Dame Margot Fonteyne and Rudolph Nureyev. Also on the agenda is a play, "Waiting For Godot", presented by the Fine Arts Department here, and a concert by Raul Spivak.

The play, "Waiting For Godot" will be presented on the evenings of April 4, 5 and 6 in C-200 at 8:00 p.m. The story is that of two tramps and their mutual waiting for Godot whom they feel will bring them meaning for life and existence.

The play features John Hostetter as Estragon, Paul Atwell as Vladimir, Roger Grosswald as Lucky, Gerry Dionne as Pozzo, and Tom Carmody as the Boy. Others involved with the production are Catherine Nicholson, the director; Richard Gantt, designer; Sue Garrett, stage manager; and Barbara Smith, assistant director.

In addition to those mentioned above are Roger Alley, Pat Price, Vicky Beckham, and Nancy Hartog. Raul Spivak's concert, the last of a four concert series entitled "Prospectives in Music Through the Keyboard" will be held at 3:30 p.m. in the Parquet Room on Sunday April 7. His program, entitled "20th Century Composers and Nationalism In Music", will feature a number which is the first presentation in Charlotte. This piece is "Twelve American Preludes" by Genastra which were dedicated to Mr. Spivak.

Howard and Ann Thomas will be part of the program on Monday, April 1. They are both artists and educators. Howard Thomas presently is Professor of Art at the University of Georgia. He has held exhibitions in major national and regional exhibitions and has won numerous awards. Ann Thomas is an expert in silk screen prints.

Donald Sexauer will lecture on print-making Monday. Mr. Sexauer, Professor of Art at East Carolina University, is listed in "Who's Who in American Art" and "International Directory of Art, Berlin 1965." The Mint Museum of Art of Charlotte has a permanent collection of Professor

'On Campus' University T.V. Program To Start April 4

By CAROL HAYWOOD

Produced by Mike Carmichael, hosted by Lanier Jones and Linda Craven, "On Campus," a thirty-minute program on Channel 42, WTVI, has been designed to depict events which are affecting the students of UNC-C. The program will be aired every Thursday at 8:30 p.m. throughout the summer and fall.

Auditions for host and hostess of "On Campus" were held Monday, March 18. Mr. Brent Steele gave the applicants for the positions an outline of the purpose of the program. The potential candidates were taken from the room in which they first assembled to a darkened one. There they were asked to read and to extemporaneously give a speech of approximately two minutes.

Of the twenty candidates for the two posts, Linda Craven, well-known in Charlotte for her modeling, and Lanier Jones, who has worked for WSOC-TV for three years, were selected. Miss Craven has aspirations of working in the motion picture industry with her special interests lying in set designing and wardrobing.

Mr. Jones, backed by many years of experience in the television world, has filled in as host for Jimmy Kilgo on Kilgo's Kanteen.

Producer Mike Carmichael stated that first in the series of programs will be an interview with Mrs. Kasler, who is on the faculty of Queens College. The topic will be the New Arts Festival.

against the History Club, for example.

This campus bears no expense in this programming. The school was asked to supply the personnel for the program.

Watch for UNC-C's first "On Campus" on Thursday, April 14 at 8:30 p.m. on Channel 42.

Billups Is UP Presidential Nominee, V.P. Goes To Auten

The University Party held its nominating convention in the Union last Wednesday at 11:30 a.m. Chairman David Guy took charge of the meeting attended by approximately 50 party members. Nominations were made for the executive offices and editorships. Nominated are the following: President, Bill Billups; Vice-president, Stewart Auten; Consolidated Student Council, Louise Napolito.

The assembly also voted by acclamation to endorse Rodney Smith for editor of the Carolina Journal and Cindy Trexler for "Rogues 'n Rascals" editor.

The UP will meet again today at 11:30 a.m. to select candidates to run for Student Court and class officers.

Kirkendall Says 'Sex As We Know It' Could Die Soon

By SONIA MIZELL

"Sex as we know it may soon be dead," quoted Dr. Lester A. Kirkendall to his audience last Wednesday in the Parquet Room. A professor of Family Life at Oregon State University, Dr. Kirkendall chose at his lecture topic, "The New Morality." He gave the above quote from LOOK magazine as an example representing the type of thinking that is now becoming important to us. A second quote he gave came from another magazine article. "The negative, repressive approach must be replaced by the positive, affirmative approach." Today's thinking (in connection with morality and sex) is becoming more open and less subdued.

Dr. Kirkendall gave three different ways of looking at morality which are necessary in making moral decisions in our age. They are: I. We must think of morality in a broader way than we do. Morality and sex have come to mean the same thing. The term "New Morality" always suggests sex. This type of thinking must be changed. II. We are in trouble because for so long we have thought of morality as a code, that we have lost sight of the basic moral conception. What is the foundation upon which moral consideration must rest? III. The basis of acceptable authority has changed. In the past, the church, older people in the family, the community, etc. dictated the moral conduct for the young people. While they didn't question the authority, they might violate it. Now the young want to know why and how. They don't accept the same authority.

"We have tended to think of holding back sex because of the dangers," stated Dr. Kirkendall. This is referred to as the "Triple Threat": Infection, conception and detection. But today, since there are ways to combat all of these, we must decide upon what foundation to rest our pattern of moral decision making for students. It
