KEYMEN FRAT GOES GREEK CHRISTMAS DANCE DEC. 22

A Christmas dance and party for Charlotte College students, alumni, and faculty members will be held in the Central High School gymnasium December 22, from 9 until 12, according to James Carmichael, Chairman of the Social Committee. The dance will be semi-formal.

This dance is the second social of the year; the first was a square dance early in October.

C.C. students were asked to express their opinions on what type of social to have this month. The suggestion to have a party this month and plan for a big dance next spring was given consideration. Others wanted to have a dance. The decision was a combination dance-party. Games will be provided for the party-minded students and the Central Dance Band will play for those who prefer to dance.

Many former C. C. students are expected to attend the social. All C.C. students are urged to attend and enjoy an evening of relaxation.

REGINA SORORITY GOES GREEK LETTER Harriet McSheehan

The Regina Sorority, which was comparatively inactive last year because of few girls at CC, lifted its head this year and smiled at the school. This smile took in new members and changed to a broad grin as the Sorority adopted its own Greek letters, Rho Gamma Alpha.

The first formal initiation was held on Friday, Oct. 19. At this time the new members, Mita Crabbe, Betty Dangler, Sula Floros, Wellene Hodge, Katherine Ranson, and Velma Ray, were receiving serious initiation lectures when the lowly "worms" of the Keymen Fraternity not only stopped the lecture, but spread pandemonium throughout the room. The "worms" crawled in, stacked the heavy furniture in the middle of the room and upset the light furniture, took a seat in each corner of the room, pulled off their shoes and began patting their hands and singing "Dixie"! The Sorority found out later that this interruption was just a part of the Fraternity's initiation.

Now, let's get down to fundamentals. The Regina Sorority was organized a few years ago at the school to provide social activity for the girls attending CC. The girls are admitted to Rho Gamma Alpha on the basis of character, co-operativeness, personality, and interest displayed in the Sorority.

The Keymen Fraternity of Charlotte College joined the ranks of junior college Greek letter social fraternities last week when the members voted unanimously to adopt the name of the Sigma Lambda Chi Fraternity. This action was taken by the members after having debated the change for the last three months.

All during this last quarter of school the fraternity has moved closer and closer to this goal of becoming CC's first Greek letter social fraternity. This movement toward the adoption of a Greek letter name was first begun by several of the members last summer when there occurred a heated argument over the right of the fraternity to take in new members during the summer quarter of school, when all of the members of the fraternity were not present to vote on the candidates. After the differences of opinion among the members were finally settled, the fraternity realized that this argument had arisen because of a need for a stronger and more implicit constitution. A committee was appointed under the leadership of Scotty Stallings to draw up a completely new constitution for the fraternity.

When the new constitution was finished, it contained many changes which bore the decided characteristics of a Greek letter fraternity. This new constitution was adopted unanimously by the members of the fraternity. From this time on, the movement to change to a Greek letter fraternity spread like wild fire through the ranks of the Keymen.

President Steve Mahaley threw all his weight behind the Greek movement. Under his influence, designs for a badge and key were secured from Balfour, national fraternity jewelers, and work was begun on the writing of an initiation ritual.

Last week the Keymen received an invitation from a national fraternity to become one of its chapters. This offer was turned down by the Keymen after due consideration, because of the limitations that this affiliation would place on a chapter at Charlotte College. It was at this meeting, held on Monday, December 3, that the members of the Keymen Fraternity voted unanimously to change the name of the fraternity to Sigma Lambda Chi.

All alumni members of the Keymen Fraternity were automatically made members of the Sigma Lambda Chi Fraternity and can obtain information on how to secure their badges and keys by writing to the secretary, Warren Blair, at the
